Angry Bennett, Phillips Boycott House

By LINDA HUGHES

Opposition leader Bill Bennett said today he and fellow Social Credit member Don Phillips will boycott the B.C. Legislature until the provincial government allows full debate without time limits.

Bennett and Phillips were escorted out of the legislature Tuesday in the midst of a stormy confrontation over closure of debate on spending estimates.

A raging Bennett said later Premier Barrett has lost control of the legislature and the situation "is far worse than when the president of the United States lost control of the country."

Barrett replied that the opposition was bordering on anarchy and its actions were a calculated move to disrupt the legislature.

The opposition leader said today he will hold meetings across the province "to bring to the people the seriousness of closure of debate in this legislature."

The first public rally will be held in Vancouver tonight, and Bennett said he and Phillips are planning other meetings.

Bennett said he and his ousted colleague will not take their seats in the legislature "until the government relents and allows full discussion."

Other members of the Social Credit caucus have a responsibility to stay in the house and fight, he said.

Premier Barrett said today people are elected to sit in the legislature and they have a duty to do that.

"I have never heard of anyone being so irresponsible and almost wild," he said.

MLAs have a responsibility beyond party politics, he said, and the people will judge Bennett's boycott plans.

The legislature was in an angry uproar all evening as the government attempted to put forward the 225 spending votes not approved in the house by last week, when the new time limits on debate ran out.

Only three votes were passed in the two-and-a-half-hour sitting. All opposition members voted against the three estimates in formal votes and the members also stood for formal votes on three other occasions as the opposition attempted to fight the time limit rules and challenge the house chairman.

When the members were not conducting formal votes or shouting across the floor, the opposition took up time in lengthy procedural hassles and debates with Speaker Gordon Dowding or the committee chairman.

Bennett and Phillips (SC—Peace River) were thrown out of the house early in the sitting when it first became clear the government was going to try to push through the unfinished estimates.

House leader Eileen Dailly called Vote Nine (the first of the spending votes not approved) and before any member could rise to discuss the spending estimate, chairman Hartley Dent (NDP-Skeena) called for a vote on the estimate and began to move on to Estimate 10.

Both Phillips and Bennett angrily jumped to their feet and demanded to be able to fully debate the spending vote.

When they both refused repeated demands from Dent to sit down, the chairman called in Speaker Dowding to handle the matter.

At one point in the shouting match, six members were on their feet talking at once. (House rules allow only one person to stand at a time.)

Bennett sat down when Dowding came into the chamber but Phillips ignored Dowding's demands to sit and finally the sergeant-at-arms was asked to escort the shouting member out of the house.

Then Bennett rose to his feet and refused to sit down. He too was escorted out of the chamber for the remainder of the sitting.

"I don't have to return to that legislature," he told reporters later. "I will take my case to the people of this province."

He said the Speaker and chairman were guilty of complicity with the government in

U.S. Sinks Red Gunboats

Floating Time Bomb

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — An abandoned Greek tanker spewing flames rocked in the choppy waters of the Atlantic today, threatening to explode like "a time bomb" and dump tons of oil onto the shores of the Dominican Republic.

A Dutch salvage tug steamed from Jamaica toward the half-submerged, 778-foot Epic Coloctotronis and was expected to arrive Thursday morning.

Smoke and flames spewed from the tanker's stern. The coast guard said it was impossible to tell when the fire might reach the cargo of 390,000 barrels of crude oil.

WASHINGTON — American aircraft sank three Cambodian gunboats and damaged about four others in retaliation for the Khmer Rouge's failure to release the captured U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez, the Pentagon said today.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford ordered the attack in the Gulf of Siam Tuesday night after receiving "a strong consensus of support and no objections" in telephone conversations with the leaders of congress.

Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin said American planes attacked after "receiving fire" from the Communist gunboats for several hours and because there were indications the Cambodians intended to remove captive Americans from the Mayaguez.

"Three Cambodian patrol craft were destroyed, about four others were damaged and immobilized," Laitin said.

He added that one of the damaged Cambodian boats succeeded in reaching Kompong Som, the port on the Cambodian mainland about 35 miles from the island of Koh Tang where the Mayaguez was being held.

There were indications that the Cambodians appeared to be attempting to move captive U.S. crewmen from the ship and from the island of Koh Tang to the mainland," Laitin said. The Mayaguez was carrying a 39-man crew.

Laitin did not say what weapons were used against the gunboats. He said the attacking U.S. aircraft first gave warning — but he did not indicate how and then "began efforts to block this movement."

The attack came as Ford amassed an emergency U.S. military force in the area, including 1,100 marines who landed in Thailand today and the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, which was steaming toward the area in the company of several destroyers.

The military action signalled an apparent failure of diplomatic efforts to avert a crisis. Officials would not comment on the results of contacts that reportedly were made with representatives of China, an ally of the new Communist regime in Cambodia.

The announcement of the military action interrupted debate on the House floor over aid to Vietnamese refugees.

Rep. John Seiberling, (D—Ohio,) said the action was a direct violation of the "plain language" of the 1973 law prohibiting the involvement of U.S. military forces in Indo-China. Rep. John Anderson (R—Ill.), appealed to members not to reach any judgment until the facts are known.

Earlier, Thai Premier Kukrit Pramoj gave the United States until Thursday morning to remove 1,100 U.S. Marines he said were landed in Thailand today without his permission.

Kukrit told reporters in Bangkok he would take "drastic action" if the United States did not withdraw the marines from the territory of its only remaining ally on the Southeast Asian mainland.

Kurkrit said his country does not intend to be drafted

MOBS RANSACK U.S. OFFICES

VIENTIANE (AP) — Mobs of Laos students ransacked U.S. installations in the cities of Luang Prabang and Savannakhet today, looting rice and supplies, reliable sources said. Radio contact with the Agency for International Development (AID) compound at Savannakhet was lost and a U.S. embassy spokesman expressed concern for the 15 Americans there.

In Luang Prabang, the royal capital 200 miles north of Vientiane, sketchy radio reports said 3,000 students, teachers and pedicab drivers seized rice supplies and wrecked the AID compound.

The reports said the demonstrators also seized the provincial governor's office and began to distribute rice seized from American stocks.

The demonstrators, apparently protesting 70 per cent inflation, skyrocketing prices and the U.S. presence, left the United States Information Service office untouched.

The demonstrations — rumored to have have been in the wind for the past few days -- came as U.S. officials were putting into effect a "thinning out' process of Americans in Laos because of increasing Communist Pathet Lao control of the country.

Egg Prices Hiked

The price of eggs rose 2 cents a dozen in Victoria this week to bring the price for grade A large to about 91 cents and for medium eggs about 83 cents a dozen.

Prices vary across the city.

In Vancouver, Canada Safeway announced it was increasing its prices 10 cents a dozen but later clarified the report to say the increase was only 2 cents above normal levels. It had been selling eggs 8 cents a dozen below normal in a price war with other Vancouver supermarkets.

A Canadian Press report that Safeway was increasing prices 10 cents a dozen because of an increase by producers brought an attack from the provincial egg marketing board before the situation had been clarified by Canada Safeway.

The earlier report gave the impression the egg marketing board had increased egg prices by 10 cents.

Today a spokesman for Canada Safeway said that the company ended its price war, restoring its price to the normal 87 cents a dozen from the discount price of 79 cents. Then it added 2 cents a dozen to reflect the increase announced by the egg marketing board.

Other Vancouver supermarkets also increased their prices to similar levels.

CITY CRIME ON RISE

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

When the 1974 Victoria City police statistics are released — expected within four to six weeks—they will depict a gloomy picture of the growth of crime in the city, with sexual offences proportionately heading the list.

According to a spokesman for the city police records department there were 56 sexual offences, other than rape, committed during 1974, a 133 per cent increase over the previous year when there were 24 and a 460 per cent increase over the 10 recorded in 1970.

Ironically, over the same period of time, the number of rapes each year has steadily declined from eight in 1970 to six in 1973 to five in 1974.

Similarly there was a drop in the number of murders, from four in 1973 to three last year, and a decrease in offensive weapons offences from 49 to 37.

But those were the exceptions. All other crime categories reflected a disquieting upward trend.

The 84 robberies last year were 31 per cent more than the 64 in 1973, and woundings soared from one in both 1973 and 1970 to eight in 1974.

There were 78 per cent more breaking and enterings and incidents of theft than the previous year, the former jumping from 961 to 1,203, the latter from 2,703 to 3,408.

Cases of possession of stolen property escalated more than 100 per cent, from 47 to 106.

The fraud department handled 95 more cases in 1974 than 1973 with a final tally of 1,091.

Assaults were up about 14 per cent, from 468 to 546 and the pot-pourri category listing "other criminal code offences" increased fractionally from 1,748 to 1,810.

During 1974, the statistics show, police investigated 9,359 criminal code offences and managed to clear by charge 2,292 of them or about 24 per cent.

The amount of property stolen during the year reached $616,544, of which police recovered $152,372.

The statistics will be incorporated in chief Jack Gregory's annual report to the Victoria police board. The report, normally, would have been released by now but this year it has been delayed because of the recent municipal workers strike-lockout.

Quebec Social Order Comes First—Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa, determined to re-establish order in his province's troubled construction industry, said Tuesday preserving Quebec's social order is more important than staging the 1976 Olympic Games.

"Social order comes before everything, all events, no matter how important they are," Bourassa said.

The national assembly passed a special motion Tuesday suspending regular procedures to debate full time the legislation aimed at restoring order to Quebec's construction industry.

The legislature now can sit every day except Sunday to discuss exclusively two bills proposed following release of the Cliche Commission report.

The first bill would put four locals of the Quebec Federation of Labor under trusteeship while the second would bar persons with criminal records from holding influential union positions for certain periods.

Work on the Olympics sites and other major construction projects stopped May 8 when 5,000 workers walked off the job as part of a union confrontation with the Quebec government over the bills.

The Olympic sites were idle again today with about 9,000 workers off the job at major building sites in the province

B.C. to Cool Indian Protest . . . Without Police

The government will try to keep police out of any confrontations with Indians in B.C. this summer, deputy attorney-general David Vickers said Tuesday.

Talks have already been held with the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs to work out arrangements for trying to de-escalate any situations which may arise in the future, he said.

The system of trying to negotiate a settlement of confrontations without reference to police action was put into practice last weekend, said Vickers, when about 30 members of the American Indian Movement (AIM) occupied offices of the federal Department of Indian Affairs (DIA) in Vancouver.

Federal Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan tried to pressure the province to call out the police, said Vickers, but B.C. didn't want to use force for fear of escalating the conflict.

Provincial officials negotiated with the chiefs' union on Saturday and the union, in turn, talked with the occupying Indians on Sunday, he said.

The negotiations led to an end of the occupation early Monday morning and Vickers praised the work of the union, especially executives Bill Wilson and Lou Desmarais.

He said B.C. refused to follow Ottawa's call for police action because it had an agreement with the union to negotiate in all cases. The Vancouver police co-operated fully in the plan, said Vickers.

In the legislature Tuesday, Attorney-General Alex Macdonal praised Vickers as well as the union members for ending the occupation.

In Ottawa Tuesday, Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan expressed concern that provincial attorneys-general are not acting firmly enough to deal with native sit-ins, roadblocks and other non-peaceful demonstrations.

The one in B.C., he complained, would rather play tennis than break up an illegal occupation of federal offices.

The minister was questioned during a Commons committee meeting about the Vancouver occupation and the threat of further demonstrations by native groups in various parts of Canada this summer.

Hugh Anderson (Lib—Comox-Alberni) argued that authorities must intervene when the life or property of citizens is threatened by demonstrations.

No Stalling Games—IOC

ROME (CP) — The International Olympic Committee said today it has told the Quebec government there can be no question of postponing the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

Jim Worrall, Canadian member of the IOC executive, said he had told this to Premier Robert Bourassa in a telephone conversation Tuesday. They had discussed the possibility of putting the games back to 1977.

The Associated Press quoted Worrall as saying the Quebec government had called him Tuesday and inquired about the possibility of postponing the games.

"I told Bourassa this is not a question at all," Worrall said. "The games will not be postponed. I repeat that the rules of the IOC are very clear on this."

Worrall added that the IOC is not considering any alternative sites for the Olympics.

"There is no contingency discussions at present."

In Quebec City today, a spokesman for Bourassa said the premier did not ask the IOC to postpone the games until 1977.

The spokesman said Bourassa assured the IOC that the games would be held as planned in 1976 and that everything would be ready for the original date.

as the work stoppage spread to areas outside Montreal.

Bourassa said in Quebec City Tuesday night he is confident the Games will go on as scheduled.

"Either the Games will be held here in July, 1976, as I am confident they will, or they will not be held at all," Bourassa said.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau said Tuesday the city will have an awesome burden if the Games have to be cancelled.

The mayor said all revenue-producing programs designed to pay the $496 million bill for the Olympics would have to be halted if the Games were cancelled.

"We'd be left with the most costly ruins in the world," he said, referring to the present state of the Olympics site.

Olympic Lottery Canada announced three $1-million prizes will be given away in the sixth Olympic lottery drawing Sept. 28.

Meanwhile thirty-four men were charged with sequestering today in the seizure of 10 hostages during a riot at a suburban aircraft manufacturing plant.

No pleas were entered at the reading of the charge, which carries a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment.

All 34 elected trial by jury.

The charges stemmed from a pre-dawn riot and occupation Tuesday at the U.S.-controlled Pratt and Whitney Co. in suburban Longueuil, Que. Eight men and two women were released after a force of 250 police stormed the plant.

POUND AT NEW LOWS

LONDON (UPI) — The British pound fell to all-time lows against a number of European currencies today.

The plummeting of what was once the world's strongest currency came in the wake of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's announcement Tuesday that parliament next week will debate the country's bitterest economic plight in 34 years.

Meanwhile the U.S. dollar fell faster than the pound today for the second consecutive day. The dollar hit another 22-month low against the French franc and opened at two-month lows in Zurich and Frankfurt.

Gold opened 75 cents up in Zurich at $166.50 an ounce and 50 cents up in London at $166.50. London dealers then fixed the price at $165.90 in a quiet and featureless market. In post-fix deals, the metal rallied to between $165.75 and $166.40.

Helped by its overnight advance against the dollar from Tuesday's $2.3075 to $2.3145 at today's opening in London, the pound's effective devaluation against the currencies of Britain's major trading partners got no worse than the all-time record 25.2 per cent it reached Tuesday.

A dealer for Chase Manhattan Bank in London said, "Tuesday's heavy support by the Bank of England — amounting to between $200 and $300 million — succeeded in braking the pound's fall."

No Police, Says B.C.

However, (Paul McRae Lib —Fort William) suggested that the attitude of some officials of the federal Indian Affairs department is responsible for the growing confrontation between the government and native groups seeking recognition of land claims.

He said later that he was referring specifically to John McGilp, director of operations in the Indian and Eskimo Affairs branch of the department.

Meanwhile, three Burns Lake district Indian bands have refused to go along with a call by the UBCIC to reject federal and provincial funds, an Indian spokesman said Tuesday.

Ted Lowley, chief of the Lake Babine band, said his band will continue to accept government funding and said two other bands — the Omineca and Cheslatta — also will accept funds.

At a Vancouver press conference Monday, Bill Wilson, a UBCIC executive committee member, said only two B.C. bands had refused to accept the UBCIC policy — one at Burns Lake and Vancouver's Musqueam Band.

Lowley said he feels the union's policy is wrong.

"We have nearly 1,000 band members and they would have to suffer because of their decision if we accepted it," he said.

He said the band involvement with Babine Forest Products in Burns Lake was a major factor in deciding to accept funds.

However, in Ft. St. James, the Necoslie Indian band has given full support to the Stuart-Trembleur band's B.C. railway blockade, 35 miles northwest of this northern community, and will help man the blockade.

Chief Peter Prince said the band is in full support of the Stuart-Trembleur demands for $7 million and a three-for-one land swap for 378 acres of land crossed by the BCR's Dease Lake extension.

The band has said they will not remove the blockade until their terms are met by the government. They have asked Premier Dave Barrett to come to the blockade site for talks, saying band members cannot afford to go to Victoria.

The province responded Tuesday by offering travelling expenses for band members to Victoria.

into U.S. preparations to take back the Mayaguez by force.

Meanwhile, 40 or 50 student protesters yelling, "American go home," and carrying signs were at the airport for the arrival of the new U.S. ambassador to Thailand, Charles Whitehouse.

Neither the Thai government nor the U.S. embassy in Bangkok was informed in advance of the marines' arrival.

The fate of the Mayaguez' 39-man crew was still not known today. There were reports Tuesday that Caucasians were seen being taken to the island from the Mayaguez in fishing-type boats.

Pentagon sources said U.S. Air Force rescue helicopters attempted to pick up some of the crewmen of the destroyed Cambodian boats, but that other Cambodian naval craft fired on the rescue helicopters and they broke off the attempt.

The Cambodians seized another foreign merchant ship today but freed it after nearly two hours.

U.S. communications sources in Bangkok said the Eastern Grand, a merchant ship registered in Panama, was taken near the island of Panjang, about 85 miles off the Cambodian and South Vietnamese coasts and about 60 miles from the point at which the U.S. freighter Mayaguez was fired on and boarded Monday.

The Pentagon issued a "notice to mariners" warning ships to remain more than 35 nautical miles from the Cambodian coast and more than 20 nautical miles from the Vietnamese coast, including offshore islands.

boying to bulldoze debate in the legislature.

The Premier said the house was simply crying to follow its own rules and said the members planned to have themselves thrown out.

Barrett distinguished between the Socreds and the other opposition members, claiming the Social Credit were "led by hate rather than by reason."

Other opposition members had agreed to a proposal by the government to avoid a confrontation over final passage of the spending estimates.

The government has stalled two days before calling the remaining votes and attempted outside the house to get opposition agreement on a scheme to discuss the remianing estimates in a committee outside the house.

The opposition has been opposed to the time limits on estimates debate and Dailly said the government's proposal would satisfy their demands for further debate.

But the Socreds said the only agreement they would make would be to remove the time limits altogether. They refused to consider a committee system.

When it was clear no agreement could be made, Dailly said the government simply decided to put the remaining votes before the house.

The new rule passed last year over opposition objections says that after the time limits expire (last Friday) all remaining estimates must be voted on immediately.

Pat McGeer (Ind.—Vancouver-Point Grey) challenged the chairman's ruling during debate and angrily announced that the oopsition would demand a formal vote on every estimate.

At the rate it was taking Tuesday, passage of all the estimates could take several weeks.

Phillips was escorted out of the house earlier this session when he refused to stop talking at adjournment, in protest over the time limits.

the weather

Patches of high cloud were drifting over coastal regions overnight marking the approach of another Pacific disturbance. The main area of cloud should reach the north coast this morning and over the south coast in the afternoon with rain following close behind. Interior regions should experience another warm sunny day except for western portions of the central interior where cloud and some rain will move in earlier in the day. The system is forecast to cross the coast on Thursday morning and carry the weather into the interior while the coastal regions can look forward to some glimpses of the sun by afternoon.

Government of British Columbia
Honourable Gary Lauk, Minister

Gov't Spending 'Never Tighter'

TO BEE OR NOT TO BEE . . .

The provincial government's Bee Act prompted stinging criticism from a Socred MLA in the legislature Tuesday.

North Okanagan member Pat Jordan charged the bill is designed to bring every bee being raised in B.C. "into the honey pot of government."

"It looks sweet but it may create a very sticky situation for the government," said Jordan, saying the bill will touch every beekeeper whether the honey-producers are raised for business or as a hobby."

The legislation, which eventually received approval in principle, is designed to reduce the incidence of disease in bee-keeping by forced inspections of bee colonies.

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said the legislation is not over-powerful and an appeal procedure for bee-keepers taking issue with inspectors' decisions will be provided.

But the minister's retaliation was met with a well-aimed comment from Socred MLA Don Phillips (South Peace).

"You'll want to control the birds next," he chided.

The provincial government has decided to continue indefinitely its strict austerity program and crackdown on civil service hiring and spending.

Premier Barrett confirmed Tuesday the three-month spending freeze is being continued into the new fiscal year and controls on spending "have never been tighter."

Last December the Treasury Board initiated the austerity campaign in an effort to keep all government spending under control.

But the program, which included a freeze on hiring and purchase of vehicles as well as tight surveillance of all expenditures, was to extend only until the end of the fiscal year, April 1.

Barrett said Treasury Board has decided to retain its strict controls over spending and all new hiring will have to be vetted by the board.

Departments have to submit complete cost estimates for any new hiring as well as for applications to replace civil servants who have left, he said.

He refused to comment on whether the government might have plans to actually cut down on the number of civil servants working for the government.

"There have never been tighter controls on expenditures," said Barrett.

"It's basically just a continuation of the program we had established."

The original program, which did not become public knowledge until the end of January, was to place a freeze on all hiring. In fact, Treasury Board did approve hiring in special circumstances and dozens of new people joined the ranks of the civil service during the three-month period.

Also in the first directive, no new motor vehicles were to be requested until April 1 and controls over approvals for mileage expenses, accommodation rentals and consultant fees were tightened.

Barrett said at the time the crackdown applied to everything right down to paper clips and pencils.

Liquor Rumors Are Spiked By Macdonald

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Tuesday the provincial government has no intention of operating its own wineries, distilleries and breweries.

He dismissed reports that legislation will be introduced this session with vast changes in liquor licensing and distribution, including the sale of liquor on election days.

Macdonald said government policy does not include sale of liquor on election days, nor does it include sale of liquor in pubs, which was also a matter of specualtion.

"It's all rumors, and some of the best rumors aren't true," he said when asked about the matter in the legislature by Victoria MLA Newell Morrison.

The provincial government does support heavier penalities for management of beer parlors for allowing service to juveniles, he said.

Macdonald said that some of the issues were recommended in a report by J. A. McCrossan, a Vancouver lawyer who six months ago was retained to counsel the liquor administration branch of the attorney general's department.

But they are simply recommendations, "valid suggestions," said Macdonald. No legislation on the bulk of the report has been presented to cabinet, nor have the recommendations received his approval.

Macdonald said he is meeting next week with Ben Ginter, president of Uncle Ben's Breweries, and although the attorney-general said he is ordering in a lot of Kleenex in preparation for the meeting, the government doesn't intend to make a purchase bid for the brewery.

Macdonald said there may be a stepped-up program of liquor inspections and police enforcement of liquor laws.

And he reiterated that a bill which will split responsibility for liquor into two functions—liquor control and licensing and liquor distribution—will be introduced this session.

"It'll be in about four days," said Macdonald," but we haven't decided when the four days will start."

200-Mile Limit

REYKJAVIK (AP) — Iceland is planning to extend its coastal fishing limit to 200 nautical miles later this year, sources said Tuesday.

The disclosure came after the fisheries limits jurisdiction committee met Tuesday to hear a report on the recent law of the sea conference in Geneva.

BIGGEST HOLE in the city continues to be dug deeper as preparation for the $14 million Nordal Mall project continues. The development, occupying two city blocks bounded by Courtney, Wharf, Government and Broughton, will include a mall linking Government and Wharf, a 20-unit condominium, a health club and office space. It will cover more land than any downtown building since the Empress Hotel was built.

Delay at Rail Car Plant Draws Socred MLA's Fire

B.C. Railway's new rail car plant has not produced any cars yet and Socred MLA Jim Chabot (Columbia River) has blamed the incompetence of the provincial government.

The government's own newspaper, B.C. Government News, announced in April that cars would be delivered to the railway by this month.

But Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk said Tuesday a number of problems have occurred and the Squamish plant is only now working on the rail car prototypes.

"It's a total lack of ability to get things rolling," said Chabot. "All the top management in the plant have quit in disgust."

The plant was scheduled to go into production in January, 1974, but did not open until March 25, 1975.

Lauk said one of the reasons for delay is a $50,000 retooling project which will allow the plant to produce bulkhead flat rail cars as well as chip cars.

But he also cited labor troubles and difficulties in finding reasonably priced steel.

A supply was secured from Japan and Eastern Canada, he said, but the costs are high.

Lauk said once B.C. secures a cheaper supply of steel, the rail cars will be competitive with Eastern Canada and if B.C. builds its own steel plant, the cars "could be the most competitive manufactured in North America."

The plant employs 220 people and is designed to produce four cars a day.

Ottawa Weights Its Case

Now that the federal government's ritual dance on voluntary restraint has ended with a whimper, Finance Minister John Turner hints at restrictive monetary policies and higher taxes in his June budget. The country is witnessing a classical case of the government leading the people to water, then persuading them to drink. Consensus on voluntary restraints never had a chance. Consensus on mandatory controls may do better as the government carefully builds its case.

Only the most unreconstructed capitalists could blame the Canadian Labor Congress for rejecting Turner's working paper on voluntary restraint. The onus for restraint was on labor. Business was asked to limit price increases to rising costs — a measure that could encourage inefficiency.

Little mention was made of putting ceilings on dividends, interest or rents. Asking workers to accept an increment ceiling of 12 per cent or $2,400 a year when MPs just finished voting themselves a 33 per cent or $11,600 annual increase has to rank with Marie Antoinette's unfeeling riposte, let them eat cake, as Parisians rioted below her balcony for crusts of bread. Nor can one blame business or labor for feeling unsympathetic towards a government that calls for restraint while it continues to spend like there is no tomorrow.

At the very least a grim day is dawning, says the finance minister, citing wage settlements running at twice the U.S. rate plus a strike rate second only to Italy's. Grim comparisons designed to increase the national adrenalin flow, yet they are slightly misleading according to some sources. Canada's economic performance last year outpaced the U.S. so wage increases here naturally went ahead of the U.S. The deep U.S. recession has also been a limiting factor on wage increases there.

In fact, Canada has achieved a lower rise in wage costs than almost any country except the U.S. and West Germany, according to the Financial Times. As to our strike record being second only to Italy's, the statement is based on pre-1973 figures plus a comparison with only six other economies. It is also fact that in the first three months of 1975, our inflation rate was lower than that of the U.S., 6.8 per cent here compared with 7.8 per cent there.

Despite heartening comparisons Canadians, have no room for complacency. Our 1975 trade deficit may top $4 billion. Unemployment remains static at 7.2 per cent, refusing to decline with the onset of spring. Housing starts continue to sag. Inflation shows new signs of life and economic growth will be nil for this year. Against this gloomy background Ottawa has clearly underestimated our economic troubles. Meanwhile, hollow rhetoric and clumsy ploys are foisted on a bewildered public.

The government is finally talking tough, threatening higher taxation and tight money in the June budget. Somehow this knee jerk classical reaction seems out of step with the times. Tight money policies will curtail business expansion, resulting in higher short term unemployment. Such a measure is a gamble at best. Higher taxation makes no sense at all. Canadian citizens are among the highest taxed people in the Western world. Even the doughty Economic Council of Canada mentions high personal taxation as one of the primary causes of wage inflation. As taxes rise, so do wage demands. Increased personal taxation would also cut back consumption and therefore production, plunging us deeper into a recession.

Final judgement will have to wait until the budget is brought down early next month. If the government tightens up on taxes and money, it may throttle the little breath left in a gasping economy.

Conversely, Turner can't afford to give much more away. That leaves mandatory wage and price controls as the sole remaining government weapon. Unless these measures are equitably applied to both labor and business — something which the government has shown little stomach for so far — the policy will court disaster in an economy finely weighted between behemoths. Still, the twin beasts of inflation and unemployment remain undeterred. The hour grows late. Ottawa must act decisively for once.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Veg-Canada: Planting Ideas?

As he began to plant his fifty-first vegetable crop, the gardener in our rustic neighborhood recalled an eminent predecessor, Thomas Edward Brown who, a century ago, declared that "a garden is a lovesome thing, God wot." Quite so, the gardener agreed, but he doubted that Brown's statement was still valid today. For the mystery of gardening in the hungry year of 1975 was far beyond all wotting.

Before the onset of the great world hunger it had been possible for an ordinary, bumbling ignorant man to plant as he pleased and even reap a harvest sometimes edible without interference or advice from anyone. But no longer. As the great fear gripped mankind the experts had taken charge.

Their advice filled newspaper columns, television screens and books. So described and advocated, the garden was no longer a pleasant hobby. It was a national duty. Not innocent fun but grim unpaid labor, overtime.

Golf or Gardening?

All this was laudable and necessary, the gardener admitted, in light of the growing food shortage. The experts deserved respect, earned their pay and had no time to enjoy their own profession out of doors. Indeed, the only useful thing he himself had to do in a long life was to grow some of his own food with a surplus for the more successful, richer neighbors, who preferred golf.

Yes, everybody should grow something to justify, in pathetically small measure, a brief presence on an impoverished little planet. But surely there was more to it than science and economics — a certain law of diminishing returns by which the unscientific, uneconomic amateur often succeeded better than the professional.

While he might claim to be a professional after half a century of trial and repeated error, he had observed, over and over again, some clumsy novice produce larger and better crops than his. It would be a grave mistake, therefore, and would limit total production, if the amateurs were frightened away from a very simple pursuit by all the well-meant, complicated expertise, discouraged from plunging recklessly into the soil and trusting nature, a kind mother if you treated her right, no questions asked. Let the amateur plant and be damned.

Anybody of less than average intelligence could do it. An illiterate, or even a writer of garden books, could do it. Nature would respond with a silent cheer, God wot.

In modern society, however, too many questions were asked with answers highly scientific and usually wrong. In modern politics all problems were approached with task forces, flow charts, computers and solemn statutes that seldom worked. Soon, no doubt, these methods would be applied to the easy problem of thrusting seeds into the ground and watching them perform their tiny miracle in their own fashion, heedless of governments, law courts and the British North America Act.

GARDENING
... a lovesome thing

A vast apparatus of administration would be required to perfect the nation's backyard gardens and regulate their innocent proprietors. A new department of information, Vegetables Canada, an army of public relations officers, who had never lifted a shovel, an elite corps of speech writers, hired by Health Minister Marc Lalonde on a contract basis to explain the secrets of agronomy which he, though a brilliant man, was unable to comprehend. He would explain them all the same.

The process of regulation would not end there. The old gardener expected to see a Royal Commission on the Cutworm Problem, a Senate inquiry into the Clubroot Disease of the Cabbage, the resignation of Finance Minister John Turner on the Onion Issue, a parliamentary crisis in the revolting Broccoli Scandal of 1976, a desperate prime minister wrestling his early potato seeds into the ground and vainly trying to stop the cabinet leeks.

Then David Lewis, of course, would attribute the latest crop failure to the corporate welfare bums. Stanley Knowles would score a brilliant, historic debating point unnoticed by the public. Robert Bryce would be appointed to study the terrifying emergency and postpone action until after the next election. Everything, in fact, would proceed normally, according to the old Canadian tradition.

Too Subversive

Even now the state, which had no business in the bedrooms of the nation, as Trudeau often said, had begun to trespass on the gardener's territory. Its foot was in his potting shed, his last refuge. The government's offices were filled with exotic plants and perfumed tropical blossom to soothe the fitful fever of overworked and underpaid statesmen at a modest cost to the taxpayers of a paltry few hundred thousand dollars a year.

These floral amenities were cheap at the price but if vegetables, even a few poor radishes, had been planted instead, at less cost, the nation's food supply would be measurably increased. That was too much to expect. Nothing could stand in the way of the new scientific spirit or staunch the statemen's thirst for ambient beauty, the inspiration of noble thoughts. A bargain for the taxpayers if they only knew it.

Still, as he sprinkled his first seeds the old gardener was bold enough to think that the statemen might govern Canada with even more than their present success, if they spared a moment now and then to come into contact with reality and felt the spring earth with their own hands. But that, he supposed, was too wild a fancy, an unpatriotic, subversive notion not to be mentioned aloud, and in practical politics a gruesome thing, God wot.

Downhill Slide

I believe, contrary to your editorial of May 6, Some Logical Liquor Reforms, that the proposals to sell beer in grocery stores and to permit drinking in public, are neither "logical" nor "reforms." They constitute a slide downhill.

It is an axiom that more facilities mean more drinking. We need more drinking in B.C like the Pacific needs more water.

What is logical about this when liquor consumption is well over twice as high here now as the national average of 100 years ago? Absolute alcohol consumed by persons 15 years of age and over in 1871 was 1.19 gallons, in 1970, the figure for B.C. was 2.47 gallons. The figure is considerably higher in 1974, with the highest rate in history.

More alcohol is consumed in Canada via beer than via spirits. Is it a reform to increase this in either form?

Opening of beer sales to yet another area of the economy will further entrench sale of alcohol in our society. Why this aid to the alcohol industry, now dominating most governments in Canada, which never move to break the shackles?

Greater availability means more trouble on streets, in crime, in homes and in traffic. When liquor-involved collisions mean greater physical property damage and costs of repair, why should the attorney-general's department add to the costs of ICBC. These costs are causing enough of its deficit now.

Beer in grocery stores will increase alcohol's competition with food and other necessities. It will add to the teenage drinking problem here as it does elsewhere. Many stores, not otherwise opting for this, will feel forced, by competition, also to sell beer.

By far the majority of stores do not want this. Why this undemocratic move? The public majority, I am convinced, from close association with the public mind in a recent Fernwood area survey, do not want such a development.

When asking recently a province-wide organization of more than 400 delegates their views on this question, Premier Barrett got a response of over 90 per cent against the proposal. Why does the government listen to the noisy clamor of a minority? I am convinced it will lose, rather than gain support in B.C. if there is no reconsideration. — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

Pension History

With its deadly penchant for mending rather than ending the present acquisitive society, the CCF-NDP has been enamored of reforms since its inception. In addition to proclaiming their alleged virtues, it seems that some CCF-NDP types cannot resist claiming "credit" for a patch-up job or two that their party actually had nothing to do with.

Two or three times during the past two decades, they have claimed in the press that either the CCF or some of its predecessor members were responsible for bringing old age pensions into existence by pressuring Mackenzie King. Each time this happened, someone in the socialist party of Canada brought out the historical facts, and the CCF-NDP writer disappeared into the woodwork again on this point — (waiting for the readers to forget?). Now it has happened again; this time in the person of M. P. B. Wrixon in the Times of May 3.

The only CCF predecessors to nominally vote for the OAP were Woodsworth and Heaps, along with Heenan (Liberal-Labor), and these three had to be pressured into doing so by A. W. Neill, an independent MP of conservative ideals from the Alberni.

He first campaigned for the OAP in an election in 1921, and he was the one who pressured King (handicapped with a minority government) with the deal of four extra Commons votes for the Liberals, (to help them stay in office) for enacting the OAP. Far from initiating this, Woodsworth and Heaps had to be talked into it according to Neill.

In honor of his efforts, the first OAP cheque was issued to a recipient in Neill's area — a Bill Derby, whose grave is marked in the Alberni cemetary as that of the first old age pensioner in Canada.

NDPers are apparently not content with dispensing economic and political mythology. They want to distort history too. — J. G. Jenkins, 959 Darwin Avenue.

Corporate Feudalism

As futile a gesture as it may be, I would nevertheless like to register a protest, in my capacity of nameless serf, against our system of corporate feudalism—sometimes called the consumer society—in general, and the insane proliferation of shopping malls in particular.

In Central Saanich where I live we are soon to be blessed with a shopping mall to replace a few acres of unused farmland and some trees which serve no apparent purpose apart from providing a little shade from time to time. No profit in that. So the giant food chains and department stores are to move in and, for the good of the local citizens of course, pave a little more of Mother Earth's skin to make a little easier the spending of our money on things we don't need and probably don't want. And this at a time when we should be using our arable land to grow food for a hungry world and reducing our consumption of worthlessness to conserve valuable non-renewable resources.

SHOPPING CENTRE SITE
... waste of land?

During the past five years I have lived and worked or travelled in many parts of the world including the Far East, India, Africa and Europe. To return to this continent and witness the highly sophisticated control of robotized consumption by the huge corporations—multi-national and domestic—is, to say the least, saddening. That our vast resources and potential, human as well as material, should be wasted and squandered so, is nothing short of obscene. Considering the corporate totalitarianism under which we all (unknowingly for the most part) toil, the term "free world" has to rate as one of the great misnomers of our time.—Douglas Beveridge, 6002 West Saanich Road.

Changes Criticized

I would like to express my indignation at the news of the proposed amendments to the Liquor Act.

On the one hand the government sheds crocodile tears over the rising rate of alcoholism and the tragic consequences for people of all ages and, on the other hand, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald blithely plans to make beer available at the handy corner store and drinking in public places is to be smiled upon.

We are all aware that impulse buying by the customer is one of the cornerstones of grocery sales. If we are (and statistics indicate that we are) already spending far too much of our money on alcohol, do we need the added incentive of having it there beckoning to us when we go to the store for a loaf of bread?

Teenage drinking is a matter of very grave concern. Surely the proposed changes can only aggravate that problem, and do the grocers really want the heavy legal and moral responsibility of making sure that they do not sell beer to minors?

Macdonald says he wants to help the small grocery stores. It appears to me that it would be the large brewing companies that he would be helping by this most irresponsible legislation!

As to the drinking in public parks a bottle or two of wine at a picnic sounds very pastoral and pleasant but has Macdonald considered the drive home possibly on a crowded highway?—V. Finding, 2714 Lincoln Road.

Greedy Females

In reference to the front page of the Times dated May 8: Two For the Price of One. After the last MPs' raise, it should be "one for the price of two." Just what in hell do those greedy females want anyway? Imagine that Watts one beefing about not getting compensation for giving up her plushy government job to accompany her husband on his new posting. That really gives me a pain in the you know what.

In the first place, with all the dough that her husband is probably making, she shouldn't be holding down a position that a man could no doubt fill more efficiently. Evidently she doesn't remember how the wives of our servicemen had to follow their husbands to every corner of the earth, and didn't demand compensation from the government.

And that other one, Mrs. Mark Raines, with her inane statement about the MPs needing a union. That's a laugh. Why should they need a union when all they have to do is to vote themselves a big fat raise whenever they want it.

Incidently, instead of paying MPs' wives for following them around to cocktail parties, etc., we should pay the housewives a salary, and maybe they would stay home and help to relieve the male unemployment situation.

In closing, I would like to congratulate Mrs. Donald Munro on her statement that women should consider it a privilege to support their husband's careers.—Lew Horne, Sidney.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 14, 1915

The Dominion theatre has booked the world's greatest comedy, what is claimed by a million people who have seen it to be the funniest farce ever shown in a moving picture. It is a six-reel Keystone comedy, featuring Marie Dressler, Charles Chaplin and Mabel Normand and includes the entire Keystone company. The picture is entitled Tillie's Punctured Romance and has a laugh in every foot of the 6,000 feet of film. Charles Chaplin is undoubtedly the funniest man playing for the movies and Marie Dressler's fame as a comedienne is too well known to require further comment. The settings are sumptuous, the ballroom scene being very elaborate and showing some of the newest dances by experts.

A Long History To Indian Claims On Land Injustices

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

The announcement last week by Human Resources Minister Norm Levi that the provincial government is now willing to talk about cut-off reserve lands is another small victory in the long land claims struggle of B.C. Indians.

It is a struggle that began nearly a century ago and that remains today the one burning issue that unites all Indians in the province.

The issue is simple — Indians in the province claim all the land in British Columbia is theirs by aboriginal right, because they were here first. They claim the land has been taken from them without compensation.

The cut-off lands — land taken from 35 reserves without Indian consent — are a side issue, although demands for return of the cut-off lands are getting widespread attention these days.

Over the years B.C. Indians have tried many tactics to get the white community to recognize their right to B.C. land.

They've gone to Ottawa; they've gone to London to see the Queen; they've appealed to the United Nations; they've appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Now they seek a political settlement, a deal worked out between them, the provincial government (which has jurisdiction over land and natural resources) and the federal government (which has jurisdiction over Indians).

A group of people under Philip Paul spent the last year preparing the Indians' case at the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs (UBCIC) land claims centre on McKenzie Ave.

Douglas Sanders, a young lawyer who has been UBCIC legal counsel since last summer, has handled the legal end of things.

Sanders is an expert on Indian land claims in Canada, having worked on the claim of native people to 400,000 square miles of the Northwest Territories before coming to B.C.

To understand the land claims issue, and its importance to B.C. Indians, he says, you have to go back to the time before the white man came to the province.

The Indians in pre-settlement times had a highly developed land ownership system. Each tribe knew its own boundaries; so did each band with the tribe, and even extended family groups had their own home territory.

There was recognized ownership of resource production sites like berry-picking patches, seaweed gathering sites and fishing and hunting spots, which were passed down from generation to generation.

The B.C. tribes were sedentary, more like an agricultural society than the nomadic plains Indians. Their mainstay, instead of culture, was fish and seafood, especially salmon which was found not just on the coast but in interior rivers.

"It was a wealthy society by any reasonable standards," Sanders says, and it was based on the forests and the salmon.

When the first whites, Hudson's Bay Company traders, arrived the Indian life style changed only slightly.

The trade in salmon which had always gone on between coastal and interior tribes was simply expanded, with the Hudson's Bay men as new customers.

In 1871 the first commercial cannery was established on the Fraser River, and for the Indians this was the turning point in their domination of the fishing industry.

For awhile the Indians remained the fishermen, with the whites owning the cannery and the Chinese doing the work in the plants. But then more and more white settlers became fishermen.

Gradually the Indians were squeezed out of the industry.

The same pattern happened in logging, and after 1909 no more timber permits were granted to Indians.

Under Governor James Douglas the first treaties were signed by which Indians gave up their rights to land.

The 14 Douglas Treaties were made with bands in the Victoria, Saanich and Sooke area, as well as in Nanaimo and Port Hardy where there were believed to be coal deposits.

The Indians were paid in blankets — literally — says Sanders, who calls them the cheapest treaties in Canada. B.C. Indians can be expected to contest the validity of these treaties if talks on the land claims issue get started.

In 1866 Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland became one colony, and the colonial government lost interest in making treaties.

In 1871 B.C. joined confederation, and the provincial government took the attitude that Indians have no right to any land, therefore no treaties or compensation for loss of land was necessary.

This position has scarcely wavered in all the years since.

The Ottawa government, however, began making treaties with prairie Indians. It could not make treaties with B.C. Indians without the consent of the provincial government which controlled the land, and successive provincial governments all refused.

Governor Douglas set up the first Indian reserves in the 1860s.

In 1875 a joint federal-provincial Indian Reserve Commission was set up which for 35 years was responsible for allotting and surveying Indian reserves in B.C.

It was replaced in 1912 by another joint commission, the McKenna-McBride Royal Commission, which was to review the reserves set up by its predecessor.

The McKenna-McBride commission was set up with the agreement that no reserve lands would be cut off without consent of the Indians affected.

The commission travelled the province from 1913 to 1916. Its report recommended that roughly 36,000 acres of reserve land be taken from 23 bands.

The bands affected did not agree to loss of the land.

Nonetheless, the B.C. government passed an order-in-council approving the McKenna-McBride report in 1923. Ottawa also approved the report.

Because there was no Indian consent, B.C. Indians now maintain the cut-offs were illegal.

Indians began to organize to try to get recognition of their aboriginal rights to all land in the province.

The movement culminated in a joint federal Senate-House of Commons committee meeting in 1927 at which the B.C. chiefs made their case.

The committee dismissed the claim, saying that B.C. was taken by conquest.

Committee members voted to give B.C. Indians $100,000 a year, as a sop, to make up for the treaty money they weren't getting.

Finally, the committee recommended that Indians be prohibited from raising money to organize politically.

This was put in the Indian Act, where it remained until 1951, and in the intervening years it did much to slow the drive for recognition of land claims.

New interest in land claims emerged after the Second World War.

Andy Paull of the Squamish reserve organized the North American Indian Brotherhood in the late 1940's, and started a new movement for aboriginal rights and land claims.

In the 1960s the issue came to court.

The Regina vs. White and Bob case dealt with two Nanaimo Indians who were caught hunting off the reserve but in the treaty area.

The Indians' lawyer was Tom Berger, who would later take the Nishga case to the Supreme Court.

Berger argued that the Indians have an aboriginal right to hunt anywhere. The court didn't accept that, but did rule that the Indians were within their treaty area and therefore within their rights.

In the spring of 1969 the Nishga Indians went to court asking that their aboriginal title to their traditional territory in the Nass River Valley be recognized.

A month later the federal government released its White Paper on Indians which denied that Indians have aboriginal rights.

The same year the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs was formed in opposition to the White Paper and to fight for land claims.

The Nishga case went to the Supreme Court of Canada in the fall of 1971, and Berger in effect asked the court to overrule the federal position on aboriginal rights by recognizing the Nishga claim.

A 4-3 decision against the Nishgas was handed down in January 1973, with three judges on either side and the seventh judge voting against the Indians on a technicality.

Despite the Nishga decision, 1973 was an important year for Indian land claims in Canada.

On Aug. 8, federal Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien announced a change in federal policy — Ottawa was now ready to negotiate to settle aboriginal title claims.

"The government has been fully aware that the claims are not only for money and land, but involve the loss of a way of life," he said.

"Any settlement, therefore, must contribute positively to a lasting solution to cultural, social and economic problems that for too long have kept the Indian and Inuit (Eskimo) people in a disadvantaged position with the larger Canadian society."

Despite Chretien's declaration, no talks have begun between Ottawa and B.C. Indians.

The B.C. government, being the body that controls land and resources, must also take part, say the Indians and the federal government. This seems to be the hangup.

The Indians feel the Barrett government has been stalling because it doesn't want to get stuck paying part of the cost of a land claims settlement.

Provincial government spokesmen say the issue is basically a federal one, and they want Ottawa to state its position very clearly before they get involved.

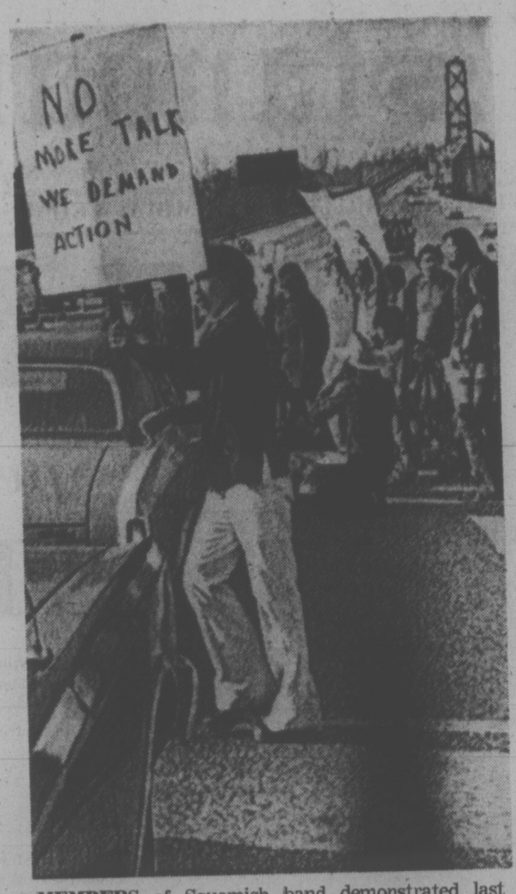
Sanders says B.C. Indians are not looking for a quick cash settlement of their claim, like the $900 million plus 40 million acres of land given native people in Alaska, or the $150 million given Indians in the area of the massive James Bay hydro power project in northwestern Quebec.

B.C. Indians will be asking for cash, although they won't say how much. And they'll ask for more land than they have now.

But they'll also be demanding a guaranteed stake in the provincial economy from which they are now excluded, Sanders says.

This means a new foothold in the fishing industry and in logging, he says. It means rectifying the land distribution system that gave all the water rights to the white ranchers and none to the reserves.

"You really have to undo the past," says Sanders.



MEMBERS of Squamish band demonstrated last month on approaches to Lions Gate Bridge to support their claim to ownership of land on which bridge supports stand.

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

In Canadian political life there is a great fondness for camouflaging details of salary and expenses — a practice indulged in (you will be astounded to learn) by the same government that insisted on uniform packaging and unit pricing so that the supermarket shopper would know what he was getting.

One of the devices of camouflage is the tax-free portion of salary. We have argued against this, not merely on the grounds that it obscured the elector's view of what the politician was being paid, but that it sheltered the politician from the full realities of taxation — an awareness we consider necessary.

But let that pass for the moment. Good or bad, the idea of tax-free income is supposed to be the assistance of the elected representative with the expenses of conducting public business. We were certainly not led to believe otherwise when the arrangement cropped up at the municipal level. Members of Metro Council, for example, take a third of their salary in a tax-free chunk, presumably intended to cushion them against the impact of occasional expenses. Not air-fare to some distant convention, of course — there are other arrangements for that sort of thing — but — perhaps for the occasional meal during a late, recessed, meeting.

If is very confusing when the chief beneficiaries of this plan start showing up with expense vouchers for meals. They have their cake and eat it — and ask us to pay for it twice! Some new thinking is called for, and we believe it is to hand.

The revolutionary notion that expenses should actually relate to money expended has been advanced by City Council's six-member Reform Caucus. If will be regarded with horror by most politicians, we fear, since they generally seem to be of the opinion that any unspent expense allowance may safely be pocketed.

The caucus suggested to the executive committee that instead of receiving a $6,000 tax-free expense allowance, aldermen would receive up to $7,200 for which receipts would be required. They would not be permitted to regard the unspent portion as salary.

It's a fine idea, as applicable to other levels of government as in the City of Toronto. Adoption of the system in Ottawa might take quite a lot of the sting out of the criticism — almost universal — of the pay raise our members of Parliament have planned for themselves.

Stanley Knowles (NDP, Winnipeg North Centre), by temporarily diverting the members' progress toward their objective, gave them a day or two to consider optional extras.

At Expense of Language . . .

By MICHAEL BALLANTYNE
Montreal Star

As I was saying before my last paragraph crumbled beneath the strain of subordinate clauses . . . The English language needs all the support it can get. Enemies and careless friends are everywhere.

Leafing through an educational journal the other day, I stumbled over this curious sentence:

"Professor David Martin interprets the contemporary student milieu in terms of the paradoxical death of the rational, self-determinist humanist ethic, killed by a counter-humanism of expressionist naturalism and of the paradoxical death of conventional religiosity, which has given way to an equally religious mysticism."

Is it any wonder that so many students are confused, that they feel themselves treated like so much computer-fodder? I have given a British quotation, here is an American:

"We cannot merely treat the symptoms of the disease of sexism in our society, but the cause . . . Part of the cause is learned institutionalized behavior through the socialization process." That last sentence should have the same effect upon educated nerve-ends as the sound of fingernails on a blackboard.

If such people succeed in eradicating sexism, or any other unworthy contemporary prejudice, it may well be at the expense of language. What the foe of sexism really meant to say (I think) was that the attitude is absorbed by school children at play. Today, alas, too many people seem to regard obscurity as a mark of breeding. Communication is therefore muffled by jargon; sense flies out the window — or defenestrates, if anyone prefers.

Where, then, to locate Spenser's "wells of English undefyled?" Not, to be sure, in the pages of the daily newspaper. There, we look primarily for information, accurately presented. If that essential transmission can be effected with a minimum of infelicity, so much the better. There is a danger that the rage for "investigative reporting," however admirable it may be in other respects, will discourage the cultivation of style.

Seymour Hersh, a New York Times reporter who is regarded by many as the brightest star in the investigation business, has trouble "coming in under 5,000 words." This poses a problem, of course, for the individual newspaper which must find the elbow-room; it also poses a problem for the reader — the general reader, as distinct from the reporter's peers.

★ ★ ★

This morsel of news, incidentally, was obtained from a two-part Rolling Stone interview with Mr. Hersh, by itself an example of the current craze for deep-dish journalism. The patient, accumulation of detail in order to build a solid superstructure for a complicated story is a useful undertaking; the challenge will be to give it grace and flavor.

I realize that the tape-recorder is now as necessary to the journalist as the pacemaker is to the heart patient, but so many times the transcribed results are shapeless and leaden. They remind me of painting by numbers, or a chunky stew full of protein but almost entirely lacking in flavor.

The most consistently enlightening and entertaining interviewer I have ever encountered is Terry Coleman, who used to write a regular column for The Guardian of Manchester. Mr. Coleman had some difficulty coming in over 2,000 words, but having read the printed results of his conversations with a wide range of public figures, one had the palpable feeling of having been present at the original interviews. Mr. Coleman's skill lay in telling us everything we needed to know about his subject and telling us in so artful a fashion that the experience was immediate and personal.

This empathy was achieved without the aid of a recording device and with great literary skill. Mr. Coleman's pieces were pungent distillations of character which no additional weight of data could have improved. I am grateful for the Colemans of this business just as I dread all the others buzzing, clicking and whirring their way into print.

Still, one should avoid solemnity at all cost. Considering the fact that, at a conservative estimate, this newspaper produces upwards of 140,000 words a day, six days a week, one should learn to tolerate the stray solecism and the occasional neologism. After all, how often does an unexpected chuckle come along? Recently, for example, our weather summary gave readers this jewel: "How do you tell a died-in-the-wool baseball fan . . . he'll have to take an umbrella to the game?"

No doubt with the same pained sympathy you tell somebody how to spell.

Mortgage Plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposal for a mortgage futures market on the Chicago Board of Trade might protect United States mortgage lenders and builders against changes in loan rates, says exchange president Warren Lebeck. He told a meeting of the Commodity Traders Association of Southern California that exchange members will vote in about two weeks on a basic futures contract drawn up by the exchange. The proposed contract would deliver mortgage-backed certificates, guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association. Trading would be quoted in terms of the price for $100 in each certificate, similar to the way bonds are priced in the bond market. Each certificate will have a fixed percentage yield, similar to the coupon rate on a bond.

House Prices Rise Fastest On Prairies

MONTREAL (CP) — During the past year, house prices in Canada have increased most dramatically in Saskatchewan and Alberta, according to the Royal Trust Co.

Since April 1974, house prices have risen by 39 per cent in Regina, 22 per cent Saskatoon and by 12 per cent to 15 per cent in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge, Alta.

Although the actual cost of the same house in Vancouver od Toronto exceeds that of most Prairie cities, prices in British Columbia and Ontario have not risen at the same rate.

Bob Bower, manager of real estate services for Royal Trust, said in an interview that a huge demand for houses in Saskatchewan and Alberta forced the prices up.

Calgary and Edmonton are the two most active transfer points for company executives in Canada, he said. This movement of company officials creates an active market.

In Calgary, a home selling for $48,000 last month, cost $44,000 last December and $42,000 in April, 1974.

In Regina, that same house now costs $46,000 compared with $43,000 last December and $33,000 in April, 1974.

The most expensive city in which to buy that house is in Vancouver, where the cost is $73,000.

Joint Projects

KHARTOUM (AP) — Sudan and Iraq will engage in joint projects in Sudan involving more than $300 million, an Iraqi envoy was quoted as saying Monday. The Sudanese government newspaper El-Sahafa reported that the projects that would be implemented over about two years included two textile factories, an iron ore mine on the Red Sea, oil seed crops and an oilseed mill, a sugar factory, and cattle ranching for the export of meat to Iraq.

Surplus of Salesmen, Local Realtor Claims

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Like most areas of British Columbia, Victoria has more real estate salesmen than it needs, says Jim Tyler, the newly-elected president of the B.C. Society of Real Estate Salesmen.

Tyler, who works for D. F. Hanley Agencies Ltd., said there are 720 licenced salesmen in the Victoria area when there should only be about half that number.

One of the major aims of the society during 1975 will be to encourage higher standards of training for salesmen and to reduce the number of part-time salesmen.

By regulations of the real estate industry, no one can be a salesman if he is employed in any other line of work at the same time.

But there is no regulation that says he has to put in a full day's work selling real estate.

Many salesmen are part-timers: housewives or retired or semi-retired people.

"This is a potential problem area," Tyler said.

"To be a good real estate salesman, you have to keep up with the latest regulations and laws relating to the industry. Part-time salesmen sometimes have difficulty keeping up with changes in regulations and this could cause problems for the client.

"The solution would be to phase out the part-timers so that eventually all salesmen would be working on a full-time basis," he said.

In addition, educational requirements should be made more stringent, he said.

At the present time, all salesmen must take a pre-licencing course before they can join a real estate firm. In addition, some real estate boards insist upon a post-licencing course as well. This varies across the province.

"We (the salesmen) want to make this post-licencing course mandatory everywhere in B.C.," Tyler said.

And there should be additional courses at year's end when each salesman's licence comes up for its annual reneal, he said.

"We want to do everything possible to upgrade the standards in the industry."

The society's basic aim is to encourage a professional approach to real estate selling and this could best be achieved by having well-trained full-time salesmen.

The society is hoping to influence the provincial government's inquiry into the real estate industry along these lines.

Tyler said he has been encouraged by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson's statement that he is interested in hearing all viewpoints on housing matters and the society as hoping to receive an invitation to next month's federal-provincial-municipal conference on housing, called by Nicolson.

The B.C. Society of Real Estate Salesmen represents about half the 7,300 salesmen in the province. The other half are in the Greater Vancouver area and are not in the provincial association.

Life Begins At Port

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Elderly humans like to say life begins at age 40 but Earl Scharf, manager of the Churchill seaport, suggests that old saying could also refer to the port.

"This port is over the 40 year mark and I think saying life begins at 40 is going to hold true in this case," Scharf said in an interview.

Backing up his statements are indications that the 1974 shipping season will be a promising one. Scharf said the shipping season should see sulphur cargoes doubled, grain shipments at an average level and the Arctic supply route to the Northwest Territories' Keewatin communities re-opened.

Bulk shipments of sulphur are expected to total about 100,000 tons, double last year's 50,000 tons when the product was handled for the first time here.

"There seems to be a good world market for sulphur," Scharf said. "For a long time sulphur was considered just a by-product of the oil industry. Now it is really coming into its own."

Equal Rates On Soybeans Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court has upheld an Interstate Commerce Commission order requiring railroads to equalize rates on shipment of soybeans from Central Illinois to Chicago and to Gulf ports for export.

The court affirmed a decision of a three-judge federal court upholding the commission's order.

The 1973 ICC order requires the railroads to base their export soybean rates both for shipments to the Gulf and for shipments to Chicago on the same percentage of first-class rates.

Chicago is 150 to 200 miles from the principal Illinois soybean growing areas. New Orleans is 600 to 700 miles away from them.

PRICE WAR PRESSING

TORONTO (CP) — A price war in stock-brokerage commissions which started in the United States when the U.S. industry abandoned a minimum commission rate May 1 has created pressures for four Canadian investment firms.

They are Nesbitt Thomson and Co. Ltd. of Montreal, a direct member of the New York Stock Exchange, and Toronto-based Wood Gundy Ltd., Burns Bros. and Denton Ltd. and Cochran Murray and Wisener Ltd., all members in New York through subsidiaries.

Canadian financial institutions are being offered discounts ranging between eight and 15 per cent on business in shares of Canadian companies traded on U.S. exchanges.

At the same time, in order to stay competitive, some Canadian brokers are offering commission discounts ranging up to 25 per cent on trades executed in the U.S.

The pace in discounting is being set by Cochran Murray and Wisener. The firm has a discount schedule related to commission dollars under the former U.S. feesl.

The discounts range from five per cent from $330 to $500 of commission, up to 25 per cent on $2,000 and more.

R. A. Wisener, a member of the firm, said he advocates completely scrapping fixed rates.

On the other hand, J. B. Aune, a director of Nesbitt Thomson, said the firm will not cut commissions on trading in shares of Canadian companies.

Government Steps In On Phone Rate Hike

B.C. TEL PLANS $250M EXPANSION

B.C. Tel plans to spend $250 million in expansion projects next year, including up to $22 million in the Victoria area, Vancouver Island division manager Bob Henderson said Tuesday.

This is in addition to its $255 million expansion program this year, involving $17.5 million worth of work in Victoria.

"How much of our 1976 program we can carry out will depend upon the availability of funds. If the money isn't there, we may have to scale down our 1976 program" he said.

The money would have to be borrowed or raised internally through a rate increase, or a combination of both, he said.

The 1976 work in Victoria would include increasing the number of long distance circuits between Victoria and other B.C. points, to reduce the occasions when all long distance circuits are busy.

The 1976 program also would include completion of the electronic exchange in the new Yates headquarters of B.C. Tel. The exchange, scheduled to open July 6, would put 70,000 subscribers with "38" prefixes on faster automatic equipment similar to that in operation in Oak Bay.

Spending this year also includes installation of new pay phones around the city in hopes of preventing vandal attacks on the exposed telphones.

The new phones will be more difficult to jam because they are designed to reject paper clips and slugs which some people put into the phones to try to make them work, but usually just put the phone of out order, Henderson said.

Henderson said B.C. Tel encountered a shortage of capital when revenues declined and costs escalated during the last half of 1974. The company was expecting net income of well over $6 per share as late as mid-year but by year's end it turned out to be only $5.57 per share.

The provincial government Tuesday filed a formal notice of intervention against an application to the Canadian Transport Commission by B.C. Tel for a 20-per cent rate increase.

The move was announced by Transport Minister Bob Strachan.

Strachan also said the CTC should not consider a 10-per cent interim increase that B.C. Tel wants to take effect July 1.

Ben Beneteau, B.C. Tel president, told the hearing that the main reason for the application was to avoid curtailing the company's 1975 construction program as a result of its deteriorating financial position.

He said the company had hoped its application for a 20-per-cent rate increase would have been granted and in effect by mid-year.

Beneteau said B.C. Tel is asking for a temporary stopgap increase of half the requested level — to take effect July 1 — and continue until a decision is reached on the regular rate application.

He said that if the interim increase is not granted, B.C. Tel would have to reduce its 1975 construction program by at least $50 million. This would mean a phased layoff of about 800 employees, and failure to make necessary long-term commitments for 1976 construction could mean an additional 1,700 layoffs.

Postmaster Funeral Held Today

The funeral for Victoria Postmaster James Deans, who died Saturday in Victoria General Hospital, was held today at McCall Bros. funeral home.

Deans, 59, had been at the Victoria post office since 1968.

Letter carriers in Victoria were given permission to work through their lunch hour to finish deliveries in time to attend the funeral.

Deans was born in Kilwinning, Scotland, and began his post office career in Trail in 1937. He served in the Postal Corps in the Second World War from 1942-46. He was postmaster in Courtenay, and area superintendent in Nanaimo, New Westminster Prince George before coming to Victoria.

He is survived by his wife, Lorine, a son, Scott, of Edmonton; his mother, Mrs. J. Deans, a sister, Mrs. Agnes Groutage, and a brother, Russell, all of Castlegar; and a sister, Mrs. Beth Jones, of Vancouver.

The family has asked that donations, in lieu of flowers, be made to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Takeover Discussed

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuter) — Foreign ministers from countries of the Association of Southeast Asia Nations held an unofficial meeting today to discuss the political situation in the region following Communist takeovers in Indochina.

Victim Wasn't Racing—Police

Central Saanich police have discounted the possibility 20-year-old Paul Charles Whillans, 1315 Gladstone, killed in a single car accident on West Saanich Road last Wednesday night was racing with another car at the time.

A police spokesman said a Central Saanich resident reported he had been driving on Stelly's Cross Road when a car coming down West Saanich almost put him in the ditch. The description of the car was the same as that driven by Whillans.

Police investigated the possibility of a drag race after a woman said she saw two cars racing on nearby Wallace Drive minutes before the fatal mishap.

However, police have concluded two other cars were involved in that incident.

A coroner's inquiry is expected to be held into Whillans' death.

Pollen Defers Air West Stand

Mayor Peter Pollen's promised opposition to an Air West Airlines bid for Seattle seaplane service turned to qualified approval at a transport commission hearing Tuesday.

He told the air transport committee the Air West application for Victoria Harbor to downtown Seattle should be deferred while conflict of Victoria harbor use is being examined. Pollen also was concerned about noise levels and quality of the environment in that area, grounds on which he said earlier he would oppose the bid.

The committee heard witnesses for and against the airline application to institute twice-daily round trips from the Inner Harbor to Lake Union, using 18-passenger Twin Otter turboprop aircraft for the 70-mile route which can be flown in 35 minutes.

A decision will be made at a later date in Ottawa, where commissioners will consider the evidence.

Pacific Western Airlines, operator of the existing air service between Patricia Bay airport and Seattle-Tacoma airport on a twice-a-day basis, opposes the Air West submission.

PWA counsel Lawrence Moseley asked Pollen about the existing service, and the mayor described air passenger accommodations by both P W A and Air Canada as "disastrous."

He favored short-takeof landing strips in Victoria and Vancouver over seaplane service.

The mayor appreciated the interest in broadening Victoria air passenger service shown by Air West compared to the major carriers.

Toilets Still Unfair . . .

Daisy Webster (NDP-Vancouver South) complained it did not end discrimination against women in public toilets.

Pat Jordan (SC-North Okanagan) complained it will mean "spouse" will replace the "time-hallowed terms of wife and husband."

And Mines Minister Leo Nimsick complained that women "are not physically built the same as men" and he didn't want his wife going down in a mine.

But despite their high-level concerns, MLAs gave second reading approval in principle Tuesday to the Status of Men and Women Amendment Act.

The act amends 27 pieces of legislation which contain slurs against women. It also replaces the words husband and wife in several bills and replaces them with "spouse."

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said the bill is "a measure for sexual equality before the law . . . and eliminates many of the insults to women contained in the statutes."

Most MLAs commended the government for bringing in the amendments but urged it not to stop with word changes.

Webster said she hoped the government would extend the principle to the bill to public washrooms where women have to pay to use toilets.

"I don't think men have to," she said.

It's even worse for women when they have young children to take care of, she said, because when they go out they often have to use a public washroom.

Jordan said she lamented the passage of the terms husband and wife.

At a cocktail party or public meeting, she said, men and women will have to introduce their spouse rather than their husband or wife.

It will mean a loss of individual identity, she said.

Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) said the bill is important because it removes roadblocks against women and the small annoyances which plagu efemales.

But Nimsick said he is not happy with the sections of the bill which would allow women to work underground without special permission of the department of mines.

"I wouldn't appreciate my wife going down in the mines," he said, adding that much of the protective legislation on the books was brought in to end the hardships women used to face when they worked in the mines.

The minister was heckled and mocked during his remarks but received a great round of applause when he closed with remarks by pointing out that women are built differently than men.

The bill still faces clause by clause examination in third reading.

Researcher On Hopkins Due Home

Florence Riddle of 2124 Ferndale is expected back in Victoria at the end of June after doing research in England into English poet Gerard Manley Hopkins.

Riddle received a Canada Council grant for the study of the theological background of Hopkins' poetry in order to assess the modernity of his use of Christian traditions in his work.

Hopkins, who was a Jesuit priest, died in 1889, nearly 30 years before the first collection of his poems was published.

A woman whose father was a cousin to Hopkins, Miss E. M. Hopkins, now lives on Salt Spring Island and formerly lived in Victoria.

Nurses Remain Out

Federally-employed nurses at HMC Dockyard and at several Indian health clinics on Vancouver Island will be off work at least until the end of the week, a union official said Tuesday.

The 10 Vancouver Island nurses, members of the Professional Institute of Public Service of Canada, left their jobs Monday morning along with fedeal nurses across the country. The strike is to protest a conciliation board report which leaves the nurses between $800 and $1,500 a year behind their provincial counterparts.

The nurses are still voting on the conciliation report but it is expected to be rejected, the nurses regional representative Joseph Clare said Tuesday.

The nurses have been in a legal strike position since May 3.

The two nurses in the Dockyard clinic perform mainly routine medical check-ups, a CFB Esquimalt spokesman said. The base still has first aid services available and no critical services are affected, the spokesman said.

Clare said there are several part-time nurses at the base hospital "but they consider themselves essential and are not on strike," he said.

The Indian public health clinics affected by the walkout are in Duncan, Port Hardy, Tofino and Alert Bay. The clinics are run by the medical services branch of the federal health and welfare department. A branch spokesman said today that support staff in the clinic are carrying out the urgent work normally done by the nurses.

Double Standard Charged on Act

A shower of minor legislation was given approval in principle in the legislature Tuesday, sparking little debate from the opposition benches.

The Securities Amendment Act, which makes insider trading a criminal offence and subject to a fine of up to $2,000 or one year in jail, was given second reading after brief argument from Don Phillips (South Peace).

The provincial government is continuing a double standard, he said, because the legislation is not specifically aimed at crown corporation dealings on the stock exchange.

"The provincial government is the biggest user of the stock market in B.C., and what's good for one should be good for all," he said.

Also approved in principle were:

—The Police Amendment Act which allows for processing of citizens' complaints on police action, and provides for open hearings of grievances.

—The Mortgages Brokers Amendment Act, which provides for appeal by real estate firms to the corporate and finance services commission;

—The Trade Practices Amendment Act, allowing consumers an avenue of redress in the courts after unfair sales practices by pyramid organizations;

—The Community Care Facilities Licensing Amendement Act which would establish two separate boards responsible for adult and child facilities and prohibit mandatory donations as a condition of accommodation for community care facilities.

Also approved in principle is the Medical Services Amendment Act, housekeeping legislation which includes pertinent premium assistance regulations.

THE PRIZE: CALORIES

Beauty is in the pie of the beholder when LOVE seeks the most gorgeous glutton and the pie is 24-carat icecream.

The Loyal Order of Victoria Enthusiasts will follow the Victoria Day parade with an old fashioned icecream eating contest Monday afternoon in the 600 block of Yates.

The one who gorges himself-herself to the teeth quicker than anyone else in one of three categories gets to keep all the calories.

Actually, the prizes number in the hundreds.

For newspaper street vendors all the Times hawkers are entered — first prize will be 150 cones; second prize 100 cones, third 50, fourth 20 and fifth 10 — all jumbo size. And during the spectacle itself, contestants will be able to swill themselves with all the soft drinks they can manage, to keep their pipes from freezing.

For businessmen the prize is a dinner for two — plus drinks — and for newspaper and broadcast reporters entering the third category, the prize will be a challenge bowl (to throw up in?) where the winner's name will be engraved to entice future competitors.

Contestants are invited to pull up their chins at 2:30 p.m. near Broad Street.

Young Says He's Running

Victoria Ald. Mike Young today announced that he will be a candidate for the city's mayoralty in November, "whether or not" Mayor Peter Pollen steps down after four years in the position.

Pollen indicated several months ago, and has since repeated on several occasions, that he has no intention of seeking re-election.

Young, a lawyer now in his fourth year as an alderman, said his decision was reached after three or four months of assessing the situation.

"I intend to be a serious candidate for mayor regardless of who runs. Having made the decision, it's not a case of waiting for the wind to blow in the right direction," he said.

His candidacy does not reflect dissatisfaction with Pollen's leadership, he stressed, nor with the general direction taken by council over the past four years. "But obviously individuals have a different method of approaching things."

Young forsees one of the major problems facing council is the "need to cut our budgetary cloth to suit our revenue position."

The strike-lockout gave senior staff a unique opportunity to assess all the city's operating methods and procedures, and the review indicated the need for many changes both to improve genaral efficiency and employer-employee relations.

Another task will be to face the problems directly caused by the provincial government, "probably the biggest threat to the integrity of the city of Victoria that we have."

City Tourism Worth $137M

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A provincial government report shows the value of tourism to Victoria was about $137 million in 1974, about twice as high as local estimates, Victoria Visitors Information Centre president Terry Farmer said today.

"Our earlier estimate, which was little more than a guess based upon a spot check of local merchants, was that the tourist industry was worth between $60 million and $70 million to the Greater Victoria area," he said.

The government report, released this week, showed tourists spent $896 million in British Columbia last year and 31 per cent of this was spent on Vancouver Island. About half the Vancouver Island spending was in the Greater Victoria area.

"This report shows that tourism is far more important to Victoria than even we in the tourist industry thought. It also demonstrates the opportunity for growth," Farmer said.

The report shows that 57 per cent of the $137 million was spent in the summer months.

With a conference centre and an energetic off-season tourist promotion campaign, this total spending could be increased to $200 million within two or three years, Farmer said.

Convention delegates spend three times as much as the average tourist and would help spread the flow of visitors over the whole year.

The bulk of tourist promotion should centre on the off-season, although the summer period would not be ignored. The visitors' centre on the Causeway tries to get summer visitors to stay longer than the average 2.5 days.

Farmer said he was delighted to receive the provincial government report, prepared by the department of travel, because it eliminated a lot of guesswork about the value of the industry to this city.

"In our own estimates, we had tried to be as cautious as possible because we didn't want to overstate the situation."

The report shows British Columbia had 7.2 million tourists in 1974. Of the $869 million spent in the province, $300 million was spent by British Columbians touring their own province and the remaining $569 million was spent by non-residents of B.C.

Of the $569 million, 57 per cent was spent by Americans and 40 per cent by Canadians from other provinces. The other 3 per cent includes visitors from overseas.

Meanwhile, about 120 Victoria hospitality workers toured local attractions today in a program sponsored by the visitor centre.

Two double-decker busloads of waitresses, desk clerks and other employees went on the tour.

It is an annual program to give Victorian workers a first-hand look at attractions so they can answer questions from tourists.

17.58% Tax Hike Set for Oak Bay

Oak Bay's total tax rate will climb 17.58 per cent this year to finance municipal and school expenditures of $7.3 million.

Council completed deliberations Tuesday night on its portion of the budget, chopping $213,125 from a provisional budget, or 3.6 mills.

This left a municipal (general and debt) increase of 6.21 mills over last year, or 13.3 per cent.

The general municipal mill rate this year will be 45.46 compared with 42.05 last year while debt charges will rise to 7.43 mills from 4.63 mills, reflecting land purchases and the Oak Bay Recreation Centre.

Schools, over which council has no control, will cost 41.36 mills this year compared with 35.22 mills last year.

The total mill rate, including general, debt, schools, hospitals and the regional district, will be 99.26 compared with 84.428 last year.

The total budget of $7,398,856 compares with actual total expenditures last year of $6,083,457.

Council gave three readings to the budget and tax levy bylaws Tuesday night and final adoption will be given tonight.

Council, which slashed garbage collection frequency Monday to once every three weeks instead of once a week in an economy move, decided the week starting May 26 will be Cleanup Week when all kinds of junk except large, heavy objects will be picked up.

Although garbage will only be picked up once every three weeks, residents can dump extra garbage on their own by taking it in plastic bags to the municipal yard on Elgin Street any weekday, including evenings, but not weekends.

It was agreed Tuesday night to ease burning restrictions so incinterators may be used at any time except Saturday afternoons, Sundays and within one hour of sunset. Previously, incinerator burning was prohibited during most daylight hours.

EX-STUDENT SUES TEACHER

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An 18-year-old former student launched a B.C. Supreme Court action Tuesday claiming negligence and damages over a power saw injury which severed one finger of his left hand and parts of other fingers.

Richard Andrew Legg is suing his former woodwork teacher, Colin John Quail, Mount Doug principal John Jerome Lowther and school district 61.

Legg, represented by Ian Izard, told Mr. Justice Samuel Toy he was cutting a piece of wood on a table saw in Quail's woodwork class Dec. 11, 1972.

He said he was pushing the wood through the saw with a stick "and something slipped."

He admitted that guards for the saw were folded underneath the table.

Asked if the guards were up on the table if they would protected his hand, he replied, "Yes, my hand would have hit the guard instead of the blade."

He said he had used the table saw before without guards, that other students did this "quite often" and Quail had spoken to him earlier in the day when the guards were folded away and he "didn't tell me to use the guards."

Legg said he is working as a dishwasher but hadn't made up his mind what kind of future job he would like.

He also admitted he had an accident while operating a drill press in class when a piece of wood flew off.

A fellow-student of Legg's, Michael Christie, told court "I do believe Quail said the safety guards should be up" immediately after the accident.

Use of the guards depended on different students — sometimes they were used and sometimes not. He admitted it was dangerous "if you are not very careful" to operate the saw without guards.

He said he witnessed the saw being used with the guards down while Quail was present.

Asked if the students were well-behaved, he said "not really. Everyone was fooling around quite a bit." Asked if Quail had control of the class, he said "yes and no."

However, Christie said every student was told to use the guards on the table saw.

Another former student, Brian Marshall, said the use of guards was "about 50-50." But Quail had told students to use the guards. There had been about three weeks of instruction on various equipment at the start of the semester.

Dr. Wiechman Billung-Meyer, who treated Legg's injury, told court the youth has a weaker grip, is unable to do certain things and suffers from hyper-sensitivity.

Competition in normal gainful employment would be difficult including fine finger work, heavy lifting and work which involves extremes in temperature, especially cold.

NIP-Picking Session Reviews Centre Plans

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A three-hour N.I.P.-picking meeting of Victoria city council on Tuesday was almost exclusively devoted to an agonizing — the only appropriate adjective — review of the community centres proposed for James Bay and Victoria West under the Neighborhood Improvement Program.

At one stage in the unrelieved tedium of indecision, the obviously frustrated Mayor Peter Pollen termed the whole thing a "swamp."

But, unable to find solid ground amidst the enveloping ooze, council could only decide to make no decision at all on the controversial community centres — until the community associations themselves come up with more specific proposals on the size, nature and operation of the buildings.

Meanwhile, the caucus group gave N.I.P. committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier authority to proceed with implementing all other expenditure proposals listed in the $2 million program approved last November.

Glazier said negotiations have begun on the purchase of the Cathedral School as an activity centre for the James Bay New Horizons group of senior citizens, and land is being accumulated for low-cost housing.

It was Ald. Sam Bawlf who framed the motion that ended the rambling discussion on the community centre aspect:

"Let's say that we continue to endorse the items on the shopping list including the provision of community centre facilities, but that at this time we are not persuaded of the specific proposals that have been made and we would like further refinement by the communities."

Pollen agreed. "Let's leave these two grandiose schemes until they shape down to something quite specific," he suggested.

Bawlf noted that community centres in Vancouver serve a population of 30,000 each, while Victoria is proposing to build a costly centre for only 9,000 residents of James Bay.

"You are going to have to accept right now that there will have to be at least half a dozen more such facilities in Victoria by virtue of this precedent," he warned.

The mayor wondered aloud whether council had its priorities in order, endlessly "fiddling around" with arguments on the community centre proposals when it should be devoting its time and energies to tackling the housing crisis. But all council members were aware of the "strident cries" of certain segments of the community, he conceded.

Several members expressed concern that the city might become enmeshed in the James Bay Community Project "experiment" — one of four provincial projects for the integration of health, education, recreation and social services — once a community centre is actually in operation.

Ald. Mike Young said a project report refers to the community centre in a disturbingly lavish concept which embraces day-care centre, nature centre, home-living centre, facilities for arts and crafts, drama, dance and music, cafeteria-lounge and "sauna and steam bath."

Disbelieving laughter greeted the last item, although planning director Geoff Greenhalgh pointed out that council should not interpret that list as having any relevance to the N.I.P. proposals.

Pollen admitted he has "a very, very strong bias" against the James Bay community resource board having any connection at all with the operation of a community centre in James Bay.

The group has no defined objectives, he said, and lacks any mandate from the community "other than self-proclaimed."

$800, Week Off Saanich Bonus

The 46 Saanich municipal employees who worked during the three-month lockout are to receive an $800 bonus and an extra week's holiday.

"The council felt the long hours worked by these people and the many other responsibilities they had to asssume during the lockout justified some recognition," Mayor Ed Lum said today.

He said the expenditure of $36,800 in bonuses was "very reasonable in view of the extra work they had to assume".

The action was criticised by Saanich employees' union president Jim Brett, Local 374 Canadian Union of Public Employees.

"The way we look at it, it's an incentive program for those who work during lockout confrontations. It's cheaper to provide these incentives than to negotiate," Brett said.

There is no consideration given to hours worked during the lockout, and in most cases the staff who remained on the job did no more than their normal day's work, Brett maintained.

He said pickets who served during the three-month lockout have a good idea of the hours put in by municipal exempt staff, and when emergency work was required a record of the time should have been kept so that pay could be made on an overtime basis, "as we must do."

Brett also observed the municipality appeared to be preparing for the lockout last fall when it was granted an application for more exempt staff than usual, obtaining the consent of the Labor Relations Board to have 10 per cent of the employees exempt from union membership.

The previous ratio was between 6 and 8 per cent of the staff, according to Brett, who said the union is appealing the LRB decision with support from other locals.

SATURDAY MAIL

There will be normal holiday services Saturday, Victoria Day weekend for street letter box collections, mail receipts and dispatches, and special delivery, acting postmaster M. F. Glover said.

The lock box lobby will also remain open, but there will be no letter carrier or rural mail deliveries or wicket services.

FIREMEN GIVEN 29%

The 160 federal government firefighters in the Victoria area will receive a 29 per cent pay raise over the next two years, under a contract settled by binding arbitration.

The firefighters, employed at HMC Dockyard and Victoria International Airport, will receive a pay increase of 17 per cent in the first year and 12 per cent in the second, under the agreement signed by the Public Service Alliance of Canada and the federal Treasury Board, PSAC regional representative Tom Dalzell said.

The salary for a level one firefighter goes from $11,262 a year under the previous contract which expired March 31, to $13,177 a year under the new contract.

Dalzell said he expected the firefighters were generally happy with the settlement, but they still want to have regional, rather than national rates. Dalzell said the new agreement still leaves Victoria federal firefighters about $300 a year behind city firefighters, but in Newfoundland, the national rate puts the federal employees about $3,000 a year higher than local firemen.

There are about 1,400 federal firefighters in Canada.

The contract proposals were submitted to binding arbitration in April after talks between the sides broke down.

Meanwhile, the more than 3,000 federal government clerical workers in the Victoria area are voting on methods of contract settlement, Dalzell said.

Currently, the PSAC clerical workers do not have the right to strike as they had voted previously to submit contract disputes to binding arbitration, the same way the firefighters settled.

But the clerical workers, which make up the largest PSAC component in the country, with 44,000 members, can vote to opt for conciliation procedures to settle a dispute.

Part of the conciliation procedure is the right to strike.

Dalzell said he expected the vote to be completed my mid-June.

The contract for clerical workers expires in November.

He Retired . . . Then Got Busy

Capt. Tyson: Back in harness

Now Harry Tyson wasn't your usual type of guy in retirement.

He was not the kind who pottered around, longing to be back at work. Not Harry. He was very contented, keeping busy with his 13 cattle and fruit trees on his "bit of a farm" in Saanich.

Behind him were 50 long years (as either an employee or consultant) with the maritime arm of Canadian Pacific Railway. When he stepped into retirement in June, 1973, he was ending 10 years as manager of marine operations.

Now, despite having "plenty to do" with all those cattle and fruit trees, Harry Tyson is back behind a desk as general manager of the British Columbia Steamship Company (1975) Ltd., a new company formed to run the provincially-owned Princess Marguerite.

Modesty prevents the 64-year-old Tyson from admitting he was approached with the offer of a job and plucked from retirement. But he was. Instead, he says that his knowledge of what was required to set up the manning of the Marguerite and the operation of the company led to his being chosen.

He was, of course, the logical choice. CPR operated the Princess Marguerite on a ferry run from Victoria to Seattle and back (and intermittently to Port Angeles), a service started in 1901.

"Mr. Tyson was approached and offered the job," admits Norman Pearson, Associate Deputy Minister of Lands. "And he agreed to come out of retirement and help us out."

Harry says he couldn't resist it.

"I'm keenly interested in the Princess Marguerite," he says, "but one of the most important factors is that she's a connecting link between B.C. and the State of Washington."

That link was snapped last September when CPR announced it was suspending the service because of financial losses. The Marguerite was then purchased by the B.C. government and Resources Minister Bob Williams has announced the first sailing will be June 1.

Sailing times (until the end of September) will be 8:30 a.m. daily out of Seattle and 5:30 p.m. daily out of Victoria. Fares haven't been finalized yet but they're expected to be "about the same" as under the CPR. That means $10 a person one way and another $10 for a car. But, of course, there isn't much room for cars. There was for Seattle people, a one-day excursion fare of $14 return and that's expected to be about the same, too.

From June 6 to Sept. 7, there will also be "in between sailings" each day from Victoria to Port Angeles and back, leaving here at 1:30 p.m. and getting back at 4:30.

For the passengers, things are expected to be brighter and better. There will be improved seating, new rest rooms, bars and later even maybe live entertainment. The rest rooms will provide proper access for passengers in wheelchairs and there's a possibility there will be special fares for senior citizens, wheel chair passengers and blind people.

And there will be those colors!

Already, the thought of a red, white and blue ship with a Union Jack on the funnel has bristled the hairs of a few British traditionalists. But Tyson says they shouldn't worry.

"When people have an opportunity to see the ship, they will be very impressed, both with the decor and color," he says. "Basically the colors have been retained."

Things are hectic right now in Harry Tyson's office. A huge pile of letters lies on his desk — letters from all over B.C., Alberta and from the United States, asking about the Princess Marguerite and the new service.

"Look, here's one from Grand Prairie, Alta., one from Laguna Beach in California, another from Anchorage in Alaska and one from Cleveland, Ohio," says Harry. "Why, there's even one from New York, one from Provo, Utah, another from Marshall in Texas and, of course, many from Seattle and other parts of Washington."

And there are things like staffing — about 80 people are being signed on — and tarrifs, new payroll systems and completely new stationery.

"You're starting off from the ground up," points out Harry. And the phone rings and he answers it and it rings again. And out in the hallway, someone paces up and down, waiting to see him.

Harry Tyson is really busier now than he was before his retirement. This is no nine-to-five job.

"Even when I'm away from here, the amount of planning is enormous," he says. But you can tell, although he speaks fondly of fruit trees and of cattle, Harry wouldn't have it any other way.

"The ties between the State of Washington and B.C. have always been strong and the renewing of this service continues that strength," he says. "To have the government continue the service and for me to be a part of it is a big thrill.

"It's a challenge and I don't mind working . . . in fact, I love every minute of it." But if you mention his wife Millie, waiting out there in Saanich under the fruit trees, Harry grins broadly and admits:

"Well, yes she'd rather have me retired . . ."

Trouble Came Early for Islanders

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — New York Islanders fell behind quickly.

First, Kate Smith appeared and sang God Bless America. Anybody who cheers for Philadelphia Flyers will agree that it's worth bringing Miss Smith to the Spectrum, and management obviously agrees although it cost $10,000.

Then, the Flyers scored two goals in the first three minutes, one by Gary Dornhoefer after only 19 seconds.

Centre Rick MacLeish scored three others to give the Flyers a 4-1 win before 17,077 fans to advance the defending Stanley Cup champions to the National Hockey League playoff final starting here Thursday night against Buffalo Sabres.

The Flyers eliminated the Islanders 4-3 in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

"What can I say?" said Flyers captain Bobby Clarke. "We win when she sings. Maybe we should have her here all the time.

"We had to take the puck to them. We hadn't been doing it and it was hurting us. When we scored right off the bat, it loosened us up."

Miss Smith, called upon to sing when the Flyers appeared to need a little help, improved her 1974-75 record to six wins and no defeats. Her over-all record at Flyers home games is 43-3-1.

Her appearance sent the fans into an uproar. The Islanders apparently tried to share her luck, sending captain Ed Westfall to greet her with a kiss and flowers. Then, the other Islanders skated over to shake her hand.

However nothing went right for the Islanders. They were outshot 35-15, and except for goalie Glenn Resch, who stopped several difficult shots, the score might have doubled.

The loss ended the Islanders' come-from-behind habit. A win for the Islanders would have made them the only team in Stanley Cup history to win two consecutive series after losing the first three games.

They tied Toronto Maple Leafs' record when they came back to beat Pittsburgh Penguins in the last four games of the quarter-final. Toronto came back to win the last four against Detroit Red Wings in the 1942 final.

MacLeish, who finished first in Stanley Cup scoring last year with 13 goals and nine assists, said: "We played our system. We got on them early. Every shift we kept on pushing them."

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders said his club gave the Flyers what they wanted in the first period.

"They got the early lead and had momentum. I expected they would come out strong. I thought that if we could hold them at bay in the first period we might swing the momentum our way."

The Flyers pestered the Islanders from the opening whistle, forechecking and backchecking as they did in most games of the regular season and in last year's final when they defeated Boston Bruins.

MacLeish scored two of his goals—he now has 10 in the playoffs—on first-period powed plays, and added his third goal into an empty net at 18:52 of the final period when the Islanders pulled Resch for a brief spell in an attempt to get back into the game.

The 25-year-old centre from Lindsay, Ont., wound up scoring six goals and four assists in the semi-final series. He had four goals in the quarter-final against Toronto.

Dave Schultz, the NHL leader the last three seasons in penalty minutes, tied a career record for most penalty minutes in playoff action. He received a minor in the first period which gave him a career total of 260 minutes in 39 games through three playoff seasons. John Ferguson, former Montreal Canadiens scrapper, set the record in seven seasons and 85 playoff games.

Dornhoefer scored when Jim Watson took the puck from Westfall at centre ice and dumped it out to Dornhoefer who skated in for a long slapshot.

MacLeish scored his first goal at 2:27 of the first period on a Flyer power play, the first Philadelphia power play goal in 19 chances.

Jude Drouin scored the lone Islanders goal on a power play with the Flyers two men short.

The Islanders managed only four shots against Flyers goalie Bernie Parent in the first period. One of his best saves came on a close-in drive by Andre St. Laurent who had two other good chances later in the game.

The Flyers won the first three games of the series, 4-0, 5-4 and 1-0. The Islanders won the next three games 4-3, 5-1 and 2-1.

Before Tuesday's game the Islanders had faced and overcame elimination eight times. They came back against New York Rangers in the preliminary round and against Pittsburgh.

Kate Smith and the Flyers were too much.

'Happy Hour' Bash Stimulated Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — It was "the happy hour" that pulled the champion Philadelphia Flyers together for one monumental effort that won them a spot in the Stanley Cup final against Buffalo, says Flyer coach Fred Shero.

Relaxing in his cubby-hole office after the Flyers beat New York Islanders 4-1 and eliminated them in the National Hockey League best-of-seven final by a 4-3 margin, Shero told about the gathering of his players in an out-of-town hotel the night before the game.

"We had what we call a happy hour around five o'clock when you drink like hell as fast as you can because you're going to have a meeting in an hour."

This loosened up the players, Shero said. "They were not afraid to kid each other and also give each other hell. They were not afraid to embarass each other when they were having a few drinks. If they do this normally without drinking, they might punch somebody in the mouth."

Shero went over the game plans, changing his system a little. "We just opened up with two men (forechecking), instead of one, constantly, and put more pressure with the defencemen pinching in. I think it sort of surprised them."

The Flyer coach admitted he was wrong earlier in the series in not crediting the Islanders with being a better club.

"With a little luck they might have done it," said Shero. "I don't think the rest of the league realizes yet how good they are. Every game was tough, physically and emotionally."

Probably the saddest of all the Islanders was coach Al Arbour. "Naturally we're very, very disappointed," he said. "But we have to give credit to the Flyers. They outplayed us. Once they get the upper hand here, and they get a goal on you early, they're a tough club to come from behind on."

Arbour was critical of some of the penalties after the Flyers, expecially Bill Barber, made what he thought were deliberate "dives".

"I'll tell you one thing, some of those guys must be awful good divers in the summer time, because they get a lot of practice in the winter."

Denis Potvin of the Islanders, who got five minor penalties, said it was the first time he got that many in one game this season.

"But the Flyers deserved to win," Potvin said. "We couldn't get anything started. It as a matter of getting it going and they wouldn't let us."

Former All-America Star Lines Up with Pay 'n' Pak

Rivals but always welcome . . .

That's how Victoria Bates regard Seattle Pay 'N' Pak.

While no longer playing in the same men's fastball league with Bates, the classy Seattle squad may renew an old rivalry — possibly — in the Victoria Day Invitational tournament at Royal Athletic Park next weekend.

The teams that produced several memorable series in the now-defunct Northwest International League are among six teams entered in the double-knockout tournament.

North Vancouver Vikings, Vancouver Magicians and New Westminster Royal Towers — now competing in the Pacific Coast League with Victoria — and Spokane Blazers are the other entries.

Vikings and New Westminster will open play at 10 a.m. Saturday. Spokane, a team that performed in a professional league last year, will play Bates at 12 noon while Magicians and Seattle complete opening-round action at 2:20 p.m.

The two-day tournament will wind up Sunday afternoon.

Pay 'N' PaR is basically the same team that Victoria fans watched during the past two seasons — with four exceptions.

Veteran Dick Christiansen still heads the pitching staff but the team has added Dale Hammersmith, formerly with Seattle Petchels, and Fred Gardner, a promising youngster from Buffalo, N.Y.

Ron Omori, an infielder-outfielder, is another new addition but the big catch is Bill Stewart.

The former all-America star with teams at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and Aurora, Ill., has knocked two Pay 'N' Pak veterans out of familiar positions. Stewart has pushed Tom Wagner out of third spot in the batting order and has displaced Jerry Hammack in centre field. Hammack now is playing left field while Wagner, still at third, is batting fourth in the order.

Bakers Get Helping Hand From Rejuvenated Radley

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Al Radley gave his confidence a healthy shot in the arm Tuesday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Beaten for 20 goals, when Victoria McDonalds lost 24-12 Sunday to Burnaby Cablevision, he was a different goalie Tuesday against the hot New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies.

Putting on an excellent performance, he blocked 49 shots and sparked the Bakers to a 16-10 triumph before about 400 fans.

Victory squared McDonalds' Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League record at one win and one loss.

For the Salmonbellies, it was their first defeat in three outings. They had 13-7 and 16-11 victories over Coquitlam J Hawks and Richmond Roadrunners coming into Tuesday's contest.

Radley's finest moments came in the first and third periods.

In the first stanza, the visitors held a wide edge, controlling most of the loose balls and outmuscling the smaller Bakers around the goal crease.

Radley, however, made up for this clubmates' shortcomings in the first 20 minutes. He blocked several labelled shots and held the Salmonbellies to a 5-3 lead.

Sparked by Radley's work, the McDonalds opened the second period with six consecutive goals, including two while shorthanded. Stunned by the Victoria resurgence, the Salmonbellies lost their shooting eye and fell behind 10-6 going into the final frame.

The visitors found the range in the third period. Outplaying the Bakers, the Salmonbellies peppered Radley with 31 shots but were still outscored 6-4.

Expected to share netminding duties with Mickie Michaux this season after dividing last year between junior "B" and the Bakers, Radley's performance pleased the Victoria club's executive.

"He played very well tonight coming off that awful game he had against Burnaby," said Bob Reid, the team's general manager.

While Radley reversed form Tuesday, Ken Alexander did not.

Last year's league scoring champion, Alexander had two goals and seven assists for the McDonalds to go with his eight-point effort against Burnaby Sunday.

Norm Baker and Bob Cool each added three goals and two assists, while Mark Bowles counted two goals and Joe Mottishaw, Dan Ranger, Jamie Robertson, Ken King, Steven Hepburn and Kim Bowles singles.

For the Bowles brothers, the goals were especially rewarding.

Mark missed the past two seasons with injuries, while Kim sat out last year after a shoulder operation.

Ken Brown topped the Salmonbellies with three goals and two assists. Bob Geddes and Mario Govorchin each tallied twice with singles coming from Joe Curley, Joe Kelly and Tom Smith.

Joe Poelzer made 46 stops in goal for New Westminster.

McDonalds took 38 of 65 penalty minutes assessed, including a game misconduct to defenceman Lorry Gloeckner for pushing the referee during a second-period fight with Steve Manning.

Esquimalt Wins Jr. 'B' Opener

John Entzminger hammered in three goals to set the pace as Esquimalt tripped Saanich E. J. Hunter 12-6 Tuesday night in the opening game of the B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League at Pearkes Arena.

Darrell Deane and Ross McKinstry added two goals each to the Esquimalt total while Al McLaren topped Saanich marksmen with two goals.

Salmonbellies Clip Burrards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Uew Westminster Salmonbellies gave Vancouver Burrards their third loss in four starts this Western Lacrosse Association season when the visitors took a 14-13 decision Tuesday night.

The first-place Salmonbellies now have a 3-1 record.

Wayne Goss led New Westminster with four goals. Paul Parnell added three with Ian Kennedy contributing two for the winners. Singles went to John Hannah, Larry Henry, Bill Robinson, Gord Jung and Dave Matheson.

Ron Pinder had four goals for the losers while Bob Salt added three. Both Pinder and Salt had six goals in Vancouver's 22-11 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs Monday.

Also scoring for the losers were Ray Durante and Bill Mercer, with two each, as well as Ward Sanderson and Paul Joseph.

Burrards trailed 4-3 after the first period and 10-7 after the second.

Vancouver goalie Don Hamilton was lifted from the net for a sixth attacker with one minute left but Burrards failed to tie the score because of New Westminster goalie Skip Jolly.

Jolly stopped 40 of the 53 Burrard shots while Hamilton made 18 saves and Pat Safianuk had seven for Vancouver.

Island Bowlers Make B.C. Team

VANCOUVER — Two Nanaimo bowlers and one from Victoria have qualified for the 12-member B.C. team which will compete in the Master Bowlers' Association of Canada national fivepin championships June 28 and 29 in Burnaby.

Unofficial results, to be confirmed by Master Bowlers of B.C., show Elsie Fielder of Nanaimo on top of the women's division with 7,407 points for the best-three-of-four tournaments during the season. She will be the B.C. women's singles represenative and Vancouver's Larry Johnson (7,958) will be the men's representative.

Second behind Fielder was Sandra Wood of Victoria, who won the provincial title over the weekend in Burnaby. She earned 7,366 points and is on the women's team with Leota Valleau of Burnaby (7,235), Sheila Barnes of Surrey (7,184), Josie Weston of Vancouver (7,010) and Surrey's Melba Hynes (6,939).

Nanaimo's Ron McLellan (7,760) made the men's team along with Bob Carter of Salmon Arm (7,880), Vancouver's Ray Walz (7,807), Wayne Davies of Port Coquitlam (7,780) and Jim Turner of Coquitlam (7,719).

Cox Slips to Second

PORTLAND — Rick Acton, 29-year-old pro from Seattle, shot a three-under-par 69 Tuesday and took a one-stroke lead after two rounds in the $50,000 Pay Less Golf Classic.

The sub-par round at Portland's Riverside Country Club gave Acton a 36-hole total of 138. That put him just in front of Vancouver pro Bob Cox, the first-round leader, who shot a 73 at Riverside for a 139 total.

Three more pros — Bob Johnson, Bill Tindall of Longview, Wash., and Kelowna's Dave Barr — were tied for third.

Johnson and Tindall both shot 71s at Riverside, while Barr came battling out of the pack with a six-under 66 at Columbia - Edgewater Country Club, the other course being used for the 54-hole tournament.

Bill Wakeham of Cowichan, a former winner of the event, shot a 72 Tuesday for a 149 total, four strokes under the final cut.

Former Victoria Vaughan Trapp, now playing out of Port Angeles, managed a 78 for 152.

Victorians missing the cut were amateur Hal Jocobson of Glen Meadows (75-80—155) and Uplands' assistant pro Bryan Carbery (78-81—159).

Watershed Recreation Would Create Problems

Opening up the Greater Victoria watershed for recreational use would be a grave mistake.

Too much would be lost — and little gained — by such a move.

Harry Pillar, an assistant forester in the watershed who drives his pickup with the same speed and finesse he uses while racing a sports car, helped counsolidate some of my own thoughts on the subject while taking me on a quickie tour of the area last week.

It was really a revisit. I worked for the water district on a fire suppression crew several years ago and gained a grass-roots view of the way it operates.

Taxpayers in the Greater Victoria area are lucky in that extremely careful logging within the watershed helps pay a good percentage of the costs of providing the water.

Opening up the watershed on either a limited or full-time basis would ultimately cost everyone connected to the supply a great deal.

Extra personnel would have to be hired to patrol the system, to clean up high-use areas and watch for fires during the summer. Extra equipment would have to be bought and installed to purify water which would be subject to contamination from a number of sources — human waste, gasoline, oil, garbage, etc.

★ ★ ★

Most water systems in the Pacific Northwest are operated on a closed basis, including those supplying Vancouver, Portland and Seattle.

In some parts of the United States, where there are systems open to the public, you can't drink the water coming out of your tap. Drinking water has to be bought by the bottle.

"People who are screaming for open public access should be subjected to those kinds of water conditions for a while," said Pillar. "It doesn't take very much to mess up a water system — for quite a few years."

One argument frequently used by open-access advocates is that the eastern part of the watershed, which isn't used much since the Sooke Lake dam was raised, could be made available for recreation.

However, that part of the system would be needed quickly in an emergency — such as a cave-in of the tunnel carrying water from Sooke Lake to Japan Gulch. Also, water stored in the eastern portion of the watershed will eventually be needed as the population base expands.

To maintain a high degree of water quality while logging the area, forestry practices have been honed to a fine edge in the watershed — even to the point of fencing entire cuttings to prevent deer damage to reforestation stock.

Practicing forestry to such an intensive degree would be very difficult and would probably cost a lot more under an open policy.

★ ★ ★

In addition, a lot of separate experiments are currently underway in the watershed, involving its own forestry staff as well as the Canadian forest service, the provincial forest service, Camosun College and the University of Victoria.

Continuing these studies would be difficult, if not impossible, if the area was open to the public. Forestry experiments, in particular, involve a minimum of 10 years of observations and one careless act would send a great deal of time and money down the drain.

Areas like the watershed, which is close to sophisticated laboratory facilities yet has a minimum amount of human impact, are hard to find and should be protected.

One only has to see the garbage both in the water and around the camping spots at Old Wolf Lake (located in the same area as the watershed) to realize what could happen to the water supply lakes.

Despite the lack of anglers, fishing isn't all that hot in the watershed system. There may be a lot of trout in some of the lakes, but they're mostly small. One of the larger lakes was drained right away last year and there were hardly any fish left trapped in the few remaining puddles.

Another factor not conducive to recreation is the fluctuating water level in these fairly small lakes. As the water is drawn down. It exposes the muddy and stumpy margins — hardly a spot for a picnic.

All in all, considering the amount of space available to recreation outside the watershed on this end of the Island, opening up this little piece would accomplish nothing positive.

Or as Pillar put it:

"If you've got something good, why ruin it?"

Don't Look Now, but Isn't That Oak Bay in Second?

SCHOOL SPORTS
jim crerar

Almost unnoticed in the wake of Mark Nyhof's six-foot, five-inch high jump and Mt. Douglas' victory in last week's All-School Relays at Esquimalt was the second-place showing by Oak Bay Senior High.

All spring, high school track coaches around Greater Victoria repeated the warning: Watch out for Oak Bay. Not that anyone was predicting the Bays to knock off powerful Mount Doug, but the word was definitely out that Oak Bay would be in a position to improve on last year's seventh-place showing in the city and on the Island.

Reason for the expected improvement was an earlier start to the track season at Oak Bay (January) and a new coach in Peter Denby, who has had considerable success with Oak Bay Junior High's track teams over the last four years.

A teacher at the junior school, Denby is coaching track at both institutions this year, Although it keeps him hopping, it's working out well.

"A lot of the athletes at the senior high school have come up through the junior high school," he explained the other day. "Both schools work out together. It gets a little crowded out there, but several senior high school athletes help the athletes from the junior high school."

In return for the sharing Denby with the Oak Bay senior team, the juniors also are getting a dividend in the form of coaching help from senior high school teachers. Denby mentioned Don Horwood, Bays' basketball coach who's assisting the javelin throwers, and Jill Hawkins.

Denby must have wondered what he had let himself in for during the first practice of the year when 100 junior high athletes showed up. "I was the only one there," he related.

Now that he has help, though, he's able to oversee the direction of 80 athletes still involved at the junior school and another 60 at Oak Bay Senior.

Coping with the senior team doesn't seem to have detracted from Denby's work with the juniors. They're after a fourth straight city and Island title this spring and made a nice start last week by winning the junior high school team championship at the All-School Relays with 129 points.

The Oak Bay junior boys won two relays and Craig Bentley was second over 100 metres. The girls picked up two seconds in relays and the mixed relay team also finished second.

Denby got excellent performances from the senior boys' team. Jonathon Smith won the 1,500 metres with Brian Blamey second while Dale Baptiste was the 100-metre winner. Oak Bay also captured the 4x400-metre relay and added seconds in the 4x200 and 4x100.

Denby, a 35-year-old native of England who taught and coached in London and Bermuda before comning to Victoria, is making no rash predictions about his senior team's chances.

"We haven't set any specific goal," he said, "but we're aiming to be among the top four schools."

CHALK DUST — Bob Osborne of UBC was elected president of the Canada West University Athletic Association at its recent annual meeting in Lethbridge. He succeeds Jim Day of University of Lethbridge . . . The Great Plains Athletic Conference rejected a bid by the University of Regina to re-enter next fall. Reason for the veto centered on the conference's unwillingness to become involved in a revamping of Regina's sports program. Student disinterest forced the school to drop several intercollegiate sports although there have been recent signs of revival, notably in basketball.

Mt. Douglas Steps in Front

Mt. Douglas took a step in the right direction Tuesday toward an eighth straight Greater Victoria high school track and field meet title.

The purple-and-pgod powerhouse produced 21 of the 60 qualifiers in the 10 eliminations held at Centennial Stadium.

Mt. Doug also had five "B" qualifiers, but "A" events are worth more than double in the finals, which take place Friday.

"A" event points range from 16 to seven (16-12-10-9-8-7) while "B" event points go from six to one (6-5-4-3-2-1).

Mt. Doug qualified at least once in each "A" event and had three qualifiers in three events and two in another five.

Oak Bay and Claremont each had 22 qualifiers but Oak Bay managed just 11 "A" qualifiers and Claremont eight. Esquimalt trailed in fourth place with 14 qualifiers, including nine in "A" events.

Four heats in the girls' and boys' 100 metres were also held Tuesday, cutting down both fields to 16 for Thursday's semi-finals.

Vic High's Kathy Weich topped the girls with a time of 12.1 seconds, while Mt. Doug's Derry Donaldson led the boys with a 10.9 time.

Three Mt. Doug runners made the cut in the girls' event and four in the boys'. Oak Bay had three make the cut in both events.

MacPherson Picks Hounds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Muzz MacPherson resigned as coach of Winnipeg Clubs of the Western Canada Hockey League last week to assume a similar post with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds of the Ontario Junior Hockey League.

"It was a tough decision for me to make," said MacPherson, who took over the Clubs' coaching reigns early this past season.

MacPherson, who guided Portage La Prairie Terriers to the 1973 Centennial Cup, said he has hopes of coaching professionally and made the move because "people pay more attention to the Ontario League."

"That's not a knock against the WCHL because I know this is a great league," he said. "Perhaps the best of the three major junior leagues in the country."

The Clubs gave no indication who their new coach will be.

NO OTHER CAR GETS BETTER GAS MILEAGE. THAT'S ONE REASON YOU SHOULD CATCH THE DATSUN SPIRIT.

Everybody's talking about gas mileage these days. All we at Datsun have to say is that no other car in Canada will give you better gas mileage than our B210*. The whole Datsun line lives up to that spirit of economy, in mileage, maintenance, and Datsun's traditionally high resale value.

THEN THERE'S THE NEW DATSUN B210 S. A new entry for economy car buyers, that retains the best features of the original B210. What we've done is reduce the exterior and interior trim details, to give you a much lower sticker price, just $3095. At that price, the new Datsun B210 S is a great package of spirited performance and economy.

The Datsun 710 and luxury 610 sedans give you spirited performance, without sacrificing roominess and comfort. The low priced Datsun Sportrucks, in regular or the new "long box" model, are tough work and play pickups, with steel body construction and torsion bar suspensions. The Datsun "Z" cars are built with a whole new concept of luxury and elegance, combined with the spirit that true sports car enthusiasts demand. And now the "Z" cars are equipped with a new electronic fuel injection system for even better performance.

So why wait. Test drive a Datsun today, and catch the Datsun spirit. It's waiting for you at your Datsun dealers right now.

CANADIANS EDGED

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Raul Palma scored 20 points and Mexico nipped Canada, 86-85 in overtime, Tuesday night to finish second in an international basketball tournament.

Leading scorers for Canada against Mexico were: Alex Devlin, Burnaby, 19 points; Phil Tollestrup, Raymond, Alta., 12; and Bill Robinson, Chemainus, with 11.

Regulation play ended in a 75-75 draw.

On Monday, the Canadians defeated the United States college all-stars, 76-60. It was Canada's second win in the tournament.

Canada defeated the U.S. in Campinas, Brazil, last week in the first part of the round-robin games.

Police Golf Tourney

Ron Ferguson will be trying for a repeat low gross victory and Gordie Tregear will defend handicap laurels Friday in the annual Saanich Police tournament at Cedar hill Golf Club.

Spain Ousts Britain

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Manuel Orantes outlasted Roger Taylor 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5 in a match that lasted nearly three hours, giving Spain a 3-2 victory over Britain in their European Zone Group A quarter-final Davis Cup tennis series.

The decisive Orantes-Taylor match, pitting the top singles players of each country, had been postponed Sunday because of rain.

Spain will meet Romania in the semi-final round of zone competition in Barcelona next month.

JARDINE WINS AWARD

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Fullback Sandy Jardine of Glasgow Rangers has been named Scotland's soccer player-of-the-year

NEW COACH of the Chicago Bears is Jack Pardee (above), who made switch to National Football League from World Football League, where he coached Florida Blazers last season. In other football news, Greg Barton, former quarterback for Toronto Argonauts of Canadian League, has been named head coach of Portland's entry in WFL.

Colonels Grab Lead

LOUISVILLE, KY (UPI) — Fast-breaking Kentucky, with foul-plagued Artis Gilmore on the bench, outscored the Indiana Pacers by 31-10 in the final eight minutes Tuesday night to win the first game of their American Basketball Association playoffs, 120-94.

Receiving a big lift from reserves Marv Roberts, Bird Averitt and Ron Thomas, the Colonels put the Pacers away with a splurge increasing their lead from 89-84 to the final 26-point margin.

The Colonels will be host for the second game Thursday night before the best-of-seven series moves to Indianapolis for contests Saturday and Monday nights.

Roberts fired in a season-high 19 points, Averitt 12 and Thomas 10 to take up the scoring slack left by the departure of Gilmore with his sixth foul with 9:19 remaining in the game.

Kentucky withstood a 35-point outburst by George McGinnis but the Colonels largely shackled his teammates.

SOCCER WIN SKEIN SNAPPED

Edward Milne's win streak ended Tuesday but the Victoria Senior Girls' High School Soccer League leader retained its unbeaten mark.

Esquimalt held the first-place club to a 1-1 tie at Esquimalt, while second-place Spectrum gained ground with a 3-1 decision over visiting Belmont in Tuesday's other league match.

Gay Evenden scored on a penalty kick for Esquimalt five minutes after Edward Milne had taken a 1-0 lead on a goal by Kym Elder.

Linda Alcock, Cathy Bailey and Kathy Kozak scored for Spectrum in the first half, while Maureen Devlin tallied in the final half for Belmont.

DONNA PACES VICTORY

Donna Blackstock played an outstanding two-way role Tuesday night to help CJVI Vicettes trip previously-unbeaten Stockers North Americans 7-4 in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Hyacinth Park.

In the other game, Y-Not Holdings hammered Seaboard Construction, 21-6.

Miss Blackstock slammed out a three-run homer in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 deadlock and scattered seven hits while picking up the pitching victory.

Y-Not built up an 18-run lead and coasted to the victory.

Centre-fielder Mavis Underwood led the 23-hit Y-Not attack with a home run, two doubles and a single.

Sinclair the Saviour Of Seaboard Streak

Both at bat and in the field, second-baseman Scott Sinclair came up with some excellent moves Tuesday night to help Seaboard Construction post a 3-2 victory over Tony's Holdings in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

The win extended Seaboard's unbeaten streak to five games.

Sinclair hammered out a home run and a double and scored two of the Seaboard runs and pulled his team out of a jam with a timely seventh-inning double play.

With runners on first and second and one out, Dave Richardson bashed out a hard grounder to Sinclair, who made the catch handily, put the tag on Skip Standish at second and then threw to first-baseman Paul Morrison to complete the double play.

Barry Wilkin picked up the pitching victory by striking out five batters and yeilding five hits.

Seaboard Wins

Seaboard Construction turned four home runs into an 8-1 decision over Cloverdale Paint and Paper during a Sidney Men's Softball Association game Tuesday in Sanscha Park.

Winning-pitcher Roy Korpus, Gary Bishop, Doug Boden and Tom Davis connected with the homers.

Eagles Fly Higher After Snuffing Rally

Eagles stiffled a last-inning rally Tuesday night to post a narrow 6-5 decision over Webb and Trace and take over sole possession of first place in the Heywood Avenue Park Men's Softball League.

The third straight one-run victory on an unbeaten skein placed Eagles half a game ahead of Tony's Holdings.

Flay Hall, who led off the first inning with a double and scored the opening run for Eagles, tripled and then came home on a single by Ray Mellings in the seventh to produce a 6-2 lead.

Bob Williams sparked the Webb and Trace rally with a triple that drove in two runs with one out in the seventh and later scored on Ernie Lea's single.

But then winning pitcher Ted Dale applied the pressure, struck out Gary Goodie and got losing-pitcher Greg Gagne on a game-ending infield groundout.

Ryan's Strong Arm Tames Yanks' Bats

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan pitched nine innings, Jim Bibby pitched five and Ken Holtzman faced only one batter but all came away with victories in American League baseball action Tuesday night.

Ryan pitched six hitless innings and finished with his sixth career two-hitter in California Angels' 3-0 victory over New York Yankees. Bibby allowed singles to the first two batters and then knocked off the next 15 in Texas Rangers' 5-0 triumph over Milwaukee Brewers. The game was called in the fifth innisg because of rain.

And Holtzman, who had a 1-4 record is eight starts despite a fine 2.35 earned-run average, struck out Carl Yastrzemski to end a Boston rally in the fifth inning and was credited with the win in Oakland A's 9-5 triumph over the Red Sox when Joe Rudi's tie-breaking home run in the bottom of the fifth made him the pitcher of record.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 3-2, Kansas City Royals beat Detroit Tigers 8-7 and Cleveland Indians defeated Minnesota Twins 3-2.

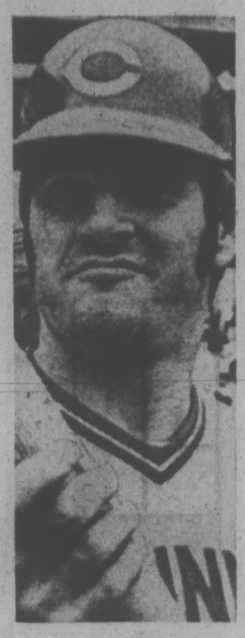
In the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 5-0, Chicago Cubs edged Houston Astros 2-1, Atlanta Braves whipped Montreal Expos 9-4 and San Francisco Giants and New York Mets were rained out.

Ryan flirted with a record-tying fourth career no-hitter until Bobby Bonds broke the spell with a leadoff single in the seventh, the Yankees' only clean hit. Ryan, who joined Oakland's Vida Blue and Don Sutton of Los Angeles as the only sevengame winners in the majors, struck out seven and walked five.

Tommy Davis' run-scoring double in the fifth inning broke a 2-2 tie and the Orioles went on to end Jim Kaat's 12-game winning streak behind the four-hit pitching of Ross Grimsley.

In the Dodgers' win, Burt Hooton allowed only a double by Luis Melendez and a single by Ted Sizemore in blanking the Cards for his first victory of the season.

The 25-year-old righthander came to the Dodgers in a May 2 trade with the Cubs. When he left Chicago, he had a 0-2 record and an earned-run average of 8.18.



PETE ROSE
. . . loathes the stuff

Take One Flavored Stick, Two Sugarless; Chew Well, Fold in Tobacco for 'Gumball'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's tobacco-chewing purists would sputter in disbelief and choke on their chaw.

Chewing tobacco mixed with bubble gum? Heresy!

Not to Johnny Bench, Merv Rettenmund and coach Alex Grammas, the "Gumball Wizards" of the Cincinnati Reds.

"It kills the taste," said Bench, his cheek bulging. "You don't chew the gum into the tobacco. You just kind of wrap it around the chaw to keep it together."

"I marinate mine in a soft drink," said Rettenmund, in airy tones of a gourmet. "Makes it nice and juicy."

Pete Rose, who loathes tobacco of any form, finds the whole messy wad hard to swallow. "I tried tobacco once. Got sick. Didn't know you were supposed to spit the stuff out," he said.

Rose admits his disdain for tobacco goes deeper than simple distaste. "A damn umpire spit some on my shoe one time when I took the lineup card to home plate," he growled.

Bench said Grammas, a 27-year veteran as player or coach, introduced him to the gumball. "He's an old pro at it," said Bench.

Grammas, an Alabaman, said the gumball is catching on in popularity, especially with the younger players who find the foul juices tough to stomach.

Rettenmund admits losing his first bout with chewing tobacco—"First time I tried it I got dizzy"—but the gumball was love at first bite. "Now I have special recipes," he said. "My best is the six-cent special—the deluxe gumball.

"You take two large sugarless sticks of gum and one flavored. You chew it until it's moist and soft. Then I take it out of my mouth, sit down on the dugout bench, spread it on my knee into a big square and then put a clump of tobacco in the middle of it. I wrap the gum around the tobacco and pop it back in."

Bench finds a good chaw of tobacco soothing to his nerves.

"It's a release. Since you can't yell at the ump or say anything to the fans, you just spit," he said. "Gum wears out your jaws and sunflower seeds are messy, especially for a catcher."

How does he avoid the licorice look on his teeth?

"You brush your teeth a lot," said Bench. "And I use sugarless gum. Got to take care of the teeth."

Bench said tobacco as a home remedy which he offered on a television talk show nearly cost him a fan.

"I told the audience chewing tobacco helped me get rid of congestion when I had a bad cold," he said. "A week later I got a nasty letter from this little old lady who said she tried it—and got sick."

BARRETT DECLINES BENNETT CHALLENGE

Premier David Barrett has no intentions of entering into a legal agreement made public Tuesday by opposition leader Bill Bennett which would allow perusal of the B.C. Social Credit party accounting books.

Barrett said Tuesday the agreement is nothing more than "cheap and wild politics from an irrational opposition" and refused to comment further.

Barrett said the matter will be subjected to full debate when the government introduces legislation to regulate campaign election spending and make public party donations.

At a Vancouver press conference Bennett released a legal agreement which would allow Barrett to choose a professional accounting firm to review the books and records of the party to find out if the Socreds have a campaign slush fund which contains $4.5 million.

The agreement is open for acceptance until 6 p.m. Thursday and follows what Bennett describes as a series of "egregarious public allegations" by the premier on the financing of the Socred party funds.

The agreement provides that if the premier's charges are correct Bennett would tender his resignation within three days and refrain from seeking public office. However, if the charges are proved groundless Barrett would have to resign.

A week ago the premier charged that big business was financing a free enterprise party campaign fund and linked the names of Robert Bonner, Arthur Foulks, and J. V. Cline with the fund operation. He later backed down.

The premier also said at that time the funds had reached at least $4.5 million and that the Socreds are spending as much as $125,000 a month to establish and maintain constituency offices.

Bennett strongly denied the charges as did Bonner, Cline and Foulks.

Condominium Site Okayed

Oak Bay council approved rezoning of 1447 St. David Monday night for construction of a six-suite condominium. No one spoke for or against the proposal at the public hearing.

The municipality will enter into a land use contract with Dunn Holdings Limited and P. L. Margetts and Company Limited for the apartment use.

City Scientists for Climate Talks

Five scientists from federal government agencies in Victoria will attend a meeting of the Canadian Meterological Society at University of B.C. May 28-30.

Chief forecaster Allan McQuarrie, of the department of environment weather service, will take part with four members of the Institute of Ocean Sciences: director general Dr. R. W. Stewart, Dr. John Garrett, Dr. A. E. Gargett and Dr. Susumu Tabata.

A theme of the ninth annual congress and annual meeting of the society will be the interaction of atmospheric and ocean surface conditions of the Pacific.

Sixteen meteorological and 12 oceanographic technical sessions will discuss The Role of the Pacific Ocean in the Climate of North America, but the conference will include papers and exchanges on a wide variety of subjects.

Among these are air pollution, hail studies, remote sensing, urban meteorology, aerosol effects on the natural ozone, climatic change, climate and tourism, and the impact of climatic change on food production.

Program chairman is Dr. T. R. Oke, of U B C geography department, with Dr. T. A. Black, of UBC soil sciences, handling local arrangements.

Lobsters in Corrals Like Cattle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—New England lobsters, those tasty creatures of the briny North Atlantic, may soon be raised like herds of cattle in heated, underwater corrals.

Keeping lobsters in shore-based pens would reduce the lobsters' staggering mortality rate, marine biologists say. In the ocean about one lobster in 10,000 reaches the marketable weight of one pound.

Furthermore, scientists have learned that lobsters grow to that size four times faster in heated water from power-generating plants than in the icy depths off New England.

Long-range benefits from the work being done in labs on this coast and elsewhere might mean a dependable and increased supply of this much-loved but rapidly diminishing seafood.

New England lobster costs more than $4 a pound retail—when it can be found. Demand has depleted lobsters in some areas. Lobster farming may insure a steady supply, but the price is not expected to come down because of the cost of raising them.

Scientists began a study in 1970 to determine whether it would be feasible to transplant eastern lobsters to the Pacific Ocean.

"But first we had to find out how these lobsters would get along with the habitat and the other marine animals that are native to this area," James M. Carlberg, a research associate at California State University at San Diego, said in an interview.

It was soon determined that the Pacific Ocean along Southern California offered all the shelter, food and other conditions that the lobster needed.

But biologists found that the lobster's aggressive tendencies, backed by huge powerful claws, could possibly displace other native creatures, including California's spiny lobster, which has no claws.

By 1972, Carlberg said, he and his associates were concentrating on aquaculture. A two-storey laboratory was set up beneath the shoreward end of a pier at Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla.

They rigged trays, tanks and pipes to circulate water from the ocean.

From the Massachusetts Lobster Hatchery, they got egg-bearing females for brood stock and, with temperature controls installed on some of the tanks, they soon found that in water heated to around 70 degrees, the time between mating and hatching of eggs was reduced from 18 months in the wild to about 12 months in the lab.

They also found that a lobster could be grown from the egg to marketable size in about 18 months, a process that requires five to seven years in the cold Atlantic. Raising the lobsters in pens also reduced the mortality rate to under 50 per cent.

To obtain an economical source of heated sea water, the biologists turned to the San Diego Gas and Electric Co. They were given permission to build a laboratory at its generating plant on the ocean front at Carlsbad.

They combine seawater that has been heated as a coolant for the generators with water from an adjacent ocean-flushed lagoon to maintain temperatures between 70 and 75 degrees.

FOR $134.50 IT'S A LOT OF SUMMER SUIT

Forget everything you know about summer suits up to now.

Forget the flimsy cloth. The shapelessness. The wrinkles. The way Peter Lorre looked in 'Casablanca'.

This Tip Top Henley suit for summer has nothing to do with summer suits of the past.

For starters, the cloth is 100% textured polyester. It has the appearance and substance of a fine twill which allows us to tailor it as beautifully as we tailor wool. With a distinctly masculine air.

And because it's polyester, the pants stay pressed, the lapels crisp and the body neat.

And while it keeps you looking great, it keeps you feeling cool.

Its colours are a light blue and a beige. They make the most of some very good looking style details.

(NOTE: Try the suit jacket as a sport jacket. Add contrasting slacks.)

Once again, because we tailor it in our own factory, we are able to bring it to you for a regular price of a mere $134.50. And for the next four days, for only $99.99. (Other Henley suits are available at this same price.)

Which is a small price to pay for so much summer suit.

FOR 4 DAYS ONLY IT'S $99.99

If He Gets a Raise, Mayor Will Quit

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The mayor here had to threaten to resign to prevent council from raising his salary by $600 a year.

At a council meeting Monday, Alderman Howard Lloyd attempted to raise the salary of mayor Harold Moffat above the $8,400 a year suggested in a bylaw under debate.

The mayor failed to prevent Lloyd's bylaw amendement from coming up for discussion because of a procedural technicality. Then he made his threat.

"No matter what you do, I'm not going to accept any more than is in the bylaw," he told council members.

"What's more, if you go through with it, you'll have to elect a new mayor," he said before storming out of council chambers.

Aldermen decided against the proposed increase for the mayor but voted to increase their salaries to $6,000 a year from $4,540.

Moffat made a similar threat to resign in 1971 when council went against his wishes and increased the funds for an addition to the library. He later reconsidered.

Alderman Trent Beatty said the difference between the salaries of aldermen and the mayor is not enough considering the "much heavier load the mayor carries."

Alderman Lorne McCuish said $9,000 a year would have been a mere token in view of the mayor's efforts, but said he and other aldermen could not back any motion to increase his salary if it meant losing the mayor.

Tighter Safety For Boats Urged

PORT HARDY (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the deaths of three herring fishermen has ruled that regulations governing small vessels are not stringent enough.

Coroner Roy Koch said it was found Tuesday that the deaths of Louis Joseph Boroevich, 47, of Burnaby, Arvid Karsten Henriksen, 47, of Vancouver and Lawrence James McLaughlin, 25, of Burnaby were accidental and unnatural.

The three fishermen were drowned when the 58-foot B.C. Producer capsized and sank March 25 off the north coast of Vancouver Island.

Koch said the jury recommended the Ministry of Transport steamship inspectors and the Workers' Compensation Board combine their efforts for a more comprehensive education of safety standards.

The jury also recommended that the agencies set up an education program on boat safety, possibly through schools or publications.

Sidewalk Cafes Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has given approval for Granville Mall's first two sidewalk cafes and city engineer Bill Curtis said today that operators hope to be open by June.

Although council approved the sidewalk cafes, it voted Tuesday to raise the rent for sidewalk space from what had been recommended by city staff.

A staff report had recommended a rent of $300 for each cafe for 1975, with a higher rent next year after adjacent property rentals have been studied.

Council rejected a proposal by Alderman Harry Rankin that rent be set at $150 a month, but approved Alderman Helen Boyce's suggestion that it be $100 a month for each month the cafes are open.

Alderman Darlene Marzari said later the city is losing $10,000 compared to what it would normally charge for restaurant space in a prime area.

Social planner Jonathan Baker said few restaurant operators have shown an interest in sidewalk cafes and there wouldn't be any if rents for the first year were set too high.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Norman John Johnson, coach of Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, was fined $500 Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of common assault of a hockey fan. Johnson was charged with the assault of spectator Roger Dale Potvin during a game between the Wheat Kings and New Westminster Bruins here Jan. 12. Potvin, 27, was hit with a hockey stick during a player-fan brawl in which two policemen were slightly injured.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board has announced two maximum lump sum payments of $15,000 to an Okanagan man and a Fraser Valley man. Both suffered permanent injuries in assaults. Those awards were among 26 awards totalling $76,543 handed out in April under the criminal injuries compensation act of B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 1,000 signatures have been collected on a brief asking the federal government not to implement recommendations in the green paper on immigration, says Elgin Lee, spokesman for the Immigration Action Committee. The brief says Canadian culture has been enriched by immigrants and calls for a non-discriminatory and universal immigration policy that would allow prospective immigrants sponsored by relatives in Canada to be admitted regardless of age.

SURREY (CP) — Alderman Rita Johnston has told council that Wilder Construction Co. of the United States has offered to conduct a study free of charge on the cost of building and operationg a solid waste disposal system and energy recovery plant here. The company built a garbage incinerator plant near Bellingham.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America has been certifed to represent workers at Goldwood Industries in nearby Richmond, Doug Evans, a union spokesman, said Tuesday. There are 35 workers at the sawmill.

THE HUNT BEGINS FOR WHALERS

WINTER HARBOR (CP) — Equipped with matching coded charts, the two Greenpeace vessels left here early Tuesday and set out in different directions in search of both whalers and whales.

Using their own codes, the boats will be able to communicate their position to one another without letting either the Japanese or Russians know where they are, a spokesman said.

With its elaborate electronic equipment finally working smoothly, the 80-foot Greenpeace added two divers, equipped with shark cage and underwater camera equipment, to its crew.

According to plan, the Greenpeace V will concentrate its main efforts during the next few weeks attempting to establish contact with whales, while the smaller Greenpeace VI heads out as far as it can into the North Pacific to scout for the oncoming whaling fleet.

Once contact is made with the whalers, the Greenpeace V will abandon its whale experiments and sail to join its sister ship.

The crew of the Greenpeace VI includes three U.S. citizens — Matt Herron, 43, of Palo Alto, Calif.; Dr. John Cotter, 28, of Kansas City, and Ramon Falkowski, 24, of San Jose, Calif.

Greenpeace Seizure By Navy 'Justified'

PARIS (CP) — The public prosecutor said Tuesday the French Navy was justified in seizing the Canadian vessel Greenpeace III and arresting crew members, including owner David McTaggart, when the ship interferred with French government nuclear testing.

Greenpeace III was seized in international waters off the Pacific island of Mururoa August, 1973, when the French Navy began a series of nuclear tests.

McTaggart, of Vancouver, is suing the French government for damages in connection with two collisions between his vessel and the French war ship Paimpolaise in June, 1972, and in 1973.

Public prosecutor Emile Coderch, told court Tuesday the party responsible for the collision had not been clearly established and that each ship should pay the cost of damages itself.

The vessel was in the South Pacific to protest nuclear tests conducted by France.

Foreign Ships Cost 500 Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Seafarers' International Union President Roman Gralewcz says his union is getting ready to publicly protest the operation of foreign-owned cruise ships in Canadian waters.

Gralewcz said 400 to 500 positions have been lost during the past three or four years because of the disappearance of Canadian cruise ship business.

The SIU president said the protest will include picketing government buildings.

He said not only seamen but Canadians as a whole "are being ripped off" by foreign companies which operate in this country without paying taxes.

In addition, Canada loses the benefits of having to provision and repair these ships.

"We are not getting one cent in revenue from these operators," said Gralewcz.

He said the problem with foreign operators has arisen because Canada is in a recession and SIU members are demanding more action from their union on providing jobs.

Gralewcz said Greek and Danish companies are most active in taking over the business and operating without Canadian crews, provisions or servicing.

Gralewcz said he is asking the B.C. Federation of Labor, the West Coast Pilots' Association and rank-and-file SIU members for support of the protest.

Last week Mr. Justice J. D. Bouck granted an injuction in B.C. supreme court barring the SIU from using information pickets while the Holland-American cruise ship Prinsendam is here May 22.

The vessel is to have an Indonesian crew earning two-thirds less than last year's SIU rates.

Silence is not golden to the deaf

Too many workers have lost and are continuing to lose their hearing due to their exposure at work around machines that clatter, roar and and grind their way through high noise levels.

The precious sense of hearing is not recoverable if it is lost. Once it is gone, it is gone forever.

The responsibility rests with employers to decrease noise to acceptable levels. There are four ways to meet this responsibility:

1. The noise levels of present machinery can be reduced by enclosing the machinery, by using mufflers or rubber mountings, or other acoustical engineering devices.
2. Isolation of workers from the high noise areas.
3. The installation of new, quieter machinery. Employers should also consider noise level factors when they order replacement parts for existing machinery.
4. New industrial plants can be designed for quiet rather than noisy operation.

As a temporary measure only, where the exposure of workers to noise above the permissible level cannot be avoided, hearing protection must be worn while progress is made on engineering solutions.

If you are an employer, you are required to protect the hearing of your workers.

The following amendment to the Workers' Compensation Act is drawn to your attention:

40A. The Board may, in such manner as it may determine, vary the rates of assessment as between different employers or levy supplementary assessments according to the estimated exposure of workers to industrial noise and it may do so whether or not hearing protection is worn.

Drug Flow Into U.S. at Record Levels

WASHINGTON (WP) — The flow of cocaine, marijuana and hashish into the United States appears to be at record levels despite an unprecedented number of arrests and seizures, Drug officials said this week.

They also warned that with the return this year of Turkey to large-scale opium growing, heroin imports into this country could rebound from recent reduced levels to new records.

According to DEA officials, in recent years, as police have shifted their focus, there have been these important shifts in the international flow of illicit drugs:

—Southeast Asia (mainly Burma, Thailand and Laos by way of Malaysia and Hong Kong) has become the principal heroin supplier to Western Europe, which last year set its own records for heroin usage.

—Mexico has become the primary supplier of heroin to the United States, mainly because Turkey stopped growing opium in 1972. Mexico continues to be the world's leading marijuana exporter.

—Cocaine is now the most popular "hard" drug in the United States and is being imported in "tremendous" volumes from Colombia, Equador, Peru, Bolivia, and Chile.

—Amsterdam has replaced Marseilles as the chief heroin distribution centre in Europe.

—Lebanon is exporting an increasing amount of heroin to the United States, often through the Caribbean and Central America.

In the United States there also have been basic shifts in the flow of illicit drugs.

John Warner, chief of DEA's international intelligence division, said that in recent years illicit drug usage has spread from the big cities, where it was largely found in the 1960s, to smaller cities and rural areas.

During the 1960s most heroin sold here and other East Coast cities was the white-colored variety mostly produced in France from opium grown in Turkey. Now, DEA officials said, heroin sold here is largely the "mexican brown" variety.

U.S. withdrawals from Vietnam and Cambodia is expected by DEA officials to have little impact on the total flow of illicit drugs into this country, although Communist military victories in those two countries are expected to cut off the very small flow that was coming from them, mainly by mail.

The increasing importation of illicit drugs other than heroin has occurred despite vigorous law enforcement efforts in many nations. DEA, working with foreign and U.S. police, made more than 25,000 arrests between July 1973 and December 1974.

DEA officials say the arrests during that 18-month period removed 7,510 pounds of heroin worth $3.9 billion (cq) in street sales, 2,510 pounds of cocaine worth $545 million retail, 36.6 million dosage units of other dangerous drugs worth $16.5 million retail and 687 tons of Marijuana worth $398.3 million retail.

Under pressure from the United States, which appropriated $35 million to compensate Turkish opium-producing farmers, Turkey halted large-scale production of opium, the raw material from which heroin is made. However, Turkey last year lifted the ban and is producing an opium crop estimated to be about 50 per cent greater than before.

Warner said U.S. officials hope Turkey will follow through on its assurances that it will police its poppy fields so that the opium will go for legitimate pharmaceutical needs, where there have been shortages.

However, Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau warned Sunday that because of renewed Turkish opium production, "I think by late summer or early fall there will be a substantial increase in heroin use" in this country.

Colombians now largely control the cocaine traffic, particularly from Bolivia, according to Jerry Strickler, a DEA official who once headed the agency's Latin American enforcement section. Colombia also has become a major marijuana exporter, as was Jamaica until a recent crackdown.

Strickler said that Vancouver and Argentina have become particularly active illicit drug transfer centres.

The extent to which couriers will go in an effort to smuggle drugs into the United States was illustrated by a man who flew from Bogota, Colombia, to Mexico City and then to Australia before being arrested in Honolulu on his way to Miami, Strickler said.

Fewer Surprises

OTTAWA (CP) — There may be more additives and preservatives around today but people probably have a better idea of what we're eating than their great-grandfathers did, says Dr. L. R. A. Bradshaw of the federal health protection branch.

"One hundred years ago almost half the Canadian food supply was adulterated," he told delegates at as seminar on the health effects of chemicals in foods.

Among other things, flour was added to pepper, floor sweepings to tea, and roasted wheat to coffee. However, he said, the British have known the most imagination in the field.

"In their practice of adulterating grated cheese with grated umbrella handles, the British showed an inventiveness which has not yet been equalled in Canadian adulteration."

Enraged Surrey Residents Threaten Vigilante Action

SURREY (CP) — The municipal council in this lower mainland suburb has decided to consider a community policing program in an attempt to control increasing juvenile vandalism.

But two enraged North Surrey residents told council that would not be good enough, and threatened to set up vigilante groups.

Surrey and several other British Columbia municipalities claim they have faced an escalating rate of juvenile vandalism in the last year.

Council's proposed program could involve hiring extra RCMP officers to patrol vandal-ridden areas in the municipality, rather than continuing the present system of responding to individual complaint calls.

However, residents Roy Cormie and Felix Wright said that they would not stand idly by while crime is allowed to mushroom. They said their attitude is shared by their neighbors and hundreds of other Surrey residents.

Cormie said his house was vandalized and left as a "pigsty" Sunday evening while he and his wife were away for four hours.

Cormie said the attack took place because someone saw him being questioned by the RCMP Saturday morning regarding vandalism at a nearby school.

He said more than $3,000 damage was done by vandals who ransacked his entire house, emptying cupboards and spreading flour, sugar, ketchup, syrup and honey over walls and rugs.

"I was red as red," said Cormie. "I would have taken the little bastards and made another Kent State incident."

Wright said that he and his neighbors were fed up with vandals throwing eggs and pop bottles at their homes at nights.

"Vigilantes — that seems to be the only answer left in this community," Wright said. "I'm carrying a club in my car and I won't be afraid to use it."

Wright urged council to demand some teeth in the Juvenile Delinquency Act.

Both men agreed that only a small percentage of teenagers misbehave, but said that "three per cent of 10,000 can cause a lot of trouble."

Mayor Bill van der Zalm said he could not condone vigilante action, but he could understand the desire of some residents to take the matter into their own hands.

"These people are frustrated —they don't know where to go," he commented.

"You can't blame a guy for carrying protective gear. But I don't believe we've arrived at the vigilante stage."

More Offices

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Provincial rentalsman Barry Clark said Monday he will look into the possibility of decentralizing his office. He said one office would be established in the northern interior and another in the south, possibly here. He has recommended that an office be established in Victoria as soon as possible.

No Thugs Here Says Buchanan

MARCHAND

BUCHANAN
. . . not informed

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan angrily accused an opposition MP Tuesday of implying that his department is run by "a bunch of thugs" bent on undercutting the Berger Commission.

But he left the impression that officials in his department haven't kept him informed about details of negotiations with the commission which "freed" an additional $100,000 for further environmental studies into the effects of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

Buchanan indicated that he disagrees with B.C. Supreme Court Justice Tom Berger on the need for more environmental research, and disclosed that Mr. Justice Berger, in discussions with him, had not even told him of his intentions in advance.

However, the minister acknowledged that the decision was Mr. Justice Berger's to make, even if it was with the help of measures agreed to by Buchanan's officials without his knowledge.

Buchanan reacted angrily when news of the decision to provide another $100,000 for environmental research was sprung on him in the Commons by Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) before it was officially announced at the Commission hearings in Yellowknife.

He accused Mr. Justice Berger of having a leak in "his shop" and said he would order an inquiry to find Clark's source.

However, the Tory MP said later that his source is not with the commission itself and remarked that the minister is "getting a little paranoid."

Even after Clark raised the issue in the Commons, Buchanan didn't appear to be aware that it had been decided that his department would bear some expenses of the inquiry so that the extra $100,000 could be reallocated out of the commission's $1 million budget.

The Tory MP asked the minister directly whether the federal government would compensate Mr. Justice Berger's budget to make up the $100,000. Buchanan replied only that he was delighted that the commissioner had been able "to squeeze his budget to that extent."

Clark noted that the Berger Commission is not authorized to deal with the effects on the Mackenzie Delta or other areas outside the valley itself of the construction of a pipeline.

The protection of the environment in these other areas, he observed, is to be left up to the "highly suspect in-house" studies conducted by the Norther Affairs branch of Buchanan's department.

"I don't like this insinuation that the employees of the department are a bunch of thugs," snapped the minister. "I resent it deeply."

Clark argued that there has been concern in the North for some time that departmental research is biased in favor of certain kinds of development in the area.

'Mean Questions' Marchand Shouts

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand, who made headlines one year ago when he confessed his department was a mess, blasted the opposition Tuesday night for its continued criticism of the way the department is operated.

"All we hear are small and mean questions," he shouted across the floor of the Commons shortly before nearly $1 billion in 1975-76 transport spending estimates were approved.

His outburst came near the end of two full days of detailed questioning about a wide range of transport matters. It apparently was set off by questions about the long-awaited national transportation policy, on which Marchand said his officials have been working strenuously and which is to be announced soon.

Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina Lake Centre) said the minister's promise of a new transportation policy "has been going on for some time in this Parliament and the two previous Parliaments" and MPs and the public were running out of patience.

The questions Monday and Tuesday covered a broad spectrum of topics, including Air Canada, freight rates, harbor dredging, merchant shipping and airport facilities. Local issues often were introduced as MPs took the opportunity to complain about problems in their own constituencies.

INSIDE DETAILS IN DREDGING BID?

OTTAWA (CP) — Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) said Tuesday in the Commons the successful bidder on a 1971 St. Lawrence River dredging contract might have had inside government information.

He said the bid was $20,860,000 — the same as a transport department estimate for the three-year project.

He asked whether the bid was "a unique coincidence" or whether someone in the transport department told the bidder the government estimate. Two other bids were $8 million to $10 million higher.

Marchand said he will check the charge but asked how he could explain it if the courts and RCMP could not. There are no indications of involvement by any civil servants, he said.

Ask Ministers PM Tells House

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet ministers rather than public servants should answer to Parliament for government decisions, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday in explaining his refusal to let Cabinet Secretary Michael Pitfield appear before a parliamentary committee.

But opposition MPs protested they had neither a minister nor Pitfield to question at a committee hearing Monday night into activities of the cabinet secretariat and the prime minister's office. Pitfield heads both.

Trudeau said in the Commons that Canada operates on a system of ministerial responsibility.

He was responding to James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) who said the use of "executive privilege" might prevent Parliament from holding the government accountable.

No Probe On Indian, RCMP Clash

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has rejected a request by civil libertarians for an independent inquiry into the use of the RCMP Tactical Squad during an Indian demonstration on Parliament Hill last Sept. 30.

As a result, Don Whiteside, Ottawa Civil Liberties Association vice-president, said Tuesday, an association report documenting violent incidents probably will be handed to the Marin commission which is investigating the handling of citizens' complaints against the RCMP.

Whiteside said the government will be urged to ask the RCMP to use restraint in handling anticipated Indian demonstrations this summer.

Indians are in turmoil from Nova Scotia, where an island occupied recently, to B.C., where they occupied the federal Indian affairs office in Vancouver last weekend.

In between are sore spots such as Kenora, Ont., where relations between Indians and the community have been strained for some time.

The 92-page association report sent to Allmand quotes demonstrators, newspaper reports and seven civil liberties observers on what happened.

Rackets Exploit Workers—Priest

MONTREAL (CP) — A Haitian Roman Catholic priest told the special joint committee of Parliament on immigration policy Tuesday of employment "rackets" which exploit unskilled labor coming to Canada from Third World countries.

Father Paul Dejean of the Christian Community of Haitians was critical of the requirement that workers have pre-arranged employment before being admitted on temporary work visas.

He said working conditions may be intolerable in the specific job and the new immigrant may find that he or she could be better paid elsewhere but they are unable to change jobs because in many cases they are allowed to work for only one employer under terms of their work visa.

About two dozen demonstrators disrupted the Tuesday hearing calling for an end to "this show to promote racism."

The demonstrators, dispersed throughout the 150-member audience, jumped to their feet and denounced the hearings as "racist" and "a show to prepare the people of Canada for a racist immigration policy."

They urged others present to boycott the hearings and marched out.

Earlier, about 20 members of the Committee Against Racism demonstrated outside the hotel where the hearings are being held. They carried placards calling for an end to the hearings and for the government to "create jobs, not racism."

The committee is to report to Parliament by the end of July and new immigration legislation is to be introduced this fall by Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

71 Journalists Jailed, Missing

LONDON (Reuter) — Amnesty International, the London-based human-rights organization, published the names Monday of 71 journalists from 17 countries who it said are in prison or missing and called on the International Press Institute to take action.

The list is published to coincide with the opening in Zurich of the institute's general assembly.

Amnesty called on it to establish a permanent committee to work on behalf of journalists who are detained because of their work.

"The vast majority of the journalists on the list are people whose imprisonment or disappearance is directly linked to their professional activities," it said.

"In a number of cases, we have received allegations that the journalists in question have been tortured."

Amnesty International says most of the 71 journalists on its list are detained in violation of Article 19 of the United Nations human rights declaration, which asserts the right of everyone to "receive and import information through the media."

The countries named and number of journalists said to be detained are: Bangladesh, four; Brazil, four; Chile, three; Chad, one; Cuba, three; Guatemala, one; Indonesia, 27; Nigeria, one; Pakistan, one; Singapore, two; Taiwan, seven; Tanzania, two; Turkey, two; Soviet Union, six; Vietnam, two, and Yugoslavia, five.

NEW LIFE FOR VANCOUVER MAGAZINE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Magazine will continue to publish under new ownership.

Paul Grescoe, spokesman for a group interested in taking over the monthly magazine, said that an agreement in principle has been reached with Agency Press, the parent company of Pacific West Publications Ltd., which publishes Vancouver Magazine.

Grescoe, a freelance journalist, would not discuss financial details but said it would cost the group "substantially less than $50,000" to purchase the magazine, which began publication nine years ago.

Agency Press has been divesting itself of magazines it has owned for the last two years. Vancouver Magazine was the last.

The magazine has a circulation of 52,000 a month of which about 5,000 is paid newstand sales at 50 cents a copy. The remainder are free copies placed in hotels, sent to selected homes and circulated with a weekly newspaper.

Grescoe said Mac Perry will remain as editor with a bigger budget and more editorial support. There were 11 full-time staff members on the magazine before its sale.

Adaptable Dishes for Holiday Time

HILDA BEASTALL

Meat, fish or other savory pies will prove useful to homemakers of all kinds, with summer holiday time not so far away, visitors arriving unexpectedly from far-off places, and picnics contemplated. Thoughtful parents realize too that a really well planned school lunch is as necessary in May as in winter. The same food will double as a picnic meal.

Much food budget money is wasted on trips away from home by everyone piling out of the car and ordering miscellaneous snack foods at every stop. Most of these unplanned, unsupervised foods are not satisfying to hunger, and they frequently are thirst creating because of high seasoning.

The meat pie recipe today is suggested as being adaptable for many types of meals — to serve hot at home, packed heated to take for an outdoor picnic or taken from the freezer and packed to be just right for eating in three to four hours time.

The unexpected picnic at home in a shady garden spot or on the sundeck will be no problem with one of these recipes made up and put into the freezer compartment of the refrigerator now.

Before every minute is taken with outdoor activities, make another batch to stash away in the freezing compartment to help make unxpected summer visitors more welcome. With the simple addition of vegetables for a salad and fresh fruit, you have meals practically ready prepared.

Because the pie cursts are made from an extra good bread dough of part rye flour and very little fat, they are essentially a high proportion of the meal nutrition.

The filling may be easily varied to suit either what you have or what you like. If your taste goes to steak and kidney, cook the ingredients and substitute for part of the filling given here.

Flaked cooked fish is a fine alternative; leftover roast chicken or beef will please others. Leftover meat loaf or savory loaf also make good fillings.

Even the pie crusts are capable of variation by replacing the dark rye flour with whole wheat flour.

This recipe for meat pies with yeast crust made six large turnover style pies and 12 muffin-size pies.

They are not time consuming, for the filling can be put together ahead of using, and the one period of dough rising (45 to 60 minutes) used for preparing a batch of cookies to go into the oven when it is nearing temperature for bread baking.

Then, with the dough risen, you roll it out and make up the pies.

This worked well for me and made me feel that both my time and the fuel was well used. The whole job took two hours, the pies and the cookies, including normal interruptions such as every homemaker encounters.

Meat Pies
With Yeast Crusts

Crust

½ cup warm water
1 tsp. sugar (brown)
1 tbsp. granular yeast
½ cup hot water
½ cup non-instant skim milk powder
2 tbsp. soft margarine (or soy oil)
2 tsp. sugar (brown)
1¼ tsp. salt
2 small eggs
1¾ cups dark rye flour
1¼ cups unbleached flour
¼ cup extra flour for kneading

Filling:

¼ cup brown rice
¼ cup wheat flakes
¼ cup oat flakes
1 tbsp. chopped onion
1½ cups boiling water
½ tsp. salt
½ cup chopped fresh mushrooms
1 tsp. chopped mixed mint, thyme, parsley

To make yest crust: Measure warm water into large warm mixing bowl. Stir in 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle yeast over surface and let stand until surface is smooth; then stir.

Meanwhile, measure margarine (or oil) into a small basin. Add 2 tablespoons sugar, the salt and milk powder. Pour the half cup of hot water over all. Stir to mix. When partially cooled, add the eggs and beat just enough to mix.

By this time the margarine-egg mixture will be about the same temperature as yeast mixture.

Add margarine-egg mixture to yeast mixture, adding 1 cup of the flour at same time. Beat with wooden spoon until smooth.

Stir in remaining flour to make a soft dough; form a ball with the spoon.

Turn out on floured board. Now grease or oil the hands to do a little kneading without the dough sticking. It becomes firmer and silkily smooth in five or six minutes.

With greased hands place dough back in bowl, adding a little more grease to the surface to prevent cracking of the dough.

Cover bowl with warm clean towel; let rise in warm place free of draft until double in bulk, 45 to 60 minutes.

Now see that the filling is ready to use. It will be already cooked; keep it at room temperature.

To Prepare Filling: cook rice, onion, wheat flakes and oat flakes in boiling water until rice is tender, about 30 minutes; add salt and chopped mushrooms. Cook gently for five minutes, stirring if necessary to prevent sticking or add a little more boiling water. Finally add the herb seasonings. Put aside to cool to room temperature.

To make up the pies: When the dough has risen, stir it down from the sides with spoon. Take off one third at a time on to floured board.

Roll out thin into oblong with even sides, so that six-inch squares can be cut.

Place a heaping tablespoon of filling in centre of each square and fold over one point to the opposite point to make a triangle. Pinch edges to seal.

Place finished pies on lightly greased cookie sheets. Cut a hole in top of each for escape of steam.

Bake in moderate oven of 177 deg. Celsius for about 30 minutes until lightly brown.

If you make muffin-sized pies from same dough, cut rolled dough with cup of suitable size; line greased muffin pans with the circles, put in level spoonful of filling. Cut small circles as covers, press edges with fingers to seal, and make small hole.

Bake at 177 deg. C. for about 20 minutes.

Serve pies hot with a green vegetable. We enjoyed our very first dish of buttered steamed wild nettles, by courtesy of friends with acreage. They were a superb accompaniment to a good meal.

You will like the texture of these pie crusts made with yeast. Try them once and make use of the same recipe for all kinds of pies both savory and fruit.

Dilled Potato, Wurst Salad

4 large general-purpose
3 cups boil potatoes.
3 cups boiling water.
4 slices bacon, cut-up.
½ cup chopped onion.
½ cup chopped celery.
½ cup chopped dill pickles.
1 pounds knackwurst or frankfurters.
¾ cup dill pickle liquid (drained from dill pickles).
1½ tablespoons sugar.
½ teaspoon caraway seed.
½ teaspoon dry mustard.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley for garnish.

Cook unpeeled potatoes in boiling water until partially tender. about 10 to 15 minutes. Peel potatoes and cut into thick slices.

In large skillet over medium heat, cook bacon until partially cooked. Add onion, celery and pickles and cook, stirring occasionally, until onion and celery are tender, about 3 to 5 minutes. Stir in potatoes, knackwurst, pickle liquid, sugar, caraway seed, dry mustard and salt. Cover and cook over low heat, turning potatoes occasionally with pancake turner, until potatoes are tender and knackwurst is heated through, about 10 minutes. To serve, spoon potato mixture into a bowl, top with knackwurst. Garnish with parsley.

Note: Knackwurst may be cooked separately in skillet, broiler or over charcoal grill, if desired.

Ballet, Dance For Credit At Parkland

Ballet and contemporary dance will become a credit course at Parkland secondary school in 1976

Saanich school board voted Monday to approve the new course, as well as a new Grade 12 outdoor education course that will begin at Claremont senior secondary in September.

The dance course will be an extension of the theatre course and will accept students from Grade 9 through Grade 12, board chairman Norma Sealey said.

A dance instructor and pianist will be hired. The course will be three-quarters ballet, one-quarter contemporary dance.

"We serve you right!"

Shoppers' Woes in Packaging

By TINY BENNETT

The pocket calculator my wife bought me has become an invaluable tool for food shopping. The first time I used it was to work out if it was still economical to make my usual year's supply of thick-cut marmalade, at home, rather than buy the equivilent of imported preserve. When it showed me a considerable saving even with the current high cost of sugar, I started to use it all the time.

Food buying is the broad base upon which good cooking is founded. Given the chance, we'd all purchase the best raw materials but in these days of rising prices, most of us have to cut corners. I know I must, to balance my household food budget.

This calls for comparing prices, seeking out genuine good buys and the purchase of cheaper items that with imagination can be turned into a fine dish.

My meat buying is simple and straightforward.

Near to my home is a fine butcher's shop manned by butchers who know their trade. All the meat is displayed and all meat cuts and accessory items are plainly marked at so much per pound. When there is a special, it is simplicity itself to see what it costs and it's quality and price comparison with other cuts.

In supermarkets, however, with all the specials; the exotic packaging, the diverse weights and prices, food buying these days has become a difficult business. And from regular discussions with other shoppers, I know that most people find it hard to sort out the most economical way to obtain one's needs.

Some stores may be to blame in this contrived deceit but the people who are really to blame are those in the packaging industry who seem to go out of their way to make food buying an ordeal for those of us lacking wizardry in math.

It happens I am quite mediocre in calculating price comparisons in my head and recently when I worked out on paper which was the best buy between three units of dishwasher liquid all made by the same company, I had to bring everything down to a cost per ounce and then multiply by container sizes to final figures.

The king-size container marked as a special held 32 fluid ounces, the middle size 24 ounces and the smallest 12. When I did get it all straightened up, I found I could buy two 24s at a big saving over buying the "special" king-size. However, it took me close to 15 minutes to work it all out, a time consuming job that makes it impossible as a shopping system. In fact, I only stuck to it because it made me furious and obstinate in my search for the truth.

This might appear good business to the packaging industry but I regard it as a con game from which we all suffer.

In a recent column, a colleague reminded me that in June 1971 an act was passed to get rid of this money wasting, time consuming and resource wastage. It is Bill C-180 "an act respecting packaging, labelling, sale importation and advertising of prepackaged and certain other products."

On March 24 of last year, Minister of Consumer Affairs Herb Gray warned the industry it had dragged its feet for too long and gave them 18 months to reach certain standards to tidy up the existing mess. Since then, Gray has "been bounced to the back benches for reasons never explained."

So I'm out to beat them at their own game.

My weapon is the pocket calculator, an electronic wizard that does math in a fraction of a second. My first foray gave me a bulls-eye and amply reveals how easy it is to make a glaring mistake when we believe we are getting the best possible value for money.

We go through a lot of skim milk, so heeding the words of a minister who told us to drink powdered milk when the price went up recently, I took my little gadget box to the store and worked it to discover what kind of saving I could make on this most necessary of household food items.

A three-quart jug of skim was retailing at $1.07, a well-known brand of dry skim milk was priced $9.19 for the 48-quart pack, $5.59 for 32 quarts, $2.15 for 12 quarts, and 83 cents for the four-quart package. A less well-known brand in a plain sack was priced $1.78 for 12 quarts.

It made the mind boggle just to look at the range of prices and sizes. But it was chicken-feed math for my calculator, giving me a per quart difference between raw milk and the lowest-priced powdered skim of 20.833 cents — a saving of $32.49 over the year at nine quarts a week.

Then I looked at the prices again and found something infuriating.

The giant king-sized 48-quart package holds 12 pounds, the smallest four-quart unit holds one pound. Taking the price of the one-pound pack at 83 cents, I did what most of us do and 12 times 83 is about $9.60 — hmm, saves about 40 cents.

Just casually I ran the per pound cost of the top three through and discovered the king-size pack cost more per pound than the two next smaller sizes. Here the figures.

At $9.19 for 12 pounds is 76 cents per pound; at $5.59 for eight pounds is 69 cents; at $2.15 for three pounds is 71 cents. All done in a flash.

The best buy naturally and the cheaper size unit was the eight-pound pack at just under 70 cents per pound. However, the less well known brand in the plain sack and three pound — 12 quart size worked out to 59 cents per pound, just under 15 cents a quart.

It doesn't take a head for math to realize the value of knowing a brand name powdered skim sells in a king-size for 4 cents a quart more than a small pack of lesser known powdered skim. Or that there is 20 cents difference in price per quart between raw skim milk and dried skim in a simple package.

This is just the start of my explorations into the business of food buying and I am happy indeed that now I have the means to brush aside the deliberate maze that has been erected on prices. It is time we homemakers fought back and the pocket calculator is the best weapon I have found to date.

Serious Implications In Food Fortification

By Dr. Jean Mayer
Professor of nutrition, Harvard University

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The controversy over food additives may grab the headlines, but a problem that may have much more serious implications—and one that is being hotly debated by nutritionists—is the practice of "food fortification."

By strict definition, "fortification" is either (1) the addition of nutrients that were not originally in foods, or (2) the addition of nutrients at a level beyond that originally present.

For example, vitamin A is now added to margarine so that it equals the amount of the vitamin normally found in butter. And iodine is normally added to table salt.

Another form of supplementation is "enrichment." "Enrichment" means the restoration of nutrients that were lost in processing.

An obvious example of enrichment is the addition of the B vitamins (thiamine, niacin and riboflavin) and iron to our overmilled white flours to restore the nutrients originally found in whole grain flours.

Both enrichment and fortification have served us well. Once iodine was added to salt, for instance, the "goiter belt" that once stretched across much of the northwestern United States rapidly disappeared. And when niacin was added to corn meal and cereals, pellagra in the rural south was essentially conquered.

Rickets was once so prevalent that 30 per cent of the young children in Baltimore had cases of it simultaneously.

Now, children only contract it when their parents fail to feed them milk fortified with vitamin D or a vitamin supplement.

Populations that use rice as a staple food have lowered the incidence of beriberi by enriching polished rice with thiamine. We can reduce dental decay in young children simply by fortifying community drinking water with one part per million of flourine if the water does not contain it naturally.

Even though the great deficiency diseases have been eradicated, the diet of many North Americans is still marginally deficient in copper, iron, zinc, chromium, pyridoxine, folic acid, other B vitamins, and certain trace minerals.

So many nutritionists and most food manufacturers figure that with such a successful history of fortification, it would be a good idea to add all of these vitamins and minerals to many more foods, soft drinks and alcoholic beverages.

There are sound arguments in favor and aginst this idea, but I believe that we should avoid wholesale fortification for two basic reasons.

The first is that these marginal deficiencies are largely due to the quality of the North American diet; 60 per cent of it is made up of highly-refined or fabricated foods from which the nutrients have been removed in processing. And we really do not have to feed ourselves with so much of these manufactured foods.

Second, while it is possible to restore any nutrient, there are a number of minerals, such as manganese and chromium, for which the recommended daily allowance has not been determined (and still others that we are not yet even sure are essential). Any attempt to fortify all foods would be one step ahead of our present knowledge.

Most certainly, I am not in favor of going back to the days when there was no fortification or enrichment at all. But until we know more, it would be wise to rely on eating a simpler diet of fresh or very lightly processed foods or beverages that still contain their original vitamins and minerals, rather than to expand our use of nutritional additives.

(It would also be helpful to return to using iron cookware since it retains more nutrients in the cooking process than any other type of pot.)

Danes Want Out

COPENHAGEN (AP)— An overwhelming majority of Danish voters want Denmark to follow suit if Britain votes to leave the European Common Market in the June 5 referendum, a poll indicated here Monday. The social-Democratic government has declared that there will be a referendum in Denmark if Britain quits the European Community. A poll published in Copenhagen's Berlingske Tidende indicated that in such a referendum, 56 per cent of Danish voters would say "no" to continued Danish membership and only 29 per cent would vote "yes."

Fish Cakes Provencale

For each person, place 1 thick slice of a large tomato, seasoned and sprinkled with finely chopped green onions on a lightly greased baking tray, top with a Rupert Fish Cake and put in a preheated 425 degrees F. oven for 12 minutes. Remove and top with half a slice of processed cheese and return to oven for 2 more minutes until cheese is melted. Serve with a raw vegetable tray such as broccoli and cauliflowerettes, zucchini, celery and carrot spears, radishes and cherry tomatoes.

Strawberry Rhubarb Pie Blend

1½ pints fresh strawberries, halved

2 cups sliced fresh rhubarb (2 to 3 medium stalks)

1½ cups granulated sugar

5 to 6 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca*

Unbaked pastry for 2-crust 9-inch pie

Milk

Sugar

Mix strawberries and rhubarb with 1½ cups sugar and the tapioca, let stand while making pastry.

Divide pastry in half. On lightly floured surface roll out one portion 1½ inches larger than inverted 9-inch pie plate. Fit into plate and trim crust even with edge. Fill with fruit mixture. Roll out remaining pastry; lift onto pie. Trim crust ½ inch beyond edge of pie plate. Fold top crust under bottom crust; seal together to make a standing rim and flute edge. Cut vents in top crust. Brush crust with milk and sprinkle with sugar.

Bake in 205 deg. Celsius oven about 60 to 70 minutes, or until filling bubbles in the centre. Check pie occasionally for browning after 30 minutes of baking and cover edges with foil, if necessary. If pie begins to bubble over, place foil beneath pie. Coll thoroughly before cutting.

* If strawberries are very juicy, use the larger amount of tapioca.

Cabbage Rolls, 'Of Course'

By MARY MOORE

"Of course I'll make cabbage rolls. My husband has to have them." That was my hairdresser's answer to me when I asked her what she was serving at a Saturday night party.

Because of Hedi's "of course" and the frequency with which readers ask for this recipe we decided to repeat.

CABBAGE ROLLS

(Serves 8 generously)

1 very large cabbage head
2 lbs. ground beef
½ lb. ground veal
½ lb. ground pork
2 eggs
¾ c. raw or minute rice
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. paprika
2 tbsp. chopped parsley or bottled flakes
½ c. finely minced onion
9 ½ c. tomato juice (one 48-oz. tin plus one 28-oz. tin)
1 finely chopped garlic clove

See NOTE below

NOTE: At some meat counters you can buy what is called combination meatloaf mixture. If you would prefer to buy three pounds of this instead of the ratio of beef, veal and pork it would be fine. (OR if you are economizing use 3 pounds ground chuck beef only.)

Remove the hard core from the cabbage. Turn the cabbage upside down under the cold water faucet and let water run through the leaves to help separate them. Do not discard the clean outside leaves.

Carefully separate leaves and trim off thick part of centre rib. Pour boiling water over them and let them stand in it for 2 minutes. Drain well. Mix well all remaining ingredients except tomato juice and garlic.

Spoon about 3 tablespoons of the meat mixture about 3 inches from base of each leaf. Start rolling from base, then fold in side edges of cabbage leaf and continue rolling to enclose stuffing securely.

Line bottom of heavy frying pan or kttle or preserving kettle wih a few of the dark green outer leaves you have withheld for this purpose. Place cabbage rolls, open side down, in ketle, after all have been filld and rolled, piling them in neat layers.

Pour over tomato juice and sprinkle chopped garlic over top. Cover and simmer.

Now the time of cooking varies according to the cook. The longer they simmer the better they are. They will be cooked in 2 hours but 3 or 4 hours is better. So use your own judgment and experience. Cabbage rolls may be baked, covered, at 300 deg. Fahr. 3 or 4 hours.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont.. enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specifed recipe.

Cooking Temperatures For King of Vegetables

Potatoes have long been regarded as the king of vegetables because of their pleasing taste, economy and food value. They are a good source of food energy, vitamin C, niacin and iron, and are virtually fat free. It is for good reason that Canada's Food Guide suggests a serving of potatoes every day.

Look for Canada No. 1 potatoes to be sure they have been federally graded. They are packaged in plastic, mesh or paper bags. Light causes greening in potatoes. Plastic bags with one side opaque keep down exposure to light and paper bags with a mesh window let you see the product. The green portion should be removed as it has a bitter taste. Potatoes will keep longer in a cool, dark, well-ventilated area beteen 20 degree C and 23 degrees C.

Busy homemakers are wise to the bonuses of baking potatoes. Flexible baking temperatures allow for complete oven meals. Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, recommends that potatoes be baked using the folloing temperatures and times:-

219 deg. C	40 to 50 minutes
205 degrees C	45 to 55 minutes
190 deg. C	50 to 60 minutes
177 deg. C	55 to 65 minutes
163 deg. C	75 to 85 minutes

For baking, choose potatoes which are medium in size, smooth and unblemished. Preparation is a breeze. Simply wash, scrub and prick the skins to prevent them from bursting. For a soft, tender skin, rub the potato with fat before putting it in the oven. It is not necessary to buy special potatoes for baking. Those which are dry and mealy when boiled should be good baked. Indivilually wrapped potatoes are costly. Foil-wrapped potatoes steam rather than bake, so it is better to bake them without foil.

Add a little something else just before serving. Make a cross-wise cut in each potato when you remove it from the oven to allow steam to escape, then experiment. A host of toppings from which to choose include paprika, celery salt, rosemary, onion salt, sauteed onions, grated cheddar cheese, yoghurt, crisp bacon pieces or a mixture of lemon juice, butter and parsley. Have you tried any of these?

Tuna Long Boat

(Serves 10)

1 loaf French bread
2 7-oz. cans Clover Leaf Solid Light Tuna, flaked
½ cup pickle relish
1½ cups chopped hard cooked eggs
¾ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 cups processed cheese, cut in ½ inch cubes
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Cut bread in half lengthwise. Scoop centres out of both halves. Brush inside cavity with soft butter. Combine drained tuna with all other ingredients. Fill boats, dividing filling between the halves. Place on shallow baking pan and bake in preheated 205 deg. c. oven, 10 minutes. Guests may cut off a piece to match their appetites or the loaf may be cut in 3-or 4-inch sections. Serve with extra cheese cubes, cherry tomatoes, pickles, olives and any other finger foods you desire.

Looking Back for Economical Recipes

By WILLIAM RICE
The Washington Post

There has been considerable demand for books and articles to help cooks cope with evolutions in eating at home brought on by escalating food prices and an uncertain supply of staples once taken for granted. The books have been coming — "More Beef for Your Money," the "Everybody - Bring - A - Dish Cookbook" were published recently — and others are on the way.

But I'm not certain looking forward is any more helpful than a glance or two into the past. The problems of feeding people economically were familiar to North Americans until we entered an illusory age of infinite plenty. Searching under the lumps of coal in my Christmas stocking I found two antique cookery books so full of innovations that they might have come from the presses of yesterday. Even their titles have a contemporary ring. One is "Made Over Dishes" by Sarah Tyson Rorer, published by Arnold and Company in 1898. The other is Marion H. Neil's "How To Cook in Casserole Dishes," David McKay, 1912.

While neither of these volumes is in printing, there are a number of others on home bookshelves or available in bookstores that deal with making food economically. Fannie Farmer's "Boston Cooking School Cook Book" has been reprinted in paperback. "Joy of Cooking," in the 1943 edition, contains advice and recipes for those short of sugar, M. F. K. Fisher's delightful "How to Cook a Wolf" is part of an anthology of her works.

With leftovers once agin being recycled for human consumption and casserole pots of various substances, sizes and weights in almost every home, the advice and recipes in both books can be useful.

BAKED CABBAGE

1 firm cabbage
2 eggs
Salt and papper
2 heaping tablespoonfuls chopped cooked bacon
2 tablespoonfuls milk
1 tablespoonful butter

Trim cabbage and boil till tender in plenty of boiling salted water. Press out all the moisture, chop in fine, and press it again.

Now add butter, milk, bacon, seasonings and eggs well beaten. Mix and turn into a buttered fireproof dish, and bake until well-browned on the top.

Small pieces of butter dotted about on the surface are an improvement and hasten the browning operation.
—Marion H. Neil

Note: Adding a bay leaf or two to the cooking water will deaden the disagreeable smell that boiling cabbage emits.

APPLE SOUFFLE

3 pints (6 cups) apple sauce
3 tablespoonfuls melted butter
Sugar to taste
½ teaspoonful nutmeg extract
1 tablespoonful rum
3 eggs
Whipped and sweetened cream
½ teaspoonful vanilla extract
1 cup macaroon crumbs

Peel and core some apples pints of suace. Rub apples through a sieve, add butter, sugar, nutmeg extract, rum and yolks of eggs well beaten. When mixture is cool, add and stew until tender, having 3 whites of eggs stiffly beaten.

Butter an earthenware dish, turn apple mixture into it, sprinkle with crushed mararoons and set in oven to bake (at 350 degrees) for half an hour. Serve hot with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla extract.
—Marion H, Neil

Note: Substitute ½ teaspoon of vanilla extract and ⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg for the nutmeg extract,

Stuffed Peppers In Green Salad

(Makes 4 servings)

2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, softened.
1 tablespoon mayonnaise.
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion.
¼ cup well-drained sweet pickle relish.
1 large green pepper.
Crisp salad greens.
2 ripe tomatoes, cut in wedges.

Combine cream cheese, mayonnaise, onion and relish in a bowl. Remove stem, seeds and membrane from green pepper; stuff with cream cheese mixture. Chill at least 3 hours or until filling is firm.

At serving time, slice green pepper into about ⅓-inch slices; place on salad greens on serving platter. Surround with tomato wedges.

HOW COTTONS ARE PRODUCED

Cotton is probably the best known natural fibre. It is used in literally thousands of textile products, either alone or mixed with man-made fibres.

The 12-page illustrated bilingual folder "Follow the Fibre" explains that most raw cotton processed in North America is grown in the southern United States, Mexico, South America and Russia. It also discusses the different processes the raw fibre undergoes until it is ready for spinning.

The cotton yarn is sent to fabric and knitting mills where sophisticated, automated looms are used to weave the fabrics. The longitudinal yarns are called warp; the left-to-right yarns the weft.

The weft yarn is wound on a bobbin which is inserted in a shuttle. This shuttle is thrown from one end of the loom to the other through the warp yarns at speeds up to 40 miles per hour!

To produce cotton knits and double knits, special machines are used which have been programmed to produce given patterns.

The folder also describes dyeing and printing. The most common processes are screen and roller printing. But the real usefulness of a product are the special properties it receives during the finishing process, such as water repellency, permanet press, mildew reistance, soil release and so on.

Late-Comers Came With Doggie Bag

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of the woman who took an extra large second helping and then asked for a "doggie bag" to take her leftovers home with her.

It reminded me of the time I prepared a sumptuous spread for three couples. (I love to cook.) One woman phoned just a few minutes before the time she should have arrived to ask if she and her husband could bring a friend and to inform me that they would be a "little late."

The three of them arrived an hour and 15 minutes later half gassed.

Well, this late broad said she wasn't hungry, but everything looked so good she wondered if I'd give her a doggie bag.

I said, "I have my own doggie, and I am it. Therefore, I do not provide my guests with doggie bags. Also, people who have the bad manners to show up an hour and 15 minutes late don't deserve any consideration, and this is the last time you'll be invited here!"

The other guests were somewhat uptight about the confrontation, but the only way to treat people with guts is to out-guts them.

GUTSIE

DEAR GUTSIE: Your bark is as bad as your bite. But you can give lessons on how to end an undesirable friendship.

DEAR ABBY: I have often wanted to write to you, but never had a reason until now. My problem is my mother. She wants surgery done on her "grapes" to have them enlarged to about grapefruit size.

My father keeps saying no he likes her dried raisins the way they are. Mom disagrees and is willing to give up a vacation in order to have the surgery done.

It all started as a joke, but it turn out that Mom is dead serious. She's even underlined the plastic surgeon's name in the phone book. She says she wants something big for her 40th birthday.

How do you feel about the situation?

GRAPENUTS

DEAR GRAPENUTS: If this would be good for your mother's morale — why not? I only hope that she and your father can agree on a fruit that's not forbidden.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we went out to dinner with two other couples. When the cheque came, one of the men insisted on paying for everything with his credit card (obviously his company's). Then he collected the cash from the rese of us.

I have been told that he does this all the time. How does a person go about putting a stop to this sort of thing? I don't like to be used as a "customer." And knowing that he uses us as so-called business write-offs when we are just social friends makes me feel like a party to something dishonest.

Any suggestions?

USED

DEAR USED: If you are certain that your friend is using you in this manner, either tell him you won't go along with it or quit going along with HIM.

Pork, Turkey Burgers for Summer Barbecues

With summer days ahead, thoughts turn to picnics and outdoor barbecues.

Steaks, chops, chicken and turkey parts and naturally hamburgers have always been popular candidates for the grill. However, other ground meats should have a place in outdoor cookery. Once you have tasted Burgers made of ground turkey or pork and accompanied by potatoes and corn - on - the - cob cooked on the grill, make a simple barbecue into an unexpected experience.

BARBECUED PORK BURGERS

1½ pounds lean minced pork
½ cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons parsley
½ teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup soft bread crumbs
⅓ cup milk
1 egg

Mix first 6 ingredients. Soak bread crumbs in milk 5 minutes. Combine egg and add to meat mixture, blending well. Shape in 8 patties ½ inch thick. Place on a greased grill 3 inches from coals and barbecue to well done (about 5 minutes each side). Serve on hamburger buns with barbecue sauce or spicy applesauce.

TURKEY BURGERS

3 cups finely ground, cooked turkey
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
4 eggs
¼ cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons fat

Combine first 10 ingredients and shape in 8 patties ½ inch thick. Place on greased grill 3 inches from coals. Cook 2 to 3 minutes each side. Serve on hamburger buns with cranberry sauce. 8 servings.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The technical and psychological advantage possessed by the expert over the non-expert can be observed in today's deal. The hand came up in a tournament a few years ago. An expert was sitting in the West seat. A non-expert was sitting South.

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

♠ 8 5 3
♥ 6
♦ A K J 9 6

WEST
♠ A Q 4
♥ K 10 8 2
♦ 8 5 3
♣ J 8 6

EAST
♠ K J 10 9 7
♥ Q 9 4 3
♦ 7 4 2
♣ 5

SOUTH
♠ 6 2
♥ A J 7 5
♦ Q 10
♣ A K Q 10 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

The bidding was quite good, especially when one considers that North-South were non-expert. A three notrump contract would have been defeated at once, with the defenders cashing five spade tricks.

On West's lead of the spade ace, East played the encouraging jack. West then continued with the spade four, East's king winning. To trick three East lead the nine of spades.

Declarer, being certain that West had been dealt the doubleton A-x of spades, trumped the third spade lead with his queen, to make sure that West wouldn't overruff. West calmly followed suit with the spade queen.

When declarer next cashed the ace and king of trumps, he learned, to his sorrow, that West's jack of trumps had become the setting trick. Had the four outstanding trumps been divided 2-2, declarer's ruffing of the third spade lead with the queen would not have been costly. It is apparent that if declarer had ruffed the third spade lead with a low trump, he would have fulfilled his contract.

After play had ended, declarer turned to the West expert and inquired: "How come you opened the ace of spades from the A-Q-x? I was sure you had only a doubleton."

The answer came out, simply: "Neither of you had ever bid notrump, so it must have been that you didn't have a spade stopper. My partner figured to have the king. Also, you had bid every other suit. Actually, I would have opened a spade no matter what my spade holding had been."

Declarer's ruffing of the third spade lead with the queen was wrong for another reason: If West had started with the A-x of spades, then East would have possessed the K-Q-J-10-x-x. Surely, with this holding, East would have bid some number of spades over North's one-diamond response. As is obvious, declarer's reasoning did not go far enough.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Thursday, May 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What seems a deception, a setback is actually a test, a delay and all will be well. know it and stand tall. Your sensitivity will surprise many. You are able to move in now and use element of unexpected to your own advantage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your sense of responsibility is enhanced. You carry through on past obligations. What others take for granted, you make genuine effort to verify. Close relatives confide problems. Be understanding without burdening yourself with yet other weights and measures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money pinch is indicated. Delay in cash flow is a distinct possibility. Be aware and investigate alternatives. Get rid of faction which draws and takes and gives little or nothing in return. Aries, Libra figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle is favorable but you have legal obligations which may weigh heavily. One who has gone out of your life could return with request for "a favor." What you do should fit in with practical evaluation — and conscience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some frustrations come out in open. You see what has caused frustration, delay. You discern between shadow and substance. Your intuition work overtime. You know where to be and when—and it is up to you to follow through on what you know. Aquarius plays key role.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Friends and social events dominate. Some of your fondest hopes, wishes are spotlighted. You gain if flexible, lose if fixed in views. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. A young person backtracks. Be gracious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check fine points; read between the lines. The more thorough, the better for you. Accent is on responsibility, prestige and duty. You coud feel "painted into corner." That is temporary. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo could be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be ready for analysis, change, variety, detective work, unique studies. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. One at a distance puts coins in phone and you "talk under pressure." Health, vitality make comeback.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Deal with family issues. Keep to basic course. Don't complicate matters with side questions, problems. Money is involved and so is co-operative arrangement. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons are involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Low-key approach is best — you should avoid making extravagant claims. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Accent is on basics, including legal agreements, property evaluations. Some of your illusions will be replaced by more mature concepts. That's good!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What seemed to lack impact — comes back in a meaningful, direct manner. You're learning lessons and you begin to apply them. Persons who are intense, creative and affluent come into your life. Are you complaining?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your sense of "the universal" surges to forefront. Your ability to perceive is enhanced. Emotions are dominant, but tinged with yellow lights of caution. You're going places but you will pay toll fees.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you make a move in the home area this year, with September emphasized. February and November also are key months. Taurus, Libra individuals play important roles in your life. You could be rich in 1977! Your voice is unusual; you can teach — you appreciate art and drama and you know how to get meanings across in theatrical fashion.

ICE CREAM VENDORS HIT BY THIEVES

WINNIPEG (CP) — A spokesman for the city's ice cream street vendors said Tuesday alarms and strong boxes will be installed on carts following a rash of robberies.

"We are planning something that we will know more about within the next few days," said Earl Barish, whose firm operates 57 street vending carts.

There have been fiftenn robberies involving ice cream vendors in the last 11 days.

Three juveniles have been arrested in connection with some of the robberies and two vendors, aged 12 and 14, also have been charged with theft and public mischief.

Alaska on Its Way to Legalized Pot

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska house voted Tuesday to remove criminal penalites against adults who possess any amount of marijuana for personal use in their own house.

If approved finally, the legislation would make Alaska the second state to "decriminalize" possession of marijuana for personal use. Oregon adopted a similar law in 1973.

A measure adopted 21 to 17 eliminated a one-ounce limit passed by the senate last month.

However, the legislation would retain the one-ounce limit for any adult arrested in a public place, but a maximum civil fine of $100 would replace existing misdemeanor penalties. Possession of more than one ounce of the drug in a public place would draw a fine of up to $1,000, but the threat of a maximum one-year jail sentence was dropped.

The bill would maintain as a felony the sale of marijuana or possession with intent to sell.

But, under the bill, "a gift or gratuity of an ounce or less is not considered a sale."

A minor possessing any amount of the drug or an adult operating a car or airplane with "any amount of marijuana on his person" would be subject to a $1,000 fine.

Public consumption of marijuana also would draw the higher penalty.

SEAMEN AFRAID TO COMPLAIN?

TORONTO (CP) — The man appointed to review complaints and grievances from members of Seafarers' International Union (SIU) says he is beginning to believe seamen are either too scared or too suspicious to complain.

O. C. S. Robertson says he finds it "a bit odd" that he has received only one complaint in two months.

Robertson, former chief arbitrator of the defunct Maritime Appeals Board, is the one-man review board appointed by the union after allegations of SIU violence were raised by Morton Shulman, NDP member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto High Park.

Robertson said in an interview that some union members might look upon the review board as a "whitewash" attempt by the SIU, with no real clout, as Shulman has asserted.

"It could be possible," Robertson said, that some SIU members who want to file complaints have been told to keep quiet.

He said he has no way of knowing whether members have reason to feel intimidated.

Robertson said the only application he has received "has nothing to do with anyone being kicked out of the union," nor does it substantiate charges of union beatings of dissident members.

When asked to reveal the nature of the complaint, he said such action might prejudice the hearing.

Tests by Ottawa Hold Key To Tanks Sunk in Strait

The National Research Council in Ottawa is carrying out pressure tests on tanks similar to the four that sank in the Strait of Georgia Feb. 19 with a deadly load of liquid chlorine.

Des Allard, ministry of transport spokesman in Vancouver, said the tanks on which the tests are beig made are identical to those now presumed to be lying in 782 feet of water in the area of Thormanby Island.

The tank cars, en route from a chemical plant at Squamish to the MacMillan Bloedel pulp mill at Powell River, sank when the barge on which they were being towed overturned.

Allard said tests undertaken by MacMillan Bloedel have satisfied ministry of transport and department of environment officials that the chlorine poses no danger at that depth of water.

However, Allard added, there is some possibility that the "targets" identified in a search led by Seaspan International Ltd. are not, in fact, the lost tank cars.

"A New Pisces-type was on her sea trials about three weeks ago and we asked her two-man crew to have a look at one of the targets," Allard said. "They identified it as a big log the same size as the tank cars."

MAIL RESUMES

SAINT JOHN (CP) — The three-day strike by 22 mail truck drivers ended here late Tuesday afternoon.

Ian Ferguson, an information officer for the post office, said in a brief announcement that the mail truck drivers had agreed to return to work.

No details of the agreement were released.

The dispute began Sunday when the drivers left their jobs to protest the use of a relief supervisor at a postal station. On Monday the focus of the dispute shifted to the issue of severence pay.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta land use forum was told Tuesday that coal companies now consider land reclamation a moral obligation, although they have neglected it in the past. G. T. Page, managing director of the Alberta branch of the Coal Association of Canada, said environmental damage of the scale caused by coal operations in the Appalachian region of the United States "can't happen in Alberta" because of differences in topography, geological setting and coal chemistry.

Sea Cadet Band To Compete At Moose Jaw

The band of the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps left Victoria International Airport Tuesday en route to Moose Jaw, Sask., to compete in the Kinsmen International Band Competition.

Lieut. Hector Renton will be in charge of the band, which recently won the drum and bugle competition for army, sea and air cadets in B.C.

On returning from Moose Jaw, the band's next public appearance will be Friday, May 23 when, together with the corps' guard, it will perform a sunset ceremony on the lawns of the legislative buildings.

The ceremony will be part or the Swiftsure Eve festivities.

Cattle Incomes Settled

Canadian Press

British Columbia's cattlemen and the provincial government have worked out an income assurance scheme that will give the cattlemen about $20 million for 1974 and 1975, a spokesman for the cattle industry has announced.

Don Knerr, chairman of the cattlemen's committee of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said the agreement was made after a day-long meeting with officials of the agriculture department.

Knerr said the program, retroactive to April 1, 1974, covers calves and yearlings and will give ranchers an idemnity based on the weight of the animal. He said the gross indemnity on calves sold after April 1, 1974, will be 35 cents a pound, which includes an eight-cent premium financed by the producer and the government.

He said the net payment to producers will be 27 cents a pound.

Knerr said that for 1974 yearlings, producers will receive an indemnity on all weights more than 400 pounds of almost 19 cents, plus a premium of six cents on 1974 yearlings, making a net indemnity of 13 cents.

He said producers next year will receive a net indemnity of 17 cents for yearlings but the payment for calves will remain the same.

On yearlings sold in 1975, the whole animal will be covered with the first 400-pound weight qualifying as calf-pounds and weights above that as yearling-pounds.

Knerr said the program will give each producer about $5,000 for their 1974 animals.

OAS Meeting Set On Cuba Embargo

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID

WASHINGTON (WP) — Organization of American States foreign ministers agreed Tuesday to call a special meeting two months from now in San Jose, Costa Rica, for lifting the 11-year-old embargo of Cuba.

Dismantling of the sanctions was set in motion without even mentioning Cuba. The step to be taken in Costa Rica is amendment of the treaty, under which Cuba was sanctioned in 1964, so that the embargo can be undone by a simple majority instead of the present two-thirds requirement.

The foreign ministers, meeting informally, accepted by consensus the plan included in a package of proposed institutional changes in the OAS. A four-nation committee including the United States will now draw up a formal resolution.

But dominating the sixth day of the OAS general assembly was intense politicking in the halls of the Pan American Union on the question of who will succeed ecuadorean Galo Plaza as secretary general of the organization.

Elections were set for today. While it was widely expected that Argentine ambassador to the United States Alejandro Orfila, 49, would win easily, these predictions were confounded by the discreet but determined opposition of the Brazilian delegation.

The Brazilians contend that the larger countries — Argentina, Brazil, Mexico and the United States — should not hold the secretary generalship. Brazil is backing the only other announced candidate, Foreign Minister Victor Gomez Berges, 35, of the Dominican Republic.

An absolute majority is required for election.

The 25th and smallest OAS member was formally accepted Tuesday with placement of a delegation from the Caribbean island of Grenada. Cuba is still counted as a member, though inactive.

Juridically, Grenada's vote will be the equal of Brazil's in the hemispheric organization. But the display of Brazilian persuasive power on the election question showed that size has importance in the OAS. The U.S. has refrained from backing either candidate though its delegation clearly prefers Orfila to the relafively inexperienced and little-known Dominican.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) visited the assembly Tuesday, telling Secretary General Plaza and others that "there is interest and hope in the Senate" in the work of the ministers.

He questioned delegates on issues from opposition to the U.S. Trade Act to the Panama Canal sovereignty question.

Board Won't Move On Pot Penalties

Greater Victoria school board chairman Bill Ross failed Tuesday to get fellow trustees to take a stand opposing elimination of jail sentences for possession of marijuana or hashish.

Ross had proposed the board state its strong opposition in a letter to the Senate committee now studying a bill that would remove the two drugs from the Narcotic Control Act and include them in the Food and Drug Act.

He said the possibility of drawing a jail sentence acted as a real deterrent to some people who might otherwise take marijuana.

Trustee Dr. Mark Fisher opposed Ross's suggestion, saying use of marijuana is "an extremely small, miniscule problem" compared with the problem of the abuse of alcohol and prescription drugs.

The current laws on marijuana use aren't based on reality, he said, and such laws only make the law in general look foolish.

"You might as well consider putting two-thirds of the people in jail," he said.

Ross and Trustee Janet Baird voted to write the Senate committee. Other trustees voted to drop the matter.

Before the Judge

Ronald William Mench, 17, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Tuesday to seven counts of breaking and entering and theft and one count of attempted break and entering, all of which occurred between Monday and early Tuesday morning.

Mench is jointly charged with James Allan Ratchford, 18, also of no fixed address.

The two were arrested by Saanich police about 3 a.m. Tuesday when discovered in the Burnside Barbers, 110 Burnside Road West.

They are also charged with breaking into H and R Block and Theatrical Costumes Ltd. early Tuesday. Both businesses are located on Burnside Road.

The remaining four counts arise from break-ins Monday evening on Pandora and Johnson Streets, including the office of the British Columbia Auto Association and ICBC.

Judge Fred Green remanded both youths in custody to Friday to obtain council.

James Archie Hancock, 33, of 1316 Rudlin, and Gilles Paul Proulx, 30, of 629 Lampson, jontly charged with conspiracy between April 1 and April 25 to each rob an Esquimalt liquor store employee and a Mac's store at 265 Menzies, elected trial by judge without jury. They were remanded to May 20 to fix a day for preliminary hearing.

The two are also charged in connection with separate $100,000 bank manager extortion attempts.

John Sangster McCallum, 50, of 516 Yates, who pleaded guilty to shoplifting from Shopper's Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas, May 3, was sentenced to seven days in jail, placed on six months probation and ordered to abstain from alcohol during the probationary period.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang said McCallum stole four bottles of cologne, one bottle of after-shave lotion and some shaving lotion.

★ ★ ★

Bail was set at $1,000 for James Lawrence Dixon, 28, of Goldstream, charged with 11 counts of false pretences and one count of possession of marijuana.

Lang alleged Dixon cashed worthless cheques in Victoria between April 22 and 26 to obtain $467.24 worth of goods.

★ ★ ★

Albert Norman Laberge, 17, who pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large from Snowden Forestry Camp for four hours April 4, was sentenced to an additional month in prison. He was serving time for car theft and sentence was due to expire Dec. 8, 1975.

Lang said people who walk away from work camps are jeopardizing the future of such programs. He recommended a stiff sentence.

★ ★ ★

"It's open defiance to the courts," Lang said in the case against Joseph Jubinville, 25, of 666 Gorge, charged with driving while his licence was under suspension.

Jubinville, who pleaded guilty, told the court a friend had dropped by at his residence early Tuesday morning and asked for a ride home.

"So I gave him a lift. I was going to return straight home but the gas was low," Jubinville said.

He said he was en route to the gas station when stopped by police.

Green said he'd give Jubinville the benefit of doubt this time and fined him $150.

★ ★ ★

Sharon Gus, 27, of Port Alberni, received a suspended sentence and was placed on six months probation after pleading guilty to shoplifting a $2.97 pair of slippers from K-Mart, 3986 Shelbourne April 16.

The only reason she gave the court for her action was "impulse".

★ ★ ★

Larry Parsons, 23, of 702 Esquimalt Road, was fined $75 and placed on six months probation after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana.

★ ★ ★

John Wyse, 19, of no fixed address, declined to explain in Victoria provincial court Monday why he had smashed three windows early Sunday at a food drive-in, hotel and service station in Colwood. But Judge Fred Green said it was his duty to seek as full an explanation as possible.

Wyse, who pleaded guilty to three counts of wilful damage was remanded in custody for one day so that a probation officer's inquiry report could be prepared as the explanation Green sought.

★ ★ ★

The two-day preliminary hearing of manslaughter and failing to remain at the scene of an accident for Frankie Leung, 19, of 2136 Ridge, was not completed on schedule and put over by Green to May 23 for possible completion.

Leung was charged in connection with the traffic death Dec. 15 of Abraham George Thomas, 18, of 735 Market.

VETERAN CONVICT MAKES 30TH BREAK

HARDWICK, Ga. — Leland Harvey, 69, veteran of more than 30 jailbreaks, has done it again.

He disappeared some time Sunday from the Colony Farm Correctional Institute for the aged and infirm.

Harvey, convicted most recently of robbery, auto theft and assault, has been in and out of prison repeatedly since the 1920s, despite a 1933 pardon from then governor Eugene Talmadge, who wrote off 100 years worth of sentences with the advice: "Go and sin no more."

Jail Reply to 'Evil Law'

WINNIPEG — True to his word, Joe Borowski turned himself in at the law courts building Tuesday and went off to serve a five-day jail term to emphasize his abhorrence of Canada's abortion laws.

A day earlier he had pleaded guilty to failing to file a 1973 income tax return, an action he said he took in protest to "an evil law."

Provincial Judge Lawrie Mitchell fined him the minimum $50 with the alternative of a five-day sentence. Borowski said, however, he would serve the term and go to jail as often as necessary to change a law that had "45,000 Canadian babies murdered in cold blood last year."

Accompanied by his wife and two daughters and carrying a small black suitcase and a newspaper under his arm, he arrived at the court building Tuesday afternoon and signed committal papers. He was driven to nearby Headingley jail from where an official said he would be released Saturday or Sunday.

Borowski, 41, was made a member of Premier Ed Schreyer's NDP cabinet when the party came to power in 1969 and resigned from his portfolio in 1971 in a dispute over abortion and what he considered undue permissiveness in social legislation generally.

Abandoning his northern constituency of Thompson, he ran as an independent in a Winnipeg constitutency in the 1973 general election but was defeated by the sitting NDP member.

It will not be Borowski's first experience behind bars. As a private citizen, he served time for refusing to collect sales tax on purchases at a gift shop he operated in Thompson. He claimed the five-per-cent tax had been undemocratically foisted on the people of Manitoba by the former Conservative government of Duff Roblin.

Before his formal entry to politics, he entered the limelight by staging two camp-ins on the steps of the legislature building — demanding self-government for Thompson, which has since become a full-fledged city of more than 20,000, and protesting pay raises to legislature members adopted during the Roblin regime.

He courted another jail term while serving in the cabinet in 1971. He was convicted of contempt of court for derogatory and threatening remarks about a magistrate and refused the court's order to apologize.

But Mr. Justice Israel Nitikman, declaring the minster was deliberately seeking a martyr's role, fined him $1,000 without the option of a prison term.

The fine was paid, with help from "Borowski Bucks" mailed in by his supporters.

ANKARA — An assailant using brass knuckles attacked Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel Tuesday and fractured the premier's nose. A government minister described the attack as an "assassination attempt."

It was the first physical assault on a Turkish premier since an assassination attempt on the late Ismet Inonu 11 years ago.

SEATTLE — George A. Yocum decided to make a federal case out of it when he alleged, Household Finance Corp. turned him down for the position of branch representative because he was too short.

Yocum charged in a suit filed in federal district court Tuesday that Household has a minimum-height rule of 5 feet 8 for individuals applying for the job. He claims the company has waived the reqiurement "in the case of females and Asian Americans," but did not do so for him.

Yocum asked for damages of not less than $4,500, based on an anticipated salary of $500 a month with expected adjustments, plus attorney fees, costs and disbursements.

Yocum is 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

MANILA — Imprisoned Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino Jr. took a few cautious sips of chicken broth today, ending a 40-day hunger strike that brought him close to death.

Mrs. Corazon Aquino said her 42-year-old husband sipped a half-cup of broth this morning at the request of his family and would be fed gradually until he regains his strength.

Mrs. Aquino said family members and supporters told Aquino his survival was necessary for the success of the struggle against the martial law regime of President Ferdinand Marcos.

FORT WORTH, Tex. — bandleader-composer Bob Wills, whose San Antonio Rose became a western classic and his raspy "aah'haa!" a popular trade mark, is dead at 70.

The colorful Texan died in a nursing home here Tuesday. A stroke six years ago silenced his fiddle and ended his songwriting career. He suffered a second stroke last year.

PRESIDENT Sangoule Lamizana of Upper Volta meets Prime Minister Trudeau at Government House Tuesday night during a four-day state visit. Trudeau is to visit Denmark and Luxembourg at the end of this month when he goes to Brussels for the NATO summit.

Longtime Enemy Attacks Manson

FOLSOM, Calif. (UPI) — Convicted mass murderer Charles Manson was attacked by a longtime enemy Tuesday as he walked in the Folsom prison exercise yard for only the third time in more than 2½ years.

Guards fired shotgun rounds to break up the fight after a third inmate jumped into the fray. Manson, 40, was not injured, but Kenneth Como, who has links to women in the so-called Manson family, was injured by one of the shots. He was taken to the prison hospital for observation.

Associate Warden Huel Morphis said Como attacked Manson as he entered into the yard. Morphis said Como also attacked Manson the last time he was in the yard. The prison official said it was Manson's third walk in the yard in more than 2½ years because he had been kept in a special unit for a long period of time.

Morphis said Bobby Davis, who was on death row at San Quentin with Manson, joined the fight before the shots were fired.

The associate warden said there was a long history of "real bad blood" between Manson and Como.

Manson was convicted in 1971 of killing pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six other persons. He was sentenced to death but the sentence was later commuted.

Como is serving a minimum 20-year sentence for robbery, attempted murder and several other charges.

Cannes Applauds Quebec Film

CANNES, France (CP) — Les Ordres, Quebec director Michel Brault's film on the October, 1970, mass arrests under the Canada's War Measures Act, was warmly received by both the audience and critics at this year's Cannes Film Festival premiere Tuesday.

The film, the only entry from Canada, appeared to veteran festival-goers to give Canada a slim chance of winning its first Cannes festival prize since Canadian movies began competing here in 1969.

Armor Plating For U.S. Envoys

By MORT ROSENBLUM

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The United States government, reacting to terrorism in Latin America, is surrounding its diplomats with armor plate, hired guards, radio checks and marines in civilian clothes.

Although security measures vary widely, an Associated Press survey revealed these points:

—Few chances are taken with U.S. ambassadors in Latin America. Many travel in convoys, live behind locked gates and select their appearances carefully.

Lower-level diplomats often say they feel exposed, particularly since attacks are sometimes made on the most vulnerable officials rather than the most important.

—The U.S. Marines, whose traditional mission has been to hold off attackers while diplomats burn documents, have taken on active bodyguard roles in some cases and have generally added to their firepower.

The embassy here is better protected than any except the U.S. mission in South Vietnam, officials say. Ambassador Robert C. Hill plays tennis in his backyard while a uniformed marine with a sniperscope scans neighboring windows.

Hill's black Chrysler, reportedly costing $52,000 and now standard issue in risky areas, is armored from the bottom, sides, top, front and back.

Marines in civilian clothes are known to be among the ambassador's guard, which also includes Argentine federal police, U.S. security experts and sometimes locally hired former policemen.

Other embassy officers here, if not guarded, are restricted in their travel and their housing. Each has a two-way radio with the embassy, and all are schooled in such techniques as varying their schedules. Tight security is not restricted to Argentina.

In Santiago, Chile, the reception desk marine watches over thick glass doors operated by push-button combinations. In Managua, Nicaragua, two Nicaraguan soldiers with M1 rifles eye each visitor to the embassy compound.

The U.S. ambassador to Brazil gets a follow car full of guards and a blue van, the same as Brazilian cabinet ministers.

Five U.S. officials have been executed by terrorists in Latin America since 1968 — the latest Feb. 28 in Cordoba, Argentina. In that period, eight were kidnapped for periods up to seven months.

Of those 13, two ambassadors, in Brazil and Haiti, were kidnapped and released. Ambassador John Gordon Mein was assassinated in Guatemala on Aug. 28, 1968.

Regularly, anonymous mail and telephone calls threaten someone in a U.S. mission somewhere. Intelligence reports say that, although many threats are hoaxes, there is often cause for concern.

The latest U.S. victim was not protected by anyone, and he was not even a diplomat.

John P. Egan, a retired auto plant executive, agreed to be consular agent in Cordoba for a $3,000 yearly honorarium while he settled down to retirement.

Egan was the only U.S. citizen in Argentina representing his country outside of Buenos Aires since April, 1974, when guerrillas kidnapped and wounded the U.S. information officer, Albert Laun. Provincial police were assigned to guard him.

Three days before Egan was kidnapped, the Argentine police guard was removed. Authorities said later that officers had been attacked, and all men were needed to track down the guerrillas responsible.

"It doesn't really make any difference . . . our reports show that the kidnappers had expected guards and were prepared to deal with them," said one police source.

"If they really want to make the effort to get us, they probably can," said a U.S. ambassador in Latin America. "But we can take a lot of precautions and make it very hard for them."

Radar Tower Queried

City aldermen want more detailed information from the federal ministries of transport and public works before they approve erection of a 70-foot radar tower on top of Gonzales Hill.

Victoria's land-use planning and zoning committee was told Tuesday that the Advisory Design Panel finds the plans for the installation "aesthetically pleasing," but aldermen apparently didn't find that comment too reassuring.

Said Ald. Mike Young: "I am not impressed with the appearance of the tower at all, but then I can't imagine any tower that I would be impressed with."

Committee chairman Ald. Alf Hood pointed out that the new microwave tower built by B.C. Telephone on top of the city-owned Smith's Hill park "is a thing of no great beauty as far as I'm concerned."

He said council must seek clarification of the Gonzales Hill proposal, including the question of possible television interference.

The radar tower would be used to monitor the movement of large vessels from Race Rocks to Vancouver harbor.

A report outlining the project details, submitted by the public works ministry, noted that Gonzales is one of the few suitable sites in the area which is close to the pilot boarding area off Victoria.

"The necessity of siting the radar close to such an area is a function of the ability of radar to discriminate between many targets," the report explained. "In general terms, the closer a radar is to its targets the better it is able to discriminate between individual targets."

But Hood, a retired army officer, wasn't convinced by that argument.

"That's a lot of damn hogwash," he protested. "Years ago radar was pretty discriminating and I'm sure it's a lot more discriminating now."

Local weaver Joan Kyle prepares for Fibres Festival

Success of the first two fibres festivals held in Victoria in 1973 and '74, have caused the third annual event to expand into a two-city affair.

The exhibition and market of fibres crafts will occupy five days at Circle Craft Centre, 510 Fort, Thursday through Monday, and then will move to Vancouver East Cultural Centre for five days.

Sponsored by B.C. Textile Centre the Fibres Festival will bring together craftspeople from all over the province to exchange ideas and information and generate enthusiasm.

Seminars in specialized craft techniques are planned and the public will have an opportunity to view and purchase top quality fibre craft work. The festival will be open during the day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Robbery Nets Two Years

A 21-year-old man, who was found guilty April 21 of robbery with violence, was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Tuesday to the maximum provincial jail term of two years less one day, to be followed with a two-year probationary period.

Judge Harold Alder told Brian Michael Jacobson, of 1282 Oakmount he had initially considered a term in the penitentiary, but then decided a provincial jail would offer more to an inmate.

Jacobson had robbed 67-year-old Patrick Turlock, 1100 Esquimalt Road, as he was about to start his car in the Century Inn parking lot April 10.

At the trial April 21, Turlock had testified a man stuck his hand in the air vent window, grabbed him by the neck-tie and dragged him to the ground.

Turlock said the man asked him for money.

"I told him I didn't have any money . . . he grabbed me and hit me on the head a few times with his fists, then sat me on the ground and said "if you make a holler, you son of a bitch, I'll kill you."

The man took his wallet and car keys.

Turlock said he saw a police car passing by and yelled, "Help, I'm getting robbed, I'm getting beat up."

Jacobson was arrested in Centennial Square minutes later by Victoria policeman Constable Keith Tirlson.

Ambulance Training Planned

A training centre for ambulance attendants is to be set up in Greater Victoria, Carson Smith, B.C. Ambulance Services director, said Tuesday.

Courses are being planned by emergency doctors at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria General hospital and Vancouver hospitals, Smith told the Victoria Electric Club.

The courses will be on the lines of paramedical training, giving advanced training to full-time employees of ambulance services, students being stationed in hospital emergency wards for part of the training.

Smith said that after a year of assessment, the provincial government has decided to increase the number of full-time ambulance staff from 325 to about 400.

He said new staff would not replace the province's part-time workers and volunteers, who now number between 3,500 and 4,000.

Smith said most of the trainees will be part-time workers and volunteers already serving their communities. He already has a large number of applications for the training and new positions, to be known as Emergency Medical Assistants 3. (EMA 3.)

PUSHERS 'VICIOUS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four convicted drug traffickers, described as "vicious, cruel men," were sentenced in B.C. supreme court Tuesday to prison terms ranging from 15 to 21 years.

"You are vicious, cruel men engaging in the destruction of minds and bodies and the very lives of countless people to satisfy your own greed," Mr. Justice Harry McKay told the men.

Sentenced were James Mah, 42, 21 years; Gordon Jung, 31, 20 years; Fook Lay Tang, 50, 16 years, and David Wong, 47, 15 years.

Wong and Tang also were fined $10,000 each, payable by March, 1976, or in default, an additional three years.

Mr. Justice McKay said: "You have each been convicted of one of the most serious crimes known to our law, wholesale trafficking in heroin."

He said it was not a case of addicts selling to support their habit but that each played a part in the drug distribution system and that each was equally culpable.

Each was convicted of taking part in the trafficking of one pound of heroin to RCMP undercover agent Christian Picard for $28,000.

Seattle Skid Road Reminder of Past

SEATTLE (NYT) — As the two panhandlers, shoulders hunched against the wind, shuffled through the Skid Road section here on a recent gray afternoon, their darting eyes fixed on a stranger emerging from a cab. The younger of the two, moving with a new quickness, planted himself in the man's path.

"Hey, mister, can you spare a quarter?" he asked. "We're trying to get up enough for a jug of wine. We're only short about 50 cents."

The stranger dug into his pocket, produced fives, dimes and the bleary eyes of the panhandler brightened as he made a hasty count.

"Hey, appreciate it," he said, veering back toward his waiting partner. "If you're around, I'll give you a drink."

There never was much pretense about Seattle's Skid Road, prized hereabouts as the country's oldest.

It has always been there. For a lot of folks in Seattle, it is a prideful reminder of the city's rollicking, bawdy past as a logging and shipping centre. The Salvation Army and the Union Gospel Mission still occupy, with scarcely a shudder, buildings that once were houses of prostitution.

But Skid Road is encountering problems, not from the deep recession, which is afflicting this city much as it is the nation as a whole, but ironically from a new neighborhood prosperity because the area is the heart of the officially designated Pioneer Square Historic District.

So amid the restoration boom that has been a proliferation of shops and restaurants in renovated office buildings, concern is being voiced that the denizens of Skid Road are an endangered species.

"It has never been our intent to remove these people from the Square," said Arthur M. Skolnik, head of the city's Office of Urban Conservation. "I have great respect for these people. We feel that it should not be at the cost of the original residents that it be developed."

To understand Seattle's tolerance of, nostalgia about and even affection for Skid Road and its inhabitants, it is necessary to know some history of the place.

In the 1850's, when the city was little more than a grain in its founders' eyes, a man named Henry Yesler built a lumber mill at the bottom of the steep slopes running down to Elliott Bay. From the top, the settlers and their oxen dragged logs down to Yesler's Mill, and the path they followed became known as the "Skid Road." Later, as the town developed, the path was called Mill Street and then Yesler Way, the name it still bears officially.

The name Skid Road, with its stark symbolism, endured. It is generally considered the origin of the term "Skid Row," which is applied to derelict districts across the land despite Seattle's continued protests that it is a base corruption.

Skid Road has lived down to its name, a dreary collection of mouldering brick buildings, rundown rooming houses, missions, seedy bars and greasy, fly-specked eateries, serving the misfortunate ones, the misfits, the drunks, the scavengers, the dropouts from society, the aged poor.

Then in 1970, the Pioneer Square Historic District was established, taking in all of the Skid Road area, and things have been downhill ever since for the habitues.

Skolnik, whose official title is City Conservator, traces the decline to the 60's.

"A law was passed causing all the old flop houses to be brought up to code," he explained, "and 60 rooming houses were closed, causing a drop in the population of about 75 per cent. But if we didn't preserve the physical plant itself, it wouldn't be there for anyone."

Since the historic district was declared, he said, the city has spent about $2 million for improvements, including old-fashioned, globe street lights and new cobblestoned parks.

The metropolitan area's unemployment is down from a high of 13.5 per cent in May, 1971, to about the national average of 8.2 per cent, but there are still enough people out of work to provide strong competition for the part-time, seasonal and marginal jobs that Skid Road dwellers have traditionally fallen heir to.

Discussing the recession, Bruce Zielsdorf, the bearded, youthful director of the Skid Road Community Council, a non-profit organization dedicated to easing the impact of change on the residents, said that "one of the effects is that the marginal jobs that these guys can get are taken by other people."

BRAWLS ENRAGE CALGARY CHIEF

CALGARY (CP) — Police Chief Brian Sawyer, enraged after successive weekend attacks on his men in city tavern brawls, says the provincial government should stop licensing "oversized drinking emporiums."

The chief said the government should take a long, hard look at liquor licensing proposals tabled in the legislature a year ago by Calgary Tory MLA Ron Ghitter.

The MLA's report suggested development of smaller drinking establishments such as neighborhood pubs, instead of the 500-plus-seat taverns that have accommodated Alberta's beer drinkers for years.

"I'm very uptight about the aggressive atmosphere which exists in these big boozing halls," Chief Sawyer said. "I'm very discouraged about these two incidents, in which policemen were doing their jobs and were jumped on by mobs."

The incidents, one last weekend and one the previous weekend, involved uniformed policemen being attacked by crowds of drinking onlookers while attempting to subdue unruly patrons. Both incidents developed into free-for-alls before being brought under control.

"It's time the government got the Ghitter Report off the shelf, dusted it and started implementing some of its proposals," he said.

Renters Share Gardening Joy

An inspiring five minutes of talk came my way this spring with a woman who is renting a home to live in and its garden to work and play in.

Just now she is busy seeking a few details of care for two trees on the property and names of two or three plants new to her.

Early in the five minute talk came out the fact that this person was happy in getting a little home with a piece of ground that she could work on. She based some of her good luck on having a good reference from her previous landlord as to the care given the home and property she had recently left.

It was easy to sense the happiness that was in the future for this woman determined to make the most and the best of the circumstances into which she had apparently been precipitated by fairly recent events, which were briefly mentioned.

Rented gardens, or the piece of ground around homes are indeed worth looking after. Even knowing little or nothing of gardening as an art, the facts needed to grow plants can be learned.

You can read, can't you? Then nothing stands in your way except the lack of deciding to make the beginning.

Cut the grass with a second-hand mower, even a hand push mower where little grass is to be looked after. It may not be a lawn, but rough grass takes on a good bright green if cut regularly. You will like coming home to it.

And the exercise with a hand mower is soothing and relaxing.

If soil beds are already existing but are empty of plants, work over the soil with a fork and shovel. Remove perennial weed roots as thistle, burdock and dandelion if you come across them.

Choose the sunniest portion of the back garden for vegetable seed sowings, following these daily columns for kinds and dates.

Choose the shadiest spot for a sitting-out-living agea. Even though renting you have as much right to relax on the property as an owner. You are indeed the temporary owner by right of rental.

Apart from erecting structures in the garden a tenant usually has the right to plant what is wanted. Just to be sure, ask the landlord before planting a fruit tree or a birch tree for instance.

These are permanent plants and become a permanent feature of the property for which the landlord may already have other plans. Trees cost money to remove after 10 or 15 years.

Small fruits such as raspberries and ornamental flowering shrubs would be welcomed as plantings in most rented home grounds. The visual pleasure they give to all in the community is alone worth the planting, and the satisfaction in their placing and growing is worth even more to the tenant who does the planting.

Vegetable sowings are an almost immediate reward; seeds germinate quickly now in moist soil, growing to usable size by early summer. Sow quickies like green onions and radish, as well as slower kinds.

Spread your rewards over all the years of your tenancy and you find more contentment for yourself and the family in your rented home. You all feel that you belong to the community; you and the children become more responsible, because you are all taking care of the roots put down.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call:

Hospital Switch Hurts Saanich

Saanich has lost $115,000 in tax revenue through the turnover of the Veterans' Hospital to the Royal Jubilee Hospital by the provincial goverment.

Mayor Ed Lum said today council will probably appeal to the provincial government for assistance.

"This is very disappointing news," Lum said. "This is a big chunk of tax dollar loss to us. We supply all the services, including police and fire protection, and we are entitled to something."

Lum said his council had written Premier Dave Barrett, in his capacity of provincial finance minister, asking for clarification on what taxes could be expected from the hospital property but had received no answer.

A spokesman for the provincial health services, however, confirmed that because the provincial government had turned over the hospital to the Royal Jubilee Hospital it was exempted from property taxes by the Municipal Act.

"Hospitals run by non-profit organizations, like the Jubilee and the Gorge Road, are exempt from land taxation under the act," he said. "The Provincial Taxation Act exempts similar hospitals in unorganized territories."

This was also confirmed by a spokesman for the provincial finance department.

"The federal government has a policy of granting payments in lieu of taxes," he said. "The Veterans' Hospital would not have qualified last year for exemption under the Municipal Act because it was under federal jurisdiction (a federal grant of $115,000 was given to Saanich in 1974).

"Until the Municipal Act is changed to make all hospitals taxable they are not on the nominal tax rolls."

"When I receive a reply from the premier we will probably try to appeal the decision," Lum said. "Saanich will also probably present a resolution to the Union of B.C. Municipalities on this."

Saanich said council was due to give final reading on its 1975 budget later today.

"We were hoping to get some reveune from it (hospital taxes)," Lum said. "It would have been going into our contingency fund."

CURBSIDE PICKUP EYED FOR SAANICH GARBAGE

Within four weeks, Saanich council will decide how to cut corners in its garbage collection costs — either by curbside pickups, bi-weekly service or contracting the work out.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said Tuesday he has been asked to recommend to council what avenue is the most appropriate. His recommendations, he said, should be ready within two or three weeks.

Since the lockout was lifted in the municipality, garbage collection has been restricted to once every two weeks.

Warren said half the work force is engaged on regular collections while the remainder is clearing out the tennis courts and lacrosse boxes used during the civic dispute. Cleanup of the temporary dumps is halfway completed, Warren said.

"The real money-saver is curbside operations," Warren said, "Contract operations is another alternative, but this all has to be laid on the table."

Asked if curbside service might prove difficult for shut-ins or elderly people, Warren suggested certain exceptions or considerations could be given so that pickup service could be provided for the small minority unable to get their garbage cans to the roadside.

Earlier Tuesday, Ald. John McDonald, on whose recommendations $100,000 was slashed from the 1975 garbage collection budget, said it might be necessary to switch from bi-weekly to weekly collections during the warm weather.

Warren didn't think this was feasible.

"This doesn't really lead to a proficient setup in regard to equipment and manpower," he said, "I can't see running changes in winter and summer operations."

Inflation Talks Go Nowhere

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said today he will go back to the prime minister and cabinet to reassess government proposals to fight inflation after an inconclusive round of talks with business and labor.

Turner and three cabinet colleagues met today with heads of some of the largest corporations in the country and representatives of business organizations to talk about government proposals for voluntary wage and price controls.

He said the main statement on what the government now plans to do will come in a budget, which he said he hopes to bring in before the end of the month.

As the 37 businessmen left the 2½-hour meeting they had few comments, except to say it was a "useful meeting" with "successful dialogue" on "intellectual issues."

David Collier, president of General Motors of Canada, said there was no consensus on what should be done to fight inflation.

R. G. Reed, president of Imperial Oil, said he is opposed to controls as a solution.

T. J. Bell, chairman of Abitibi Paper Co., said there was a consensus on the seriousness of the problem.

"I guess we want leadership from government and restraint on their part."

Bell said there were no discussions on specific government action.

Turner said the businessmen had been given the same discussion papers as supplied to labor leaders. Turner met labor leaders Monday.

"Labor and business expect government to take a lead. That we're prepared to do."

Turner is to discuss the situation with Prime Minister Trudeau and the stalled anti-inflation program is expected to be debated fully at a cabinet meeting schedule Thursday.

Live-Aboards Facing Ouster

Central Saanich council is expected to authorize chief inspector Norm Porter to order people living on boats in Brentwood Bay to leave immediately. Authorization is expected to come at Tuesday's council meeting.

The order was recommended by the subdivision and zoning committee on Monday. Committee members are the same alderman who will vote on the recommendation Tuesday.

Porter has asked for guidance on the live-aboard problem, which began about four months ago. Council granted a four-month stay at that time on request of some of the boat-owners, although eviction notices had already been served.

Ald. Percy Lazarz says his position is unchanged — the live-aboards must go.

"They have a lifestyle which is not acceptable to this municipality," he said, "Notice should be given."

Chief development officer Gay Wheeler said the council's bylaw on live-aboards gave the municipality control to a distance 1,000 feet from shore.

About eight people will be affected by the living-aboard ban.

Oak Bay Rec Centre Use Okayed by School Board

Greater Victoria school trustees got the last-minute jitters Tuesday when asked to approve a rental agreement for use next fall of the new Oak Bay recreation centre.

However, after much debate they agreed in committee to accept an amended version of the agreement, which will reserve the pool, curling rink and arena for school use for up to three hours a day.

Cost to the board will be $10 per hour per facility, which Sig Dietze, head of construction and maintenance for the school district, said is a very reasonable rate.

Dave Turkington, district physical education consultant, said many schools have indicated they are eager to start a swimming instruction program at the pool.

"Well over 50 per cent of our students are unable to swim well enough to save their life," Turkington estimated.

Board chairman Bill Ross was hesitant about signing the agreement.

He said swimming is not in the official curriculum and the cost of teaching children to swim should be borne by the municipalities as well as the school board.

Turkington corrected him, pointing out that swimming is an official part of the elementary school phys ed curriculum.

Ross then suggested the decision on the agreement be put off till June, when trustees could examine the cost impact of the agreement and compare the money being spent on renting recreational facilities with the money spent on drama and the arts.

Dietze said schools need a decision this month so they can prepare their swimming programs for the fall, and Oak Bay needs to know if the board is committed to the agreement.

Assistant superintendent of schools Dr. John Wiens said he thought it was late for trustees to start having last-minute doubts about an agreement that administration has been working on for months.

"Today's discussion has taken place at the wrong end of our work," Wiens said.

"Frankly I think it's hit all of us by surprise."

Wiens said that in 1972, another year when the school board was feeling a budget squeeze, the board "took broadside swings at phys ed." Programs like the district-wide Grade 5 swim program were cut.

The proposed district rental agreement for the Oak Bay facilities is the first of its kind. Previously schools have arranged use of pools and arenas on their own.

If the board accepts the Oak Bay agreement, a similar agreement is expected to be worked out for use of the new Esquimalt recreation centre, and possibly for the Gordon Head Recreation Centre in Saanich as well.

Final decision on the Oak Bay agreement will be made at next week's regular board meeting.

Thieves Hit Boutique

Thieves broke into Asia Bazaar Boutique, 615 Yates late Sunday or early Monday, making off with $868 in cash and merchandise, Victoria police said today.

Entrance was gained by removing a two-by-four skylight window from the roof of the building and lowering a rope to the main floor, a 10-foot drop.

No arrests have been made and police are still investigating.

SANDRINGHAM PACT REACHED

The 35 non-medical employees of Sandringham Hospital have ratified a new one-year agreement which raises the base rate from $2.50 an hour to $2.75.

Pay increases in the contract average about 18 per cent, Canadian Union of Public employees business agent Alex Markides said.

The union achieved its first two-year agreement after a 39-month strike at the hospital.

The new contract also provides improvements in vacation time and sick leave.

MODERN ETIQUETTE —RUSSIAN STYLE

MOSCOW (UPI) — If you want to be a true Soviet gentleman, you do not dance with your hat on or while puffing a cigarette — at least according to one rule in a newly published collection of essays, entitled "Soviet Etiquette."

Reviewing the book, the newspaper Moskovsky Komsomolets said the articles are written in such high-flown language that the type of person they are aimed at could never understand them.

But the newspaper helped the average Soviet reader by distilling the following rules for good manners the book lays down.

—Dancing: A gentleman does not dance in a drunken state, wearing his hat or cap or with a cigarette in his mouth.

—Travel: You should not indulge in strong alcohol while traveling in trains as your breath will bother fellow passengers.

—Theatre: Do not eat ice cream during a performance. If you must, hold it over your own knees and not the knees of your neighbor.

—Gifts: Do not give gifts to a lady you do not know well. In presenting flowers, use the left hand.

—Social visiting: Do not use foul language if women are present. Prepare a stock of conversational themes in advance.

Gas Hike Sought

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — An application to charge a California utility an additional $244 million annually for Canadian natural gas was filed Tuesday, a Pacific Gas Transmission Co. official said.

NO SHORT-TERM STOPS ON YATES

No provision for short-term parking will be included in a lower Yates Street improvement project which started today — despite the presence of a new liquor store.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Mike Young was emphatic on that point Tuesday, when the committee reviewed plans for the scheme, which has been awaiting action for at least two years.

Other aldermen agreed that providing meters for quick-turnover traffic patronizing the proposed liquor outlet at 546 Yates would destroy the concept of making the block more attractive to predestrians through sidewalk widening, benches and other improvements.

When the Liquor Administration Branch was questioned by the city on parking requirements for the new store, prior to council's recent rezoning approval, an assurance was given that no special parking arrangements would be required because 85 per cent of the customers would be from people arriving on foot.

And Young said the city would keep the branch to its word. Traffic engineer Dave Campbell warned the committee, however, that the policy would create traffic problems resulting from customers circling the block in search of parking space.

The $147,000 project on the 500-block Yates is to be financed jointly by property owners and the city under a local improvement bylaw, with the city paying 25 per cent of the cost.

IONOSPHERE RIPPED BY SKYLAB LAUNCH

WASHINGTON (WP) — The launch of the Skylab space station two years ago tore a hole 1,200 miles across in the earth's ionosphere, the first time such a manmade phenomenon has occurred. The hole was temporary, lasting not more than three hours. Ionized particles pouring off the sun quickly replaced those destroyed by the engine exhaust of the Skylab rocket and the hole patched itself up.

"To our knowledge, there was no disruption of any form of radio communication because of the tear in the ionosphere," said John A. Klobuchard of the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratory in Bedford, Mass., where the discovery was made. "If there were any interruption of radio signals, it was very temporary, lasting no longer than it took the hole to repair itself."

Using the Sagamore Hill Radio Observatory in Hamilton, Mass., Klobuchar and two other scientists, Michael Mendillo and Gerald S. Hawkins, found that at the time of the Skylab launch on May 14, 1973, there was a sudden drop in the total electron count of the ionosphere. Similar drops were observed by stations in Goode Bay, Labrador, and at Urbana, Ill.

The three scientists postulated that the burning hydrogen exhaust of the Saturn 5 rocket that lifted Skylab into orbit caused the oxygen atoms in the ionosphere to recombine, a process that caused them to lose an electron. The electrons were removed faster than they could be replenished by sunlight, which left a gaping electron hole in the sky.

The electron loss triggered by the Skylab launch was similar to the effect created by magnetic storms although on a smaller scale. In fact, the Skylab launch took place on the second day of just such a storm, which made it hard for scientists to trade any radio interruptions to the Skylab incident.

No other space shot tore holes in the ionosphere because none had its rocket engines still aflame above 120 miles. The Skylab engines were still burning well above this altitude, which is the lower region of the ionosphere.

Quoted in Physics Today magazine, Mendillo cautioned against thinking the electron hole might be some kind of new and permanent pollution. He said that sunlight rapidly restored the hole and said that future space launches would create no holes because their engines will turn off before the spacecraft passes through the earth's ionosphere.

Oil Firm Takeover By July?

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela's oil industry will be nationalized in less than 60 days, according to Venezuelan congressional estimates.

Venezuela is the world's third largest oil-exporting country.

Celestino Armas, acting chairman of the mines commission which is now preparing a report on the oil nationalization bill, said that the bill would go to the chamber of deputies for debate next week and predicted it would be partially approved by July 5, Venezuela's independence day.

The nationalization bill calls for the state takeover of a score of U.S. and other foreign oil companies that have been operating here for more than 50 years. The companies will be compensated for the unamortized part of their nearly $5 billion investments here, according to the terms of the bill.

India Prepares for N-Test

NEW DELHI (AP) — One year after setting off its first atomic explosion, India is planning new nuclear experiments that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government insists will be only for peaceful purposes.

"The first test definitely was not our last, and we never said it was," said one Indian official.

India became the world's sixth nuclear power last May 18 when it detonated an underground blast equivalent to about 12,000 tons of TNT — A little more than half the strength of the first U.S. atomic bomb dropped over Hiroshima in 1945.

India developed its nuclear program with Canadian aid and following the first blast Canada suspended all shipments to india of nuclear equipment and material.

The timing of the next test has been a well-kept secret, and there has been no firm indication that a definite date has been set. Nevertheless, Indian officials have confirmed in a series of public comments that preparations are under way for new explosions.

Energy Minister K. C. Pant told a parliamentary committee last October that Indian scientists will need to carry out more nuclear tests to continue their research into peaceful uses of atomic energy.

H. N. Sethna, chairman of India's Atomic Energy Commission, said at a news conference last month scientists have started looking for sites for the next test. He declined to say when it will take place.

The first Indian nuclear device was set off 350 feet below the Rajasthan Desert at Pokharan, 100 miles from the Pakistan border.

Sethna last May had initially ruled out any new nuclear tests until studies were completed from the first blast. Those studies ended last month with the Atomic Energy Commission saying in its public report that all radioactivity from the test was contained below the earth's crust.

U.S. Tanks For Cash

WASHINGTON (WP) The United States has agreed to construct a $100 million tank rebuilding facility for Jordan. It will give Jordan the capacity to do what the Israelis have done for years — turn old, outmoded tanks into modern, efficient ones.

The Jordianian deal comes on the heels of a $20 million agreement between the United States and Kuwait to have the Army Corps of Engineers build launching pads and support facilities for Hawk surface-to-air missiles sold to the Kuwaitis late last year.

The corps will also build the tank modernization plant for Jordan, both deals are for cash.

The Jordanian agreement comes at a time when the U.S. is reassessing its Middle East policy. The United States had taken the position that there would be no new arms deals in the area until that reassessment was completed, but on May 5 it was announced that the United States had agreed to supply Jordan with Hawk surface-to-air missiles.

U.S. officials described this as confirmation of an old intention, however, rather than a new agreement.

The Hawk sale includes six batteries of missiles (six missiles to a battery), according to diplomatic sources.

The Hawk deal was regarded as especially important because Jordan possesses no surface-to-air missile system, a fact which Jordanian officials say helped keep Jordan out of the October 1973 Middle East war.

Jordan currently has about 500 tanks, about half of which are British Centurions. The other half are older U.S. M-47s and M-48s plus a few up-to-date M-60s.

Tests Not Always Reliable

OTTAWA (CP) — Tests to pinpoint the effects of drugs on humans and to find those which can cause malformed babies or cancer are far from perfect, an international seminar on the health effects of chemicals in foods was told Tuesday.

"Indeed many years may be devoted to the testing of a drug in animals, only to find that the drug is too toxic in man to be used clinically," said Dr. J. R. Gillette, of the U.S. National Institute of Health.

Part of the problem is that different animals react differently to the same drug, said Dr. K. S. Khera of the federal health department. Thus thalidomide, which was tested extensively on rodents and proved harmless with them, produced malformed human infants.

Dr. Khera said that chemicals and drugs in the environment account for only a small number of malformed babies and that all researchers can do is be very careful in choice of animal for drug or food additive testing.

Many drugs we now consider potentially cancer producing may really be harmless. "The carcinogenic effect may be due entirely to the experimental procedure used," said Dr. P. Grasso of the British Industrial Biological Research Association.

He said improper dose levels, the method and length of time of administration of the drug could all contribute to an incorrect finding.

Dr. Grasso said saccharine studies fall into this category. He feels the bladder cancer observed in the rodents dosed with saccharine may have been caused by an irritation of the bladder brought on by the regimen of the rodents.

TUMORS PINPOINTED

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Phil Gold of Montreal said a test for intestinal cancer that shows the exact location of a tumor works in experimental animals with colon cancer and is being studied for possible human application.

The test — using antibody labelled with radioactive iodine — is theoretically possible in humans and is being studied by Dr. Paul Hoffer of Los Angeles, Dr. Gold said at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Radiologists.

Dr. Gold is an associate professor of medicine at McGill University and a scientist in the research institute of Montreal General Hospital, where he and co-workers developed the first blood test for cancer.

He said research by the Montreal group may explain why the test for intestinal cancer is non-specific.

The test detects a substance called carcinoembryonic antigen (CEA), which has been linked especially with cancers of the colon, rectum and pancreas, but sometimes is found in patients with other kinds of cancer and some non-malignant diseases.

Dr. Gold said the test is not a screening device because of its lack of specificity and the difficulty of interpreting CEA levels but is a useful adjunct to other diagnostic methods.

Cancer Like Allergy?

OTTAWA (CP) — Cancer may develop like allergies, an international seminar on the health effects of chemicals in foods was told here Tuesday.

Dr. E. D. Palmes of the New York Institute of Environmental medicine said that mice which were first treated with a cancer initiating chemical dimethylbenzanthracine (DMBA) showed no sign of the disease.

However, when they next were exposed to a cancer promoting chemical phorbol myristate acetate (PMA) the mice developed cancerous tumors.

Dr. Palmes said the first exposure to a cancer promoting agent could have no effect, but the result of a second exposure could be dramatic.

"Who knows how many tumors each of us may have already initiated by our past exposures," he asked.

One-Woman Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union established to organize working women has been certified to represent one woman at a Vancouver office.

Jackie Ainsworth, national president of the Service, Office and Retail Workers' Union, said the union received certification from the British Columbia Labor Relations Board to represent Helen Potrebenko, a secretary at Volunteer Grandparents.

She said the one-woman bargaining unit is "an important first, considering the hundreds of one-woman offices where women are paid well below union wages."

The revised provincial labor code permits bargaining units of one person to be organized.

N.B. Police Killers Launch Appeal

FREDERICTON (CP) — Two men convicted of murdering two Moncton policemen appealed Tuesday on several grounds, including the contention the verdict was not supported by the evidence and the trial judge made errors.

Edward Bell, lawyer for James Lawrence Hutchison and Richard Ambrose, said Mr. Justice David Dickson put more emphasis on the crown's case during his charge to the jury and offered some facts not in evidence.

Appearing before the appeals division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court, Bell said there were crucial discrepancies in the evidence, particularly in some time elements.

The defence lawyer complained the convicted men were never informed of the reasons for Mr. Justice Dickson's decision to reject their application for a change of venue from Moncton.

The two were convicted last month of the murder of Cpl. Aurele Bourgeois and Constable Michael O'Leary, who disappeared Dec. 13.

BRIDLE BITS

with phil merrick

As if not to be up-staged by the cherry trees in her pasture, now all in their glory in full white bloom, the grey brood-mare produced her long-awaited foal just five days short of a year's pregnancy.

It is a boy or, in horse parlance, a colt foal.

The father is of English thoroughbred breeding and was considered of good enough calibre to be entered and run in the English Derby a few years ago. Mother is from the southern States with a good dash of Irish aristocratic blood on her mother's side with a mixture of French and English from her sire.

The mating was made with the idea of producing steeplechasing prospects so if the new foal fails to run to fame at the race track there is no doubt his career will be in the show ring.

Protection from the annoyance of flies of horses will pay off in many ways. Flies worry horses to such an extent that they do not feed while at pasture and will lose weight as a consequence. Accidents can and, do happen due to animals stampeding because of irritation by insects.

Horses that are to be pastured should be allowed to grow long tails and manes which are protectors provided by nature.

A good idea is to take a piece of canvas or heavy cloth about a foot square and cut it into strips about half an inch wide up about 10 inches to make a fringe. Attach this like a brow band to a halter to give protection to the eyes and nose of the horse.

The use of vaseline around the lower part of the eye and the nostrils will deter insects from invading these parts in search of moisture.

Also use some Vaseline in the area under the belly where the navel cord was severed at birth. Insects invade this area in search of moisture causing horses to keep kicking to remove them if the tail is not long enough.

Fly repellants will help keep insects away up to three days and should be used if at all possible. Be sure to follow directions for best results.

Shade from the sun and a supply of cool water are musts for animals pastured out. Horses, like people, suffer from over-exposure to sun and this again varies in horses as in people, some able to endure more than others. Remember a horse's digestive system cannot work without water.

On many breeding farms the horses are brought into the barns during the hot part of the day and turned out again as the evening cools down. This of course gives the attendants a chance to check the animals for any wounds or problems of any kinds. Eye problems are prevalent in horses during hot, bright weather. Probably most of these are caused by insect attack.

The Victoria Day Holiday here would not be complete without the attraction of the Victoria Riding Academy's Horse Show. Like the parade, it is an institution.

Managed by D. B. Carley each year for longer than some can remember this show has been staged at three different locations: from 1925 until 1948 at the Willows Fair grounds; for one year the Indian Reserve land on Admirals Road was used; now to the Cedar Hill Cross Road property.

The junior show is Saturday, May 17 and the senior events on the following Monday, Alan Hyndman of Penticton has been engaged to judge the events.

Hyndman is a horseman of vast experience and was a member of the Okanagan Valley Tent Pegging Team when that sport was popular a few years ago.

Hyndman is equally at home in a Western or English saddle and holds a senior judge's card for both the western and English divisions.

Entry forms for the Riding Academy show are now available and also for the Purebred, Anglo and Half-Arabian Show at Duncan Fair grounds in mid June.

The Garden City Horsemen's Club annual Trail Ride application forms are now available from Miss Gina Garrington at 479-5659. Scheduled for May 31 to June 2, the ride as usual will have its base camp in the Cowichan Station area.

Broadmead Stables are offering a schooling show on Saturday, May 31 and June 1. The usual hunter and jumper classes will be listed with jumps at the lower level to give green horses a chance to gain experience.

Angry Bennett, Phillips Boycott House

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Opposition leader Bill Bennett said today he and fellow Social Credit member Don Phillips will boycott the B.C. Legislature until the provincial government allows full debate without time limits.

Bennett and Phillips were escorted out of the legislature Tuesday in the midst of a stormy confrontation over closure of debate on spending estimates.

A raging Bennett said later Premier Barrett has lost control of the legislature and the situation "is far worse than when the president of the United States lost control of the country."

Barrett replied that the opposition was bordering on anarchy and its actions were a calculated move to disrupt the legislature.

The opposition leader said today he will hold meetings across the province "to bring to the people the seriousness of closure of debate in this legislature."

The first public rally will be held in Vancouver tonight, and Bennett said he and Phillips are planning other meetings.

Bennett said he and his ousted colleague will not take their seats in the legislature "until the government relents and allows full discussion."

Other members of the Social Credit caucus have a responsibility to stay in the house and fight, he said.

Premier Barrett said today people are elected to sit in the legislature and they have a duty to do that.

"I have never heard of anyone being so irresponsible and almost wild," he said.

MLAs have a responsibility beyond party politics, he said, and the people will judge Bennett's boycott plans.

The legislature was in an angry uproar all evening as the government attempted to put forward the 225 spending votes not approved in the house by last week, when the new time limits on debate ran out.

Only three votes were passed in the two-and-a-half-hour sitting. All opposition members voted against the three estimates in formal votes and the members also stood for formal votes on three other occasions as the opposition attempted to fight the time limit rules and challenge the house chairman.

When the members were not conducting formal votes or shouting across the floor, the opposition took up time in lengthy procedural hassels and debates with Speaker Gordon Dowding or the committee chairman.

Bennett and Phillips (SC—Peace River) were thrown out of the house early in the sitting when it first became clear the government was going to try to push through the unfinished estimates.

House leader Eileen Dailly called Vote Nine (the first of the spending votes not approved) and before any member could rise to discuss the spending estimate chairman Hartley Dent (NDP—Skeena) called for a vote on the estimate and began to move on to Estimate 10.

Both Phillips and Bennett angrily jumped to their feet and demanded to be able to fully debate the spending vote.

When they both refused repeated demands from Dent to sit down, the chairman called in Speaker Dowding to handle the matter.

At one point in the shouting match, six members were on their feet talking at once. (House rules allow only one person to stand at a time.)

Bennett sat down when Dowding came into the chamber but Phillips ignored Dowding's demands to sit and finally the sergeant-at-arms was asked to escort the shouting member out of the house.

Then Bennett rose to his feet and refused to sit down. He too was escorted out of the chamber for the remainder of the sitting.

"I don't have to return to that legislature," he told reporters later. "I will take my case to the people of this province."

He said the Speaker and chairman were guilty of complicity with the government in

U.S. Jets Sink Gunboats

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — American aircraft sank three Cambodian gunboats and damaged about four others in retaliation for the Khmer Rouge's failure to release the captured U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez, the Pentagon said today.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford ordered the attack in the Gulf of Siam Tuesday night after receiving "a strong consensus of support and no objections" in telephone conversations with the leaders of congress.

Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin said American planes attacked after "receiving fire" from the Communist gunboats for several hours and because there were indications the Cambodians intended to remove captive Americans from the Mayaguez.

"Three Cambodian patrol craft were destroyed, about four others were damaged and immobilized," Laitin said.

He added that one of the damaged Cambodian boats succeeded in reaching Kompong Som, the port on the Cambodian mainland about 35 miles from the island of Koh Tang where the Mayaguez was being held.

There were indications that the Cambodians appeared to be attempting to move captive U.S. crewmen from the ship and from the island of Koh Tang to the mainland," Laitin said. The Mayaguez was carrying a 39-man crew.

Laitin did not say what weapons were used against the gunboats. He said the attacking U.S. aircraft first gave warning — but he did not indicate how and then "began efforts to block this movement."

The attack came as Ford amassed an emergency U.S. military force in the area, including 1,100 marines who landed in Thailand today and the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, which was steaming toward the area in the company of several destroyers.

The military action signalled an apparent failure of diplomatic efforts to avert a crisis. Officials would not comment on the results of contacts that reportedly were made with representatives of China, an ally of the new Communist regime in Cambodia.

The announcement of the military action interrupted debate on the House floor over aid to Vietnamese refugees.

Rep. John Seiberling, (D—Ohio,) said the action was a direct violation of the "plain language" of the 1973 law prohibiting the involvement of U.S. military forces in Indo-China. Rep. John Anderson (R—Ill.), appealed to members not to reach any judgment until the facts are known.

Earlier, Thai Premier Kukrit Pramoj gave the United States until Thursday morning to remove 1,100 U.S. Marines he said were landed in Thailand today without his permission.

Kukrit told reporters in Bangkok he would take "drastic action" if the United States did not withdraw the marines from the territory of its only remaining ally on the Sutheast Asian mainland.

Kurkrit said his country does not intend to be drafted

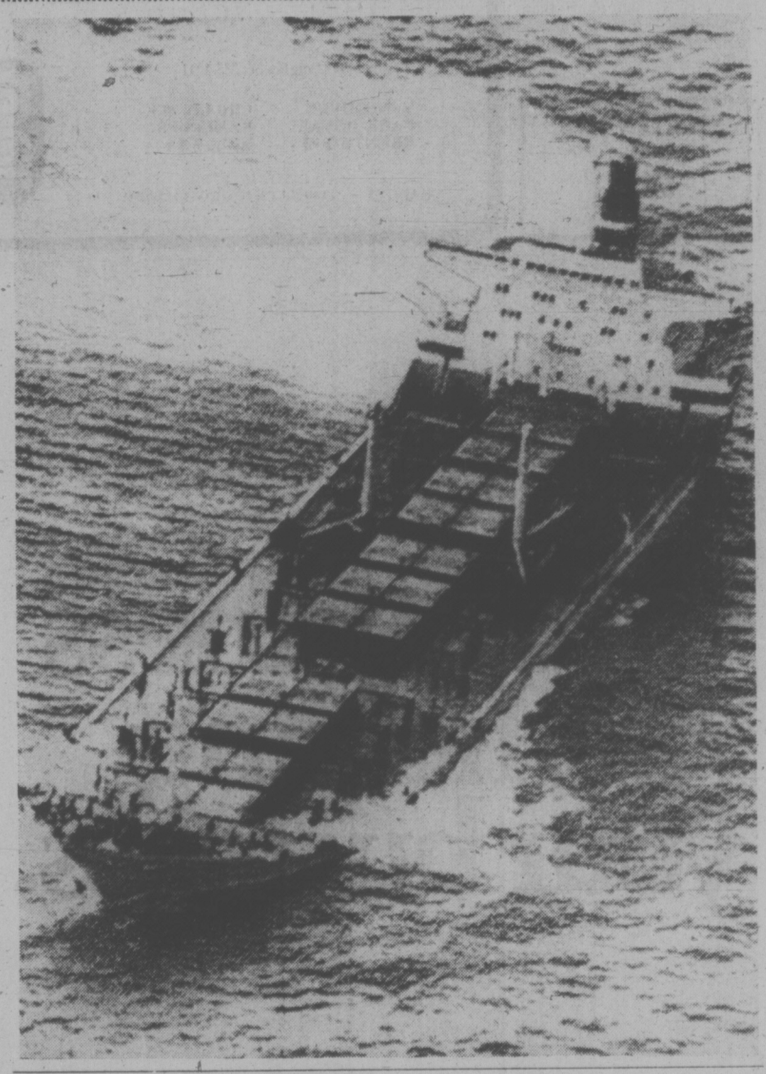
Floating Time Bomb

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — An abandoned Greek tanker spewing flames rocked in the choppy waters of the Atlantic today, threatening to explode like "a time bomb" and dump tons of oil onto the shores of the Dominican Republic.

A Dutch salvage tug steamed from Jamaica toward the half-submerged, 778-foot Epic Coloctotronis and was expected to arrive Thursday morning.

Smoke and flames spewed from the tanker's stern. The coast guard said it was impossible to tell when the fire might reach the cargo of 390,000 barrels of crude oil.



Egg Prices Hiked

The price of eggs rose 2 cents a dozen in Victoria this week to bring the price for grade A large to about 91 cents and for medium eggs about 83 cents a dozen.

Prices vary across the city.

In Vancouver, Canada Safeway announced it was increasing its prices 10 cents a dozen but later clarified the report to say the increase was only 2 cents above normal levels. It had been selling eggs 8 cents a dozen below normal in a price war with other Vancouver supermarkets.

A Canadian Press report that Safeway was increasing prices 10 cents a dozen because of an increase by producers brought an attack from the provincial egg marketing board before the situation had been clarified by Canada Safeway.

The earlier report gave the impression the egg marketing board had increased egg prices by 10 cents.

Today a spokesman for Canada Safeway said that the company ended its price war, restoring its price to the normal 87 cents a dozen from the discount price of 79 cents. Then it added 2 cents a dozen to reflect the increase announced by the egg marketing board.

Other Vancouver supermarkets also increased their prices to similar levels.

CITY CRIME ON RISE

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

When the 1974 Victoria City police statistics are released — expected within four to six weeks—they will depict a gloomy picture of the growth of crime in the city, with sexual offences proportionately heading the list.

According to a spokesman for the city police records department there were 56 sexual offences, other than rape, committed during 1974, a 133 per cent increase over the previous year when there were 24 and a 460 per cent increase over the 10 recorded in 1970.

Ironically, over the same period of time, the number of rapes each year has steadily declined from eight in 1970 to six in 1973 to five in 1974.

Similarly there was a drop in the number of murders, from four in 1973 to three last year, and a decrease in offensive weapons offences from 49 to 37.

But those were the exceptions. All other crime categories reflected a disquieting upward trend.

The 84 robberies last year were 31 per cent more than the 64 in 1973, and woundings soared from one in both 1973 and 1970 to eight in 1974.

There were 25 per cent more breaking and enterings and incidents of theft than the previous year, the former jumping from 961 to 1,203, the latter from 2,703 to 3,408.

Cases of possession of stolen property escalated more than 160 per cent, from 47 to 106.

The fraud department handled 95 more cases in 1974 than 1973 with a final tally of 1,091.

Assaults were up about 14 per cent, from 468 to 546 and the pot-pourri category listing "other criminal code offences" increased fractionally from 1,748 to 1,810.

During 1974, the statistics show, police investigated 9,359 criminal code offences and managed to clear by charge 2,292 of them or about 24 per cent.

The amount of property stolen during the year reached $616,544, of which police recovered $152,372.

The statistics will be incorporated in chief Jack Gregory's annual report to the Victoria police board. The report, normally, would have been released by now but this year it has been delayed because of the recent municipal workers strike-lockout.

MOBS RANSACK U.S. OFFICES

VIENTIANE (AP) — Mobs of Laos students ransacked U.S. installations in the cities of Luang Prabang and Savannakhet today, looting rice and supplies, reliable sources said. Radio contact with the Agency for International Development (AID) compound at Savannakhet was lost and a U.S. embassy spokesman expressed concern for the 15 Americans there.

In Luang Prabang, the royal capital 200 miles north of Vientiane, sketchy radio reports said 3,000 students, teachers and pedicab drivers seized rice supplies and wrecked the AID compound.

The reports said the demonstrators also seized the provincial governor's office and began to distribute rice seized from American stocks.

The demonstrators, apparently protesting 70 per cent inflation, skyrocketing prices and the U.S. presence, left the United States Information Service office untouched.

The demonstrations — rumored to have have been in the wind for the past few days — came as U.S. officials were putting into effect a "thinning out' process of Americans in Laos because of increasing Communist Pathet Lao control of the country.

Quebec Social Order Comes First—Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa, determined to re-establish order in his province's troubled construction industry, said Tuesday preserving Quebec's social order is more important than staging the 1976 Olympic Games.

"Social order comes before everything, all events, no matter how important they are," Bourassa said.

The national assembly passed a special motion Tuesday suspending regular procedures to debate full time the legislation aimed at restoring order to Quebec's construction industry.

The legislature now can sit every day except Sunday to discuss exslusively two bills proposed following release of the Cliche Commission report.

The first bill would put four locals of the Quebec Federation of Labor under trusteeship while the second would bar persons with criminal records from holding influential union positions for certain periods.

Work on the Olympics sites and other major construction projects stopped May 8 when 5,000 workers walked off the job as part of a union confrontation with the Quebec government over the bills.

The Olympic sites were idle again today with about 9,000 workers off the job at major building sites in the province

B.C. to Cool Indian Protest . . . Without Police

The government will try to keep police out of any confrontations with Indians in B.C. this summer, deputy attorney-general David Vickers said Tuesday.

Talks have already been held with the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs to work out arrangements for trying to de-escalate any situations which may arise in the future, he said.

The system of trying to negotiate a settlement of confrontations without reference to police action was put into practice last weekend, said Vickers, when about 30 members of the American Indian Movement (AIM) occupied offices of the federal Department of Indian Affairs (DIA) in Vancouver.

Federal Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan tried to pressure the province to call out the police, said Vickers, but B.C. didn't want to use force for fear of escalating the conflict.

Provincial officials negotiated with the chief's union on Saturday and the union, in turn, talked with the occupying Indians on Sunday, he said.

The negotiations led to an end of to the occupation early Monday morning and Vickers praised the work of the unions, especially executives Bill Wilson and Lou Desmarais.

He said B.C. refused to follow Ottawa's call for police action because it had an agreement with the union to negotiate in all cases. The Vancouver police co-operated fully in the plan, said Vickers.

In the legislature Tuesday, Attorney-General Alex Macdonal praised Vickers as well as the union members for ending the occupation.

In Ottawa Tuesday, Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan expressed concern that provincial attorneys-general are not acting firmly enough to deal with native sit-ins, roadblocks and other non-peaceful demonstrations.

The one in B.C., he complained, would rather play tennis than break up an illegal occupation of federal offices.

The minister was questioned during a Commons committee meeting about the Vancouver occupation and the threat of further demonstrations by native groups in various parts of Canada this summer.

Hugh Anderson (Lib—Comox-Alberni) argued that autrorities must intervene when the life or property of citizens is threatened by demonstrations.

THE PRIZE: CALORIES

Beauty is in the pie of the beholder when LOVE seeks the most gorgeous glutton and the pie is 24-carat icecream.

The Loyal Order of Victoria Enthusiasts will follow the Victoria Day parade with an old fashioned icecream eating contest Monday afternoon in the 600 block of Yates.

The one who gorges himself-herself to the teeth quicker than anyone else in one of three categories gets to keep all the calories.

Actually, the prizes number in the hundreds:

For newspaper street vendors — all the Times hawkers are entered — first prize will be 150 cones; second prize 100 cones, third 50, fourth 20 and fifth 10 — all jumbo size. And during the spectacle itself, contestants will be able to swill themselves with all the soft drinks they can manage, to keep their pipes from freezing.

For businessmen the prize is a dinner for two — plus drinks — and for newspaper and broadcast reporters entering the third category, the prize will be a challenge bowl (to throw up in?) where the winner's name will be engraved to entice future competitors.

Contestants are invited to pull up their chins at 2:30 p.m. near Broad Street.

17.58% Tax Hike Set for Oak Bay

Oak Bay's total tax rate will climb 17.58 per cent this year to finance municipal and school expenditures of $7.3 million.

Council completed deliberations Tuesday night on its portion of the budget, chopping $213,125 from a provisional budget, or 3.6 mills.

This left a municipal (general and debt) increase of 6.21 mills over last year, or 13.3 per cent.

The general municipal mill rate this year will be 45.46 compared with 42.05 last year while debt charges will rise to 7.43 mills from 4.63 mills, reflecting land purchases and the Oak Bay Recreation Centre.

Schools, over which council has no control, will cost 41.36 mills this year compared with 35.22 mills last year.

The total mill rate, including general, debt, schools, hospitals and the regional district, will be 99.26 compared with 84.428 last year.

The total budget of $7,398,856 compares with actual total expenditures last year of $6,083,457.

Council gave three readings to the budget and tax levy bylaws Tuesday night and final adoption will be given tonight.

Council, which slashed garbage collection frequency Monday to once every three weeks instead of once a week in an economy move, decided the week starting May 26 will be Cleanup Week when all kinds of junk except large, heavy objects will be picked up.

Although garbage will only be picked up once every three weeks, residents can dump extra garbage on their own by taking it in plastic bags to the municipal yard on Elgin Street any weekday, including evenings, but not weekends.

It was agreed Tuesday night to ease burning restrictions so incinterators may be used at any time except Saturday afternoons, Sundays and within one hour of sunset. Previously, incinerator burning was prohibited during most daylight hours.

Young Says He's Running

Victoria Ald. Mike Young today announced that he will be a candidate for the city's mayoralty in November, "whether or not" Mayor Peter Pollen steps down after four years in the position.

Pollen indicated several months ago, and has since repeated on several occasions, that he has no intention of seeking re-election.

Young, a lawyer now in his fourth year as an alderman, said his decision was reached after three or four months of assessing the situation.

"I intend to be a serious candidate for mayor regardless of who runs. Having made the decision, it's not a case of waiting for the wind to blow in the right direction," he said.

His candidacy does not reflect dissatisfaction with Pollen's leadership, he stressed, nor with the general direction taken by council over the past four years. "But obviously individuals have a different method of approaching things."

Young forsees one of the major problems facing council is the "need to cut our budgetary cloth to suit our revenue position."

The strike-lockout gave senior staff a unique opportunity to assess all the city's operating methods and procedures, and the review indicated the need for many changes both to improve genaral efficiency and employer-employee relations.

Another task will be to face the problems directly caused by the provincial government, "probably the biggest threat to the integrity of the city of Victoria that we have."

City Tourism Worth $137M

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A provincial government report shows the value of tourism to Victoria was about $137 million in 1974, about twice as high as local estimates, Victoria Visitors Information Centre president Terry Farmer said today.

"Our earlier estimate, which was little more than a guess based upon a spot check of local merchants, was that the tourist industry was worth between $60 million and $70 million to the Greater Victoria area," he said.

The government report, released this week, showed tourists spent $896 million in British Columbia last year and 31 per cent of this was spent on Vancouver Island. About half the Vancouver Island spending was in the Greater Victoria area.

"This report shows that tourism is far more important to Victoria than even we in the tourist industry thought. It also demonstrates the opportunity for growth," Farmer said.

The report shows that 57 per cent of the $137 million was spent in the summer months.

With a conference centre and an energetic off-season tourist promotion campaign, this total spending could be increased to $200 million within two or three years, Farmer said.

Convention delegates spend three times as much as the average tourist and would help spread the flow of visitors over the whole year.

The bulk of tourist promotion should centre on the off-season, although the summer period would not be ignored. The visitors' centre on the Causeway tries to get summer visitors to stay longer than the average 2.5 days.

Farmer said he was delighted to receive the provincial government report, prepared by the department of travel, because it eliminated a lot of guesswork about the value of the industry to this city.

"In our own estimates, we had tried to be as cautious as possible because we didn't want to overstate the situation."

The report shows British Columbia had 7.2 million tourists in 1974. Of the $869 million spent in the province, $300 million was spent by British Columbians touring their own province and the remaining $569 million was spent by non-residents of B.C.

Of the $569 million, 57 per cent spent by Americans and 40 per cent by Canadians from other provinces. The other 3 per cent includes visitors from overseas.

Meanwhile, about 120 Victoria hospitality workers toured local attractions today in a program sponsored by the visitor centre.

Two double decker bus loads of waitresses, desk clerks and other employees went on the tour.

It is an annual program to give Victorian workers a first-hand look at attractions so they can answer questions from tourists.

EX-STUDENT SUES TEACHER

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An 18-year-old former student launched a B.C. Supreme Court action Tuesday claiming negligence and damages over a power saw injury which severed one finger of his left hand and parts of other fingers.

Richard Andrew Legg is suing his former woodwork teacher, Colin John Quail, Mount Doug principal John Jerome Lowther and school district 61.

Legg, represented by Ian Izard, told Mr. Justice Samuel Toy he was cutting a piece of wood on a table saw in Quail's woodwork class Dec. 11, 1972.

He said he was pushing the wood through the saw with a stick "and something slipped."

He admitted that guards for the saw were folded underneath the table.

Asked if the guards were up on the table if they would protected his hand, he replied, "Yes, my hand would have hit the guard instead of the blade."

He said he had used the table saw before without guards, that other students did this "quite often" and Quail had spoken to him earlier in the day when the guards were folded away and he "didn't tell me to use the guards."

Legg said he is working as a dishwasher but hadn't made up his mind what kind of future job he would like.

He also admitted he had an accident while operating a drill press in class when a piece of wood flew off.

A fellow-student of Legg's, Michael Christie, told court "I do believe Quail said the safety guards should be up" immediately after the accident.

Use of the guards depended on different students — sometimes they were used and sometimes not. He admitted it was dangerous, "if you are not very careful" to operate the saw without guards.

He said he witnessed the saw being used with the guards down while Quaile was present.

Asked if the students were well-behaved, he said "not really. Everyone was fooling around quite a bit." Asked if Quail had control of the class, he said "yes and no."

However, Christie said every student was told to use the guards on the table saw.

Another former student, Brian Marshall, said the use of guards was "about 50-50." But Quaile had told students to use the guards. There had been about three weeks of instruction on various equipment at the start of the semester.

Dr. Wiechman Billung-Meyer, who treated Legg's injury, told court the youth has a weaker grip, is unable to do certain things and suffers from hyper-sensitivity.

Competition in normal gainful employment would be difficult including fine finger work, heavy lifting and work which involves extremes in temperature, especially cold.

NIP-Picking Session Reviews Centre Plans

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A three-hour N.I.P.-picking meeting of Victoria city council on Tuesday was almost exclusively devoted to an agonizing — the only appropriate adjective — review of the community centres proposed for James Bay and Victoria West under the Neighborhood Improvement Program.

At one stage in the unrelieved tedium of indecision, the obviously frustrated Mayor Peter Pollen termed the whole thing a "swamp."

But, unable to find solid ground amidst the enveloping ooze, council could only decide to make no decision at all on the controversial community centres — until the community associations themselves come up with more specific proposals on the size, nature and operation of the buildings.

Meanwhile, the caucus group gave N.I.P. committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier authority to proceed with implementing all other expenditure proposals listed in the $2 million program approved last November.

Glazier said negotiations have begun on the purchase of the Cathedral School as an activity centre for the James Bay New Horizons group of senior citizens, and land is being accumulated for low-cost housing.

It was Ald. Sam Bawlf who framed the motion that ended the rambling discussion on the community centre aspect:

"Let's say that we continue to endorse the items on the shopping list including the provision of community centre facilities, but that at this time we are not persuaded of the specific proposals that have been made and we would like further refinement by the communities."

Pollen agreed. "Let's leave these two grandiose schemes until they shape down to something quite specific," he suggested.

Bawlf noted that community centres in Vancouver serve a population of 30,000 each, while Victoria is proposing to build a costly centre for only 9,000 residents of James Bay.

"You are going to have to accept right now that there will have to be at least half a dozen more such facilities in Victoria by virture of this precedent," he warned.

The mayor wondered aloud whether council had its priorities in order, endlessly "fiddling around" with arguments on the community centre proposals when it should be devoting its time and energies to tackling the housing crisis. But all council members were aware of the "strident cries" of certain segments of the community, he conceded.

Several members expressed concern that the city might become enmeshed in the James Bay Community Project "experiment" — one of four provincial projects for the integration of health, education, recreation and social services — once a community centre is actually in operation.

Ald. Mike Young said a project report refers to the community centre in a disturbingly lavish concept which embraces day-care centre, nature centre, home-living centre, facilities for arts and crafts, drama, dance and music, cafeteria-lounge and "sauna and steam bath."

Disbelieving laughter greeted the last item, although planning director Geoff Greenhalgh pointed out that council should not interpret that list as having any relevance to the N.I.P. proposals.

Pollen admitted he has "a very, very strong bias" against the James Bay community resource board having any connection at all with the operation of a community centre in James Bay.

The group has no defined objectives, he said, and lacks any mandate from the community "other than self-proclaimed."

$800, Week Off Saanich Bonus

The 46 Saanich municipal employees who worked during the three-month lockout are to receive an $800 bonus and an extra week's holiday.

"The council felt the long hours worked by these people and the many other responsibilities they had to asssume during the lockout justified some recognition," Mayor Ed Lum said today.

He said the expenditure of $36,800 in bonuses was "very reasonable in view of the extra work they had to assume".

The action was criticised by Saanich employees union president Jim Brett, Local 374 Canadian Union of Public Employees.

"The way we look at it, it's an incentive program for those who work during lockout confrontations. It's cheaper to provide these incentives than to negotiate," Brett said.

There is no consideration given to hours worked during the lockout, and in most cases the staff who remained on the job did no more than their normal day's work, Brett maintained.

He said pickets who served during the three-month lockout have a good idea of the hours put in by municipal exempt staff, and when emergency work was required a record of the time should have been kept so that pay could be made on an overtime basis, "as we must do."

Brett also observed the municipality appeared to be preparing for the lockout last fall when it was granted an application for more exempt staff than usual, obtaining the consent of the Labor Relations Board to have 10 per cent of the employees exempt from union membership.

The previous ratio was between 6 and 8 per cent of the staff, according to Brett, who said the union is appealling the LRB decision with support from other locals.

SATURDAY MAIL

There will be normal holiday services Saturday, Victoria Day, for street letter box collections, mail receipts and dispatches, and special delivery, acting postmaster M. F. Glover said.

The lock box lobby will also remain open, but there will be no letter carrier or rural mail deliveries or wicket services.

FIREMEN GIVEN 29%

The 160 federal government firefighters in the Victoria area will receive a 29 per cent pay raise over the next two years, under a contract settled by binding arbitration.

The firefighters, employed at HMC Dockyard and Victoria International Airport, will receive a pay increase of 17 per cent in the first year and 12 per cent in the second, under the agreement, signed by the Public Service Alliance of Canada and the federal Treasury Board, PSAC regional representative Tom Dalzell said.

The salary for a level one firefighter goes from $11,262 a year under the previous contract which expired March 31, to $13,177 a year under the new contract.

Dalzell said he expected the firefighters were generally happy with the settlement, but they still want to have regional, rather than national rates. Dalzell said the new agreement still leaves Victoria federal firefighters about $300 a year behind city firefighters, but in Newfoundland, the national rate puts the federal employees about $3,000 a year higher than local firemen.

There are about 1,400 federal firefighters in Canada.

The contract proposals were submitted to binding arbitration in April after talks between the sides broke down.

Meanwhile, the more than 3,000 federal government clerical workers in the Victoria area are voting on methods of contract settlement, Dalzell said.

Currently, the PSAC clerical workers do not have the right to strike as they had voted previously to submit contract disputes to binding arbitration, the same way the firefighters settled.

But the clerical workers, which make up the largest PSAC component in the country, with 44,000 members, can vote to opt for conciliation procedures to settle a dispute.

Part of the conciliation procedure is the right to strike.

Dalzell said he expected to vote to be completed my mid-June.

The contract for clerical workers expires in November.

He Retired . . . Then Got Busy

Capt. Tyson: Back in harness

Now Harry Tyson wasn't your usual type of guy in retirement.

He was not the kind who pottered around, longing to be back at work. Not Harry. He was very contented, keeping busy with his 13 cattle and fruit trees on his "bit of a farm" in Saanich.

Behind him were 50 long years (as either an employee or consultant) with the maritime arm of Canadian Pacific Railway. When he stepped into retirement in June, 1973, he was ending 10 years as manager of marine operations.

Now, despite having "plenty to do" with all those cattle and fruit trees, Harry Tyson is back behind a desk as general manager of the British Columbia Steamship Company (1975) Ltd., a new company formed to run the provincially-owned Princess Marguerite.

Modesty prevents the 64-year-old Tyson from admitting he was approached with the offer of a job and plucked from retirement. But he was. Instead, he says that his knowledge of what was required to set up the manning of the Marguerite and the operation of the company led to his being chosen.

He was, of course, the logical choice. CPR operated the Princess Marguerite on a ferry run from Victoria to Seattle and back (and intermittently to Port Angeles), a service started in 1901.

"Mr. Tyson was approached and offered the job," admits Norman Pearson, Associate Deputy Minister of Lands. "And he agreed to come out of retirement and help us out."

Harry says he couldn't resist it.

"I'm keenly interested in the Princess Marguerite," he says, "but one of the most important factors is that she's a connecting link between B.C. and the State of Washington."

That link was snapped last September when CPR announced it was suspending the service because of financial losses. The Marguerite was then purchased by the B.C. government and Resources Minister Bob Williams has announced the first sailing will be June 1.

Sailing times (until the end of September) will be 8:30 a.m. daily out of Seattle and 5:30 p.m. daily out of Victoria. Fares haven't been finalized yet but they're expected to be "about the same" as under the CPR. That means $10 a person one way and another $10 for a car. But, of course, there isn't much room for cars. There was for Seattle people, a one-day excursion fare of $14 return and that's expected to be about the same, too.

From June 6 to Sept. 7, there will also be "in between sailings" each day from Victoria to Port Angeles and back, leaving here at 1:30 p.m. and getting back at 4:30.

For the passengers, things are expected to be brighter and better. There will be improved seating, new rest rooms, bars and later even maybe live entertainment. The rest rooms will provide proper access for passengers in wheelchairs and there's a possibility there will be special fares for senior citizens, wheel chair passengers and blind people.

And there will be those colors!

Already, the thought of a red, white and blue ship with a Union Jack on the funnel has bristled the hairs of a few British traditionalists. But Tyson says they shouldn't worry.

"When people have an opportunity to see the ship, they will be very impressed, both with the decor and color," he says. "Basically the colors have been retained."

Things are hectic right now in Harry Tyson's office. A huge pile of letters lies on his desk — letters from all over B.C., Alberta and from the United States, asking about the Princess Marguerite and the new service.

"Look, here's one from Grand Prairie, Alta., one from Laguna Beach in California, another from Anchorage in Alaska and one from Cleveland, Ohio," says Harry. "Why, there's even one from New York, one from Provo, Utah, another from Marshall in Texas and, of course, many from Seattle and other parts of Washington."

And there are things like staffing — about 80 people are being signed on — and tarrifs, new payroll systems and completely new stationery.

"You're starting off from the ground up," points out Harry. And the phone rings and he answers it and it rings again. And out in the hallway, someone paces up and down, waiting to see him.

Harry Tyson is really busier now than he was before his retirement. This is no nine-to-five job.

"Even when I'm away from here, the amount of planning is enormous," he says. But you can tell, although he speaks fondly of fruit trees and of cattle, Harry wouldn't have it any other way.

"The ties between the State of Washington and B.C. have always been strong and the renewing of this service continues that strength," he says. "To have the government continue the service and for me to be a part of it is a big thrill.

"It's a challenge and I don't mind working . . . in fact, I love every minute of it." But if you mention his wife Millie, waiting out there in Saanich under the fruit trees, Harry grins broadly and admits:

"Well, yes she'd rather have me retired . . ."

Trouble Came Early for Islanders

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — New York Islanders fell behind quickly.

First, Kate Smith appeared and sang God Bless America. Anybody who cheers for Philadelphia Flyers will agree that it's worth bringing Miss Smith to the Spectrum, and management obviously agrees although it cost $10,000.

Then, the Flyers scored two goals in the first three minutes, one by Gary Dornhoefer after only 19 seconds.

Centre Rick MacLeish scored three others to give the Flyers a 4-1 win before 17,077 fans to advance the defending Stanley Cup champions to the National Hockey League playoff final starting here Thursday night against Buffalo Sabres.

The Flyers eliminated the Islanders 4-3 in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

"What can I say?" said Flyers captain Bobby Clarke. "We win when she sings. Maybe we should have her here all the time.

"We had to take the puck to them. We hadn't been doing it and it was hurting us. When we scored right off the bat, it loosened us up."

Miss Smith, called upon to sing when the Flyers appeared to need a little help, improved her 1974-75 record to six wins and no defeats. Her over-all record at Flyers home games is 43-3-1.

Her appearance sent the fans into an uproar. The Islanders apparently tried to share her luck, sending captain Ed Westfall to greet her with a kiss and flowers. Then, the other Islanders skated over to shake her hand.

However nothing went right for the Islanders. They were outshot 35-15, and except for goalie Glenn Resch, who stopped several difficult shots, the score might have doubled.

The loss ended the Islanders' come-from-behind habit. A win for the Islanders would have made them the only team in Stanley Cup history to win two consecutive series after losing the first three games.

They tied Toronto Maple Leafs' record when they came back to beat Pittsburgh Penguins in the last four games of the quarter-final. Toronto came back to win the last four against Detroit. Red Wings in the 1942 final.

MacLeish, who finished first in Stanley Cup scoring last year with 13 goals and nine assists, said: "We played our system. We got on them early. Every shift we kept on pushing them."

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders said his club gave the Flyers what they wanted in the first period.

"They got the early lead and had momentum. I expected they would come out strong. I thought that if we could hold them at bay in the first period we might swing the momentum our way."

The Flyers pestered the Islanders from the opening whistle, forechecking and backchecking as they did in most games of the regular season and in last year's final when they defeated Boston Bruins.

MacLeish scored two of his goals—he now has 10 in the playoffs—on first-period powed plays, and added his third goal into an empty net at 18:52 of the final period when the Islanders pulled Resch for a brief spell in an attempt to get back into the game.

The 25-year-old centre from Lindsay, Ont., wound up scoring six goals and four assists in the semi-final series. He had four goals in the quarter-final against Toronto.

Dave Schultz, the NHL leader the last three seasons in penalty minutes, tied a career record for most penalty minutes in playoff action. He received a minor in the first period which gave him a career total of 260 minutes in 39 games through three playoff seasons. John Ferguson, former Montreal Canadiens scrapper, set the record in seven seasons and 85 playoff games.

Dornhoefer scored when Jim Watson took the puck from Westfall at centre ice and dumped it out to Dornhoefer who skated in for a long slapshot.

MacLeish scored his first goal at 2:27 of the first period on a Flyer power play, the first Philadelphia power play goal in 19 chances.

Jude Drouin scored the lone Islanders goal on a power play with the Flyers two men short.

The Islanders managed only four shots against Flyers goalie Bernie Parent in the first period. One of his best saves came on a close-in drive by Andre St. Laurent who had two other good chances later in the game.

The Flyers won the first three games of the series, 4-0, 5-4 and 1-0. The Islanders won the next three games 4-3, 5-1 and 2-1.

Before Tuesday's game the Islanders had faced and overcame elimination eight times. They came back against New York Rangers in the preliminary round and against Pittsburgh.

Kate Smith and the Flyers were too much.

'Happy Hour' Bash Stimulated Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — It was "the happy hour" that pulled the champion Philadelphia Flyers together for one monumental effort that won them a spot in the Stanley Cup final against Buffalo, says Flyer coach Fred Shero.

Relaxing in his cubby-hole office after the Flyers beat New York Islanders 4-1 and eliminated them in the National Hockey League best-of-seven final by a 4-3 margin, Shero told about the gathering of his players in an out-of-town hotel the night before the game.

"We had what we call a happy hour around five o'clock when you drink like hell as fast as you can because you're going to have a meeting in an hour."

This loosened up the players, Shero said. "They were not afraid to kid each other and also give each other hell. They were not afraid to embarass each other when they were having a few drinks. If they do this normally without drinking, they might punch somebody in the mouth."

Shero went over the game plans, changing his system a little. "We just opened up with two men (forechecking), instead of one, constantly, and put more pressure with the defencemen pinching in. I think it sort of surprised them."

The Flyer coach admitted he was wrong earlier in the series in not crediting the Islanders with being a better club.

★ ★ ★

"With a little luck they might have done it," said Shero. "I don't think the rest of the league realizes yet how good they are. Every game was tough, physically and emotionally."

Probably the saddest of all the Islanders was coach Al Arbour. "Naturally we're very, very disappointed," he said. "But we have to give credit to the Flyers. They outplayed us. Once they get the upper hand here, and they get a goal on you early, they're a tough club to come from behind on."

Arbour was critical of some of the penalties after the Flyers, expecially Bill Barber, made what he thought were deliberate "dives".

"I'll tell you one thing, some of those guys must be awful good divers in the summer time, because they get a lot of practice in the winter."

Denis Potvin of the Islanders, who got five minor penalties, said it was the first time he got that many in one game this season.

"But the Flyers deserved to win," Potvin said. "We couldn't get anything started. It as a matter of getting it going and they wouldn't let us."

Bakers Get Helping Hand From Rejuvenated Radley

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Al Radley gave his confidence a healthy shot in the arm Tuesday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Beaten for 20 goals when Victoria McDonalds lost 24-12 Sunday to Burnaby Cablevision, he was a different goalie Tuesday against the hot New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies.

Putting on an excellent performance, he blocked 49 shots and sparked the Bakers to a 16-10 triumph before about 400 fans.

Victory squared McDonalds' Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League record at one win and one loss.

For the Salmonbellies, it was their first defeat in three outings. They had 13-7 and 16-11 victories over Coquitlam J Hawks and Richmond Roadrunners coming into Tuesday's contest.

Radley's finest moments came in the first and third periods.

In the first stanza, the visitors held a wide edge, controlling most of the loose balls and outmuscling the smaller Bakers around the goal crease.

Radley, however, made up for this clubmates' shortcomings in the first 20 minutes. He blocked several labelled shots and held the Salmonbellies to a 5-3 lead.

Sparked by Radley's work, the McDonalds opened the second period with six consecutive goals, including two while shorthanded. Stunned by the Victoria resurgence, the Salmonbellies lost their shooting eye and fell behind 10-6 going into the final frame.

The visitors found the range in the third period. Outplaying the Bakers, the Salmonbellies peppered Radley with 31 shots but were still outscored 6-4.

Expected to share netminding duties with Mickie Michaux this season after dividing last year between junior "B" and the Bakers, Radley's performance pleased the Victoria club's executive.

"He played very well tonight coming off that awful game he had against Burnaby," said Bob Reid, the team's general manager.

While Radley reversed form Tuesday, Ken Alexander did not.

Last year's league scoring champion, Alexander had two goals and seven assists for the McDonalds to go with his eight-point effort against Burnaby Sunday.

Norm Baker and Bob Cool each added three goals and two assists, while Mark Bowles counted two goals and Joe Mottishaw, Dan Ranger, Jamie Robertson, Ken King, Steven Hepburn and Kim Bowles singles.

For the Bowles brothers, the goals were especially rewarding.

Mark missed the past two seasons with injuries, while Kim sat out last year after a shoulder operation.

Ken Brown topped the Salmonbellies with three goals and two assists. Bob Geddes and Mario Govorchin each tallied twice with singles coming from Joe Curley, Joe Kelly and Tom Smith.

Joe Poelzer made 46 stops in goal for New Westminster.

McDonalds took 38 of 65 penalty minutes assessed, including a game misconduct to defenceman Lorry Gloeckner for pushing the referee during a second-period fight with Steve Manning.

Esquimalt Wins Jr. 'B' Opener

John Entzminger hammered in three goals to set the pace as Esquimalt tripped Saanich E. J. Hunter 12-6 Tuesday night in the opening game of the B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League at Pearkes Arena.

Darrell Deane and Ross McKinstry added two goals each to the Esquimalt total while Al McLaren topped Saanich marksmen with two goals.

Former All-America Star Lines Up with Pay 'n' Pak

Rivals but always welcome . . .

That's how Victoria Bates regard Seattle Pay 'N' Pak.

While no longer playing in the same men's fastball league with Bates, the classy Seattle squad may renew an old rivalry — possibly — in the Victoria Day Invitational tournament at Royal Athletic Park next weekend.

The teams that produced several memorable series in the now-defunct Northwest International League are among six teams entered in the double-knockout tournament.

North Vancouver Vikings, Vancouver Magicians and New Westminster Royal Towers — now competing in the Pacific Coast League with Victoria and Spokane Blazers are the other entries.

Vikings and New Westminster will open play at 10 a.m. Saturday. Spokane, a team that performed in a professional league last year, will play Bates at 12 noon while Magicians and Seattle complete opening-round action at 2:20 p.m.

The two-day tournament will wind up Sunday afternoon.

Pay 'N' Pak is basically the same team that Victoria fans watched during the past two seasons — with four exceptions.

Veteran Dick Christiansen still heads the pitching staff but the team has added Dale Hammersmith, formerly with Seattle Petchels, and Fred Gardner, a promising youngster from Buffalo, N.Y.

Ron Omori, an infielder-outfielder, is another new addition but the big catch is Bill Stewart.

The former all-America star with teams at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and Aurora, Ill., has knocked two Pay 'N' Pak veterans out of familiar positions. Stewart has pushed Tom Wagner out of third spot in the batting order and has displaced Jerry Hammack in centre field. Hammack now is playing left field while Wagner, still at third, is batting fourth in the order.

Island Bowlers Make B.C. Team

VANCOUVER — Two Nanaimo bowlers and one from Victoria have qualified for the 12-member B.C. team which will compete in the Master Bowlers' Association of Canada national fivepin championships June 28 and 29 in Burnaby.

Unofficial results, to be confirmed by Master Bowlers of B.C., show Elsie Fielder of Nanaimo on top of the women's division with 7,407 points for the best-three-of-four tournaments during the season. She will be the B.C. women's singles represenative and Vancouver's Larry Johnson (7,958) will be the men's representative.

Second behind Fielder was Sandra Wood of Victoria, who won the provincial title over the weekend in Burnaby. She earned 7,366 points and is on the women's team with Leota Valleau of Burnaby (7,235), Sheila Barnes of Surrey (7,184), Josie Weston of Vancouver (7,010) and Surrey's Melba Hynes (6,939).

Nanaimo's Ron McLellan (7,760) made the men's team along with Bob Carter of Salmon Arm (7,880), Vancouver's Ray Walz (7,807), Wayne Davies of Port Coquitlam (7,780) and Jim Turner of Coquitlam (7,719).

Boxers Post Win

CHEMAINUS — London Boxing Club of Victoria tripped Duncan Cowboys 18-13 in a senior "C" lacrosse league game Tuesday night at Fuller Lake Arena.

Salmonbellies Clip Burrards

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies gave Vancouver Burrards their third loss in four starts this Western Lacrosse Association season when the visitors took a 14-13 decision Tuesday night.

The first-place Salmonbellies now have a 3-1 record.

Wayne Goss led New Westminster with four goals. Paul Parnell added three with Ian Kennedy contributing two for the winners. Singles went to John Hannah, Larry Henry, Bill Robinson, Gord Jung and Dave Matheson.

Ron Pinder had four goals for the losers while Bob Salt added three. Both Pinder and Salt had six goals in Vancouver's 22-11 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs Monday.

Also scoring for the losers were Ray Durante and Bill Mercer, with two each, as well as Ward Sanderson and Paul Joseph.

Burrards trailed 4-3 after the first period and 10-7 after the second.

Vancouver goalie Don Hamilton was lifted from the net for a sixth attacker with one minute left but Burrards failed to tie the score because of New Westminster goalie Skip Jolly.

Jolly stopped 40 of the 53 Burrard shots while Hamilton made 18 saves and Pat Safianuk had seven for Vancouver.

Cox Slips to Second

PORTLAND — Rick Acton, 29-year-old pro from Seattle, shot a three-under-par 69 Tuesday and took a one-stroke lead after two rounds in the $50,000 Pay Less Golf Classic.

The sub-par round at Portland's Riverside Country Club gave Acton a 36-hole total of 138. That put him just in front of Vancouver pro Bob Cox, the first-round leader, who shot a 73 at Riverside for a 139 total.

Three more pros — Bob Johnson, Bill Tindall of Longview, Wash., and Kelowna's Dave Barr — were tied for third.

Johnson and Tindall both shot 71s at Riverside, while Barr came battling out of the pack with a six-under 66 at Columbia - Edgewater Country Club, the other course being used for the 54-hole tournament.

Bill Wakeham of Cowichan, a former winner of the event, shot a 72 Tuesday for a 149 total, four strokes under the final cut.

Former Victoria Vaughan Trapp, now playing out of Port Angeles, managed a 78 for 152.

Victorians missing the cut were amateur Hal Jocobson of Glen Meadows (75-80—155) and Uplands' assistant pro Bryan Carbery (78-81—159).

Radar Tower Queried

City aldermen want more detailed information from the federal ministries of transport and public works before they approve erection of a 70-foot radar tower on top of Gonzales Hill.

Victoria's land-use planning and zoning committee was told Tuesday that the Advisory Design Panel finds the plans for the installation "aesthetically pleasing," but aldermen apparently didn't find that comment too reassuring.

Said Ald. Mike Young: "I am not impressed with the appearance of the tower at all, but then I can't imagine any tower that I would be impressed with."

Committee chairman Ald. Alf Hood pointed out that the new microwave tower built by B.C. Telephone on top of the city-owned Smith's Hill park "is a thing of no great beauty as far as I'm concerned."

He said council must seek clarification of the Gonzales Hill proposal, including the question of possible television interference.

The radar tower would be used to monitor the movement of large vessels from Race Rocks to Vancouver harbor.

A report outlining the project details, submitted by the public works ministry, noted that Gonzales is one of the few suitable sites in the area which is close to the pilot boarding area off Victoria.

"The necessity of siting the radar close to such an area is a function of the ability of radar to discriminate between many targets," the report explained. "In general terms, the closer a radar is to its targets the better it is able to discriminate between individual targets."

But Hood, a retired army officer, wasn't convinced by that argument.

"That's a lot of damn hogwash," he protested. "Years ago radar was pretty discriminating and I'm sure it's a lot more discriminating now."

Local weaver Joan Kyle prepares for Fibres Festival

Success of the first two fibres festivals held in Victoria in 1973 and '74, have caused the third annual event to expand into a two-city affair.

The exhibition and market of fibres crafts will occupy five days at Circle Craft Centre, 510 Fort, Thursday through Monday, and then will move to Vancouver East Cultural Centre for five days.

Sponsored by B.C. Textile Centre the Fibres Festival will bring together craftspeople from all over the province to exchange ideas and information and generate enthusiasm.

Seminars in specialized craft techniques are planned and the public will have an opportunity to view and purchase top quality fibre craft work. The festival will be open during the day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Robbery Nets Two Years

A 21-year-old man, who was found guilty April 21 of robbery with violence, was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Tuesday to the maximum provincial jail term of two years less one day, to be followed with a two-year probationary period.

Judge Harold Alder told Brian Michael Jacobson, of 1282 Oakmount he had initially considered a term in the penitentiary, but then decided a provincial jail would offer more to an inmate.

Jacobson had robbed 67-year-old Patrick Turlock, 1100 Esquimalt Road, as he was about to start his car in the Century Inn parking lot April 10.

At the trial April 21, Turlock had testified a man stuck his hand in the air vent window, grabbed him by the neck-tie and dragged him to the ground.

Turlock said the man asked him for money.

"I told him I didn't have any money . . . he grabbed me and hit me on the head a few times with his fists, then sat me on the ground and said "if you make a holler, you son of a bitch, I'll kill you."

The man took his wallet and car keys.

Turlock said he saw a police car passing by and yelled, "Help, I'm getting robbed, I'm getting beat up."

Jacobson was arrested in Centennial Square minutes later by Victoria policeman Constable Keith Tirlson.

Ambulance Training Planned

A training centre for ambulance attendants is to be set up in Greater Victoria, Carson Smith, B.C. Ambulance Services director, said Tuesday.

Courses are being planned by emergency doctors at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria General hospital and Vancouver hospitals, Smith told the Victoria Electric Club.

The courses will be on the lines of paramedical training, giving advanced training to full-time employees of ambulance services, students being stationed in hospital emergency wards for part of the training.

Smith said that after a year of assessment, the provincial government has decided to increase the number of full-time ambulance staff from 325 to about 400.

He said new staff would not replace the province's part-time workers and volunteers, who now number between 3,500 and 4,000.

Smith said most of the trainees will be part-time workers and volunteers already serving their communities. He already has a large number of applications for the training and new positions, to be known as Emergency Medical Assistants 3. (EMA 3.)

PUSHERS 'VICIOUS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four convicted drug traffickers, described as "vicious, cruel men," were sentenced in B.C. supreme court Tuesday to prison terms ranging from 15 to 21 years.

"You are vicious, cruel men engaging in the destruction of minds and bodies and the very lives of countless people to satisfy your own greed," Mr. Justice Harry McKay told the men.

Sentenced were James Mah, 42, 21 years; Gordon Jung, 31, 20 years; Fook Lay Tang, 50, 16 years, and David Wong, 47, 15 years.

Wong and Tang also were fined $10,000 each, payable by March, 1976, or in default, an additional three years.

Mr. Justice McKay said: "You have each been convicted of one of the most serious crimes known to our law, wholesale trafficking in heroin."

He said it was not a case of addicts selling to support their habit but that each played a part in the drug distribution system and that each was equally culpable.

Each was convicted of taking part in the trafficking of one pound of heroin to RCMP undercover agent Christian Picard for $28,000.

Did You Know?

BUTTERMILK

Nothing quenches your thirst like a cold, tangy glass of buttermilk. Originally, buttermilk was a residue from the butter churn. To-day, it is made from pasteurized skim milk. A culture is added to develop the desired flavour and to produce a heavier consistency than skim milk from which it is made. Buttermilk differs nutritionally from skim milk, only in that it contains more lactic acid. This is because the culture changes the lactose (milk sugar) to lactic acid. As its protein is in the form of a fine curd, it is also more quickly digested than skim milk.

The tangy, acid flavour of buttermilk makes an ideal combination with soda to make tender, crusty biscuits and delicious pancakes.

It is also a favourite in combination with fruit to make refreshing sherbets.

If you would like recipes for the use of buttermilk, please drop us a line at P.O. Box 7800, Vancouver, V6B 4E7.

FRESH STRAWBERRIES

Strawberries, unlike all other berries, keep their green cap intact when ripe. Strawberries are the favorite of all fresh fruit, just one hull and eat as is. They are delicious and nutritious, as they are an excellent source of Vitamin C and a good source of minerals, especially potassium.

The most delicious way to serve strawberries is with ice cream or in a shortcake. For a change why not try serving them wrapped in your favorite crepe recipe with sour, whipped or ice cream.
